AFTER THE WAR READJUSTMENT PROGRAM GIVEN

$60,000,000 Bonds and Car Merger Imperative.

BY HENRY M. HYDE.

With the will to win the war always first in mind, THE TRIBUNE presents a program of constructive effort to the people of Chicago and the middle west. This program is outlined in detail at the head of the editorial page. Its success calls for immediate action.

THE TRIBUNE'S program involves not only the remaining period of the war but the great time of transformation and reconstruction after the war. The present and future welfare and prosperity of the city and the state hang on its adoption.

While the war lasts all our energies must be devoted to the support of our armed forces. Every private interest must be subordinated to the public good. No selfish or sectional consideration deserves attention.

Sectional Interests Disregarded.

But in urging that more and larger contracts for war materials be placed in the middle west, THE TRIBUNE does not speak from a sectional standpoint. It knows that under existing conditions [illegible] quickly and with less difficulty in the great manufacturing territory of which Chicago is the center than in any other part of the country.

The east is already overcongested. The fact that 90 per cent of the first year's war orders was placed in a small strip of eastern territory was largely responsible for the railroad blockade and the fuel famine which was disastrous to the nation's war activities last winter. The war industries board at Washington has recognized this mistake by refusing to permit any further war orders to be placed in this region.

Coöperation Chief Need.

One thing is chiefly necessary in order to insure the placing in the middle west of all the war contracts it is able to handle, even if most of its peace time factories are transformed to the uses of war.

That is the more aggressive action and coöperation of middle western bankers, manufacturers, associations of commerce, manufacturers' associations, labor organizations, state and city authorities.

For a year THE TRIBUNE has been urging such action and coöperation. It is now beginning to get results. With the united efforts of all the people of the middle west behind it, the movement from now on should assume vast proportions.

Chicago has already sent more than 100,000 skilled and unskilled workmen to eastern and southern war plants. The last call on the state is for 78,000 unskilled laborers, at least 60,000 of whom are wanted for jobs in other parts of the country. In store are further demands for skilled men of many trades.

Selfish Needs Also Patriotic.

It is fortunate that the selfish and local needs of this section coincide with the best interests of the national war machine. To keep the men of Chicago busy at home in war work is to hasten the winning of the war by the more rapid production of war materials.

THE TRIBUNE will encourage and aid by every means in its power all the agencies now at work along these lines.

Allied with this first step in the program are others more or less growing out of it. They will be discussed in detail in later articles.

Of equal importance to the welfare of the city and state are the preparations which must be made for the great work of readjustment and reconstruction after the war is over.

When victory comes and our armies are disbanded some half million stalwart young men will come home to Chicago and the state of Illinois. At what shall they go to work?

Tens of thousands of women are now working in places formerly filled by men. They are more than making good. When the boys come home, shall the women be discharged?

Hundreds of factories, large and small, have been transformed into munitions plants. Their old machinery for making articles of use and ornament in times of peace has been supplanted by new mechanisms for turning out war materials. What will happen to their workmen when the demand for munitions suddenly ceases

Heroic Death of U. S. Boys in Midocean

BY FRAZIER HUNT.
[SPECIAL CABLE TO CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]
[Copyright: 1918: By the Tribune Company.]

A FRENCH PORT, Sept. 21.—American bluejackets from a United States coast guard boat serving in French waters wrote a new page in American naval history and a shining chapter for the book of American deeds of valor and bravery when, last Monday, they boarded an abandoned torpedoed British ship that was sinking and tried to bring it to port 300 miles away.

Ten of them gave their lives to the gallant attempt, and in all the long lists of brave things done in this war none has been finer.

Worthy of World Homage.

It is hard to try to tell this story and keep it within conservative bounds. Because, when one has talked to the British sailors who were saved and heard from their own quivering lips the tale of valor of these plain American sailor boys who went to their death gallantly and unafraid, he wants to stop the whole world and make it pay homage to the youth of America that dies as bravely on the sea as he does on land. This time, too, like many before, these American boys died for others.

The British ships were in a great convoy escorted by a United States coastguard ship attached to an American naval base. It was a slow convoy, and suddenly, shortly before noon, by the luck of war, a submarine was able to get into the heart of the column and torpedoed one of them. It was what the sailors call a "turret ship," and a few feet above the water line the sides bellied out, resembling the old whaleback steamer of Lake Michigan.

Torpedo Takes Prow.

The torpedo struck in the forward hatch, carrying away some thirty feet of the ship, so that the waves beat against the thin bulkhead.

The crew of thirty-six men took to the lifeboats, while the coast guardship stood by to help and try to get the sub. As in all such cases, the remainder of the convoy put on full steam and went ahead to get out of the danger zone. Less than thirty minutes after the torpedo struck the survivors were pulled on the American ship, but even before they were taken aboard a young American officer, Lieut. Fletcher Webster Brown of Brockton, Mass., received the permission of his captain to call for volunteers to go upon the torpedoed ship.

Volunteer for Death Trip.

True to the traditions of the service, every man on the ship volunteered, but Brown chose only eighteen. One of these was a smiling, popular 17 year old lad named Jimmy Nevins, from Norwich, Conn., who insisted upon going. Lieut. Brown refused him permission half a dozen times, but he pleaded so hard that the officer finally consented. Jimmy was one of the ten who never came back, and last night over in the barracks where the ones who did come back were gathered the talk was mostly about this brave lad who pleaded to go to his death.

Return to Wrecked Boat.

On the same lifeboat that the British crew had rowed to the rescuing ship the eighteen American sailors and officers returned to the torpedoed freighter. The British captain accompanied them, and a few minutes later eleven more of the British crew followed in a small boat.

On boarding the abandoned ship two of the bluejackets were stationed to man the aft gun, another as passenger on the bridge with the officers, while a fourth took charge of the deck. "Sparks" Mason, a volunteer wireless operator, hurried to the radio room, while the remaining thirteen went below to the boiler and engine rooms.

The water gauge of the boilers showed no water, and any second the tubes might burn out, but the boys "stuck," and began filling the boilers with sea water. Then they built up the fires which now were low, and in a few minutes the ship, with its prow blown off and the bulkhead open to the sea, was doing five knots.

"We will make it all right," Lieut. Brown radioed to his ship, and it answered back: "Very well, good-by." Then it was off to join the big convoy, where it was badly needed.

Alone, 300 Miles From Port.

Soon the last speck of smoke had cleared from the horizon. The torpedoed ship was alone on the ocean with a gashing wound forward and with eighteen brave American bluejackets and eleven sturdy British seamen to take it 300 miles to port. Below deck these twenty-four men of the same tongue were feeding the boilers and

BESIEGED POLICE FIRE ON NEGROES IN NORFOLK RIOT

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 21.—Between 300 and 400 Negro civilians, headed by a score of Negro soldiers from Camp Morrison, tonight attacked the Second precinct police station in an effort to rescue two soldiers, arrested by the police on the charge of robbing the cash register of a photographer's studio. More than half of the windows of the station were smashed by flying bullets, bricks, and bottles before the officers retaliated by opening fire with pistols and riot guns. Ten Negro soldiers and civilians were shot in the exchange of bullets before the arrival of reserves from the central station and naval guards gave the officers sufficient force to quell the rioters. Several wounded at the hospital are said to be in a precarious condition. The police have arrested the leaders.

POPE FAMILY'S AUTO RESCUED FROM GARAGE

Mrs. Cecelia A. Mahoney-Pope of 5356 Winthrop avenue says her husband left her with 80 cents last July. Mr. Pope—James Robert—abides at Illinois Athletic club. He has sued Mrs. Pope for divorce—she was cruel, he alleged. Mrs. Pope has filed a cross-bill, charging cruelty, nonsupport, and parsimony.

But anyway the family automobile was charged with a bill of $48 at the garage of Robert F. Perdue, 5308 Broadway, and bore a legend across the windshield: "Don't let this be taken out till the bill is paid." Well, the other day, when Mr. Perdue was absent, Mrs. Pope came along and drove the automobile away.

Last night it was standing in front of her apartment when Mr. Perdue drove up, hooked a tow line on it, and towed it back to his garage. Mrs. Pope notified the Summerdale police.

They called a conference, with the result that Mr. Perdue consented to return the car if Mrs. Pope would pay part of the bill. They drove to the Illinois Athletic club, where Mr. Pope let Mr. Perdue have $20 on account.

"That's not enough," said Mr. Perdue. "I'll keep the car."

But he didn't, because Mrs. Pope hailed South Park Policeman Peter Small and Detective Sergeant James Kerr and convoyed Mr. Perdue to the Central station, where another conference was held, and he agreed again to let Mrs. Pope have the car.

Woman 104 Years Old Dies; Never in Life Had Doctor

In her nearly 104 years of life, Mrs. Pauline Senescu of 1064 West Twelfth street, never required the services of a physician. One was called to her side for the first time on Friday. It was to pronounce her dead. She was born Dec. 12, 1814, in Roumania.

Mrs. Senescu had lived in Chicago twelve years, coming here from Bucharest, Roumania, when she was 92 years old. When she was 96 she took a little trip all by herself to visit a son in Seattle, Wash. She had never been ill a day in her life, she said.

Last week her grandson, George Senescu, left to fight for the United States in France. Another grandson, Harry Schwartz, is in the navy. She has four sons and one daughter living, thirty-two grandchildren, fifty-seven great-grandchildren, and two great-great-grandchildren.

20,000 SLACKERS ARE DRIVEN FROM U. S. SHIPYARDS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—Over 20,000 draft registrants have been routed from the Emergency Fleet corporation in a drive against slackers, Provost Marshal General Crowder announced tonight. Local draft boards, the shipping board, and the Emergency Fleet corporation are coöperating to get at the thousands of draft age men who tried to escape the call to service by obtaining employment with the Emergency Fleet corporation, Crowder said.

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—Miss Grace Chester of Wheaton, Ill., was the sponsor at the launching today of the 10,000 ton steel cargo ship at the Sparrows Point yards of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding corporation. The ship was named in honor of Wheaton, the home town of Chairman Hurley of the United States Shipping board.

CUT FOOD HALF POUND A WEEK TO WIN IN 1919

Hoover Says Scanter Table Will End the War.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—Food Administrator Hoover today called upon the nation to aid the American and allied armies to strike the final blow in 1919 by adopting a new food conservation program that will entirely eliminate waste and overfeeding.

The war can be won and will be won next year if the American people, out of their food economies, will save the food necessary to maintain the strength of the armies and allied civil populations, Mr. Hoover declared.

If, by failure to save food and enable the United States to increase by one-third its food shipments to France, the war is prolonged to 1920, the nation is warned it will cost an additional million American lives.

Eliminate All Waste.

It is necessary, the food administrator said, to increase American food shipments to Europe by 5,730,000 tons next year. To do this the nation is asked to [illegible] a week for each person. No wheatless or meatless days and no rationing system will be necessary if the nation entirely eliminates waste.

"There is no prospect of a proper ending of the war before the campaign of the summer of 1919," said Mr. Hoover. "To attain victory we must place in France 3,500,000 fighting men with the greatest mechanical equipment that has ever been given to any army. While we expect the position on the western front may be improved, from a military point of view, between now and then, there can be no hope of a consummation of the end that we must secure until another year has gone by.

A Question for Every Day.

"If we are to accomplish this end in 1919 we will save a million American lives that will be expended if we have to continue until 1920. To give this final blow in 1919 we have not only to find the men, shipping, and equipment for this gigantic army, but this army, the allied armies, and the allied civil population must have ample food in the meantime if we are to maintain their strength. We can do all these things and I believe we can bring this dreadful business to an end if every man, woman, and child in the United States tests every action every day and hour by the one touchstone—does this or that contribute to winning the war?

"The food program is no small part of this issue. To provide ships for our army we have not only to build all that we can but we must have the help of allied shipping. In order that the allies may provide this they must take food ships from the more distant markets and place them upon the shorter run to the United States. We must decrease our imports of sugar, coffee, and tropical fruits.

What Our Allies Require.

"Under these conditions the demand upon us is for larger supplies. The conferences on food supply and shipping we have held in Europe enable us to estimate our burden. Compared with previous years, the allied civilians and armies, our own armies, the Belgian relief, and certain neutrals who are dependent on us require the following round amounts from us:

Meats and fats (beef, pork, dairy, poultry, and vegetable oil products)	2,600,000	1,050,000
Breadstuffs (wheat and substitutes in terms of grain)	10,400,000	3,600,000
Sugar from U. S. and West Indies)	1,850,000	330,000
Totals	17,550,000	5,730,000

Eat at a Common Table.

"Even this program means further denial by the allies next year. They are making this sacrifice in the common cause. We must maintain the health and strength of every human being among them or they will be unable to put their full strength alongside our own in the supreme effort. At the president's direction, I have as-

Steam Fills Ship; 5 May Die; 100 Leap

New York, Sept. 21.—An explosion of steam pipes aboard the steamer Julia Stafford, headed for Brooklyn late today with 200 men and women workers from the Standard shipyard and Shooters Island, resulted in the injury of many of the shipbuilders.

Fifteen of the victims have been removed to a hospital on Staten Island, of whom five are not expected to live.

A complete list of the missing will not be available until the workers have been checked up Monday when they return to the shipyard, the police said late tonight.

Steam Sweeps Main Deck.

Explosion of the steam pipes sent a cloud of steam over the main deck of the steamer, where most of the passengers were standing. Some were knocked down by the force of the blast. Others were thrown from their feet and trampled on in the panic which ensued.

The police estimate that at least 100 persons jumped into the water, some wearing lifebelts and others without belts.

The steamer Ursula, also loaded with shipyard workers, and which was following the Stafford, put out boats and picked up a number of those struggling in the water. Other boats hurried to the scene and joined in the rescue work.

Rush Injured Ashore.

A power launch rushed the men injured by the explosion to the shore, where ambulances were waiting to take them to the hospital. [illegible] Richmond county authorities will start an investigation of the explosion Monday, it was announced.

SOLDIER SHOOTS AT TROTZKY, BUT HIS AIM IS POOR

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 21.—An attempt has been made at Kursk to assassinate Leon Trotzky, the Bolshevik minister of war and marine, according to a dispatch sent from Kiev by the correspondent of the Leipsig Abend Zeitung. The correspondent says a soldier fired twice at Trotzky, but missed his mark.

YANK TRAWLER, TORPEDOED, SINKS 85 MILES OFF U. S.

An Atlantic Port, Sept. 21.—The American steam trawler Kingfisher was torpedoed and sunk eighty-five miles off the north Atlantic coast last night. Capt. Riley and his crew of twenty-six were rescued and reached shore today.

The trawler was on the fishing banks when the enemy submarine appeared.

Advices received here tonight indicated that the torpedo was fired without warning. No one was injured, and the captain and crew quickly took to the boats. They reported that the submarine did not approach them after they had left their vessel and that there was no shell fire. The weather was moderate and the men were able to row to land.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—George E. Scott of Chicago, who has been serving as acting general manager of the American Red Cross since the departure of Harvey D. Gibson to assume charge of the Red Cross work in France, has been appointed general manager by the war council.

Mr. Scott is first vice president of the American Steel Foundries, which has its main offices in Chicago, with nine plants located in different parts of the country. He came to the Red Cross as a full time volunteer in June, 1917, just as the organization was being extended and placed on a wartime footing.

Maj. Theodore Roosevelt Made Lieutenant Colonel

New York, Sept. 21.—Maj. Theodore Roosevelt Jr. has been made lieutenant colonel of his regiment, according to a cable message received by his father today. Lieut. Col. Roosevelt was wounded several weeks ago and taken to Paris. He was decorated for bravery.

ALLIES' DRIVES CUT BIG HOLE IN HUN ARMY

British and French Bite Deeper Into Hindenburg Line.

BULLETIN.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—German prisoners taken by the Americans, French, and English since July 18 number approximately 200,000, according [illegible] French advices. The cable [illegible] French war correspon[illegible] the effect that the Ge[illegible] oners have fallen into entente hands at the rate of not far from 100,000 a month and that the German losses in killed and wounded have been heavier than has been generally reported.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Allied troops are progressing satisfactorily in breaking down the defenses of St. Quentin. On the north the British are fighting in the Hindenburg positions and pressing toward the canal between St. Quentin and Cambrai, while on the south the French are moving forward steadily.

For a stretch of more than ten miles north of St. Quentin the British now hold the dominating hills, and the present local action in the region west of Catelet probably is for the purpose of further improving the situation in anticipation of a great assault against the Hindenburg line.

The main enemy defenses in the region between Cambrai and St. Quentin, both of which are threatened by the present British operations, are based on the canal, highway, and railroad running north and south on an average of about two miles from Field Marshal Haig's front line.

Hit St. Quentin on Three Sides.

Toward Le Catelet the British are pressing eastward on a front of three miles and are within four miles of the town, one of the important German bases on this front. With the Australians already in the Hindenburg positions, other British forces are rapidly overrunning them north of Hargicourt. West of St. Quentin the French are within two miles of the outskirts, while on the south they are forcing the Germans to give up important villages and other positions.

St. Quentin as a result of the week's operations is in a more serious position from the enemy viewpoint than probably at any time since the beginning of the war. A further push eastward by the British from their newly won height positions on the northwest will virtually place the allies on three sides of the town. St. Quentin is an important outpost of Laon, perhaps the most important enemy base in northern France. The French on the south are ten miles from Laon and are hammering it with their big guns.

Southwest of Metz, where the French and Americans recently cleared the St. Mihiel salient, the Germans have started further fires. Soldiers and wagon trains have been seen moving northward and it is believed the Germans are preparing for a possible allied attack or a retirement on their own initiative.

BRITISH WIN NEAR EPEHY.

LONDON, Sept. 21.—The British again have advanced their lines east of Epehy and near Hargicourt, midway between St. Quentin and Cambrai, according to Field Marshal Haig's communication issued tonight. A number of additional prisoners were taken.

The Germans launched counter attacks in considerable strength later in the day, but the British were able to hold a large part of their gains.

Australians Take Prisoners.

The Australian troops, holding the tip of the wedge, which Field Marshal Haig's men are driving into the Hindenburg line, also pushed forward in the Hargicourt sector and took a number of prisoners.

The attack against the Hindenburg lines was resumed this morning. With the first rush the British pushed ahead their front northwest of Bellinglise.

North of Gauche wood, west of Villers-Guislain, one of the British advanced posts has been pressed back slightly.

Gain in Flanders.

Further steps forward have been taken by the British on the Flanders front. Field Marshal Haig's statement today announces the improvement of the British position west of Messines to the south of Ypres, where a strong point was captured.

A British detachment of seven men was surrounded and was believed to have been captured when the Germans took Moeuvres. Their post was in the northern part of the village and they held it for two days during the German occupation, inflicting losses on the enemy.

When the village was retaken the entire party rejoined its unit without loss.

French Capture Benay.

PARIS, Sept. 21.—In their drive for the outflanking of St. Quentin on the south, the French captured the town of Benay last night and made progress north of that place, says today's war office announcement.

At Castres, where the French are only slightly more than two miles from St. Quentin, a German counterattack was repulsed.

The Germans appeared to be hastening the removal of the civil population of St. Quentin and fires have been observed in different parts of the city, says Marcel Hutin in the Echo de Paris. The Germans, he adds, are placing numerous batteries in St. Quentin.

Germans Admit Withdrawal.

BERLIN, Sept. 21.—[Via London.]—German advanced troops south of the Somme in the region of St. Quentin were withdrawn Friday, says the official statement from army headquarters today. Essigny-le-Grand was evacuated. North of St. Quentin, it is added, a British attack failed.

Admission is made in the statement that the French have gained a footing on the high ridges west of Jouy, north of the Aisne.

"In front of our Siegfried positions between Gouzeaucourt and Hargicourt, a large centralized attack delivered by the English failed, with very heavy losses to the enemy," says the German official communication issued this evening.

Meet Stubborn Resistance.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 21, 8 p. m.—[By the Associated Press.]—Heavy counter attacks have been delivered by the Germans between Vendhuile and Bellicourt against the English battalions attacking west of Epehy, Lempire, and Hargicourt, on the left of the Australians.

The British forces have yielded part of their gains at some places, but a net advance of a quarter of a mile in depth has been made and numerous machine gun redoubts have been stormed.

Fight in Bad Storm.

Progress has already been made in spite of the bad weather, and some 400 prisoners were taken from the fortified farms and sunken roads between the new British battle front and the Siegfried trenches.

It rained heavily during the night and at the time of the assembling of the assaulting troops, but the concentration was carried out without delay under heavy bombardment. The enemy was plainly apprehensive of a further defeat, and his divisions were waiting for the British advance.

The ground over which the battle was fought was broken and very difficult to clear. The gullies were full of machine guns and a slight ridge which stood between the advancing British and the Hindenburg defenses gave the enemy a considerable advantage.

Capture Ruins of Church.

During the night a local attack on the front of La Bassee yielded the chateau and ruins of the church of the village of Violaines, which is less than a mile northwest of La Bassee, together with 130 prisoners.

Between La Bassee and Lens the enemy shows great nervousness. A hostile attack delivered yesterday around Hulluch was intended to test the British strength.

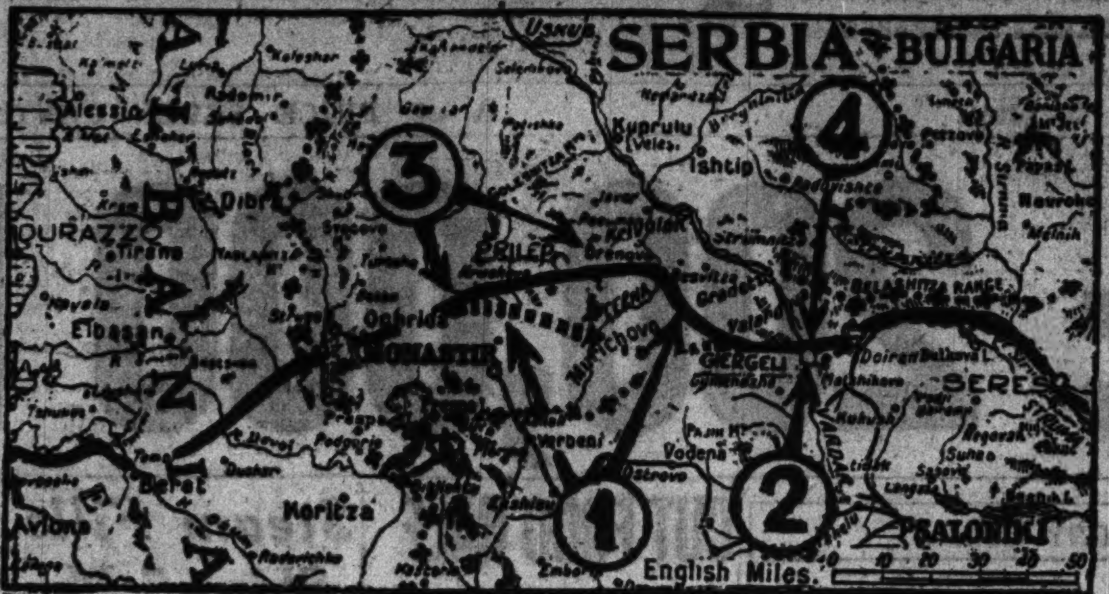
The thorough clearance of the ruins of Moeuvres, on the Canal du Nord, has released a party of Scottish machine gunners, who had been cut off since the German counter attack into the village Wednesday night. A corporal and six men of the Highland light infantry, although wholly surrounded by Germans, held out, fighting continuously for forty-eight hours and inflicting severe casualties on the enemy, who was unable to dislodge them.

The Scots were nearly exhausted for lack of food and water, when their British comrades drove back into the ruins and found them still crouched around their machine guns.

DESERTER HELD FOR HOLDUP.

James M. Farrell, 40 years old, said to be a deserter from the Canadian Expeditionary Forces, was held to the grand jury in bond of $10,000 by Judge [illegible] yesterday on a charge of assault with intent to kill. Farrell, it is said, took $40 from William J. Courcy at the point of a revolver in a saloon at 300 East Thirty-fifth street.

HEAVY FIGHTING ON EASTERN FRONTS

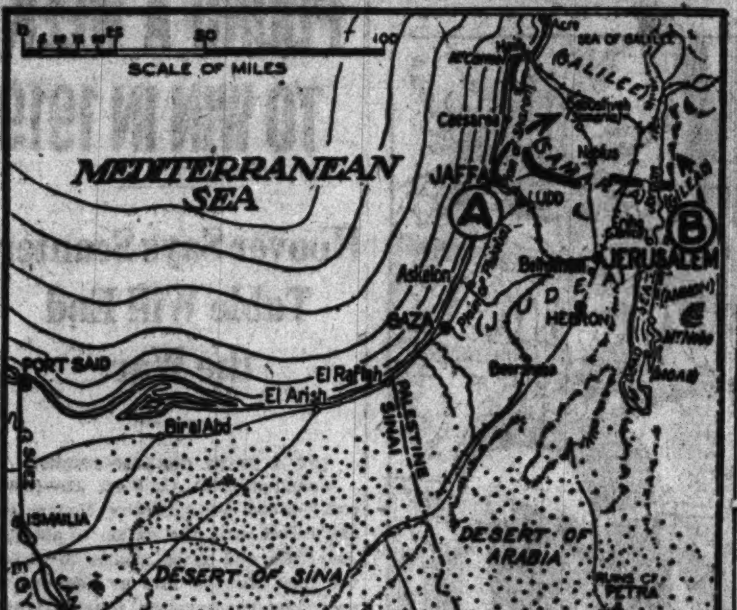


1—Serbians and French continue their advance north and northeast of Monastir, progress being made along the Cerna river and between the Cerna and Vardar rivers.

2—British and Greeks sustain their gains against heavy counter attacks by the Bulgarians.

3—Bulgarians report that they repulsed heavy attacks by allies on their new positions north of Monastir. East of the Cerna the Bulgarians report stiff fighting, with alternating success.

4—Between Gievgeli and Lake Doiran the Bulgars report British and Greeks succeeded in penetrating their advanced trenches, but were again driven out.



A—The Turkish army in Palestine has suffered a severe defeat by the British and friendly Arabs, who took 3,000 prisoners. Allied cavalry is now operating behind the Turkish lines. The whole Turkish front in Palestine is in danger of collapsing.

B—Arab forces under the king of Hedjaz are fighting the Turks west of the Jordan river and are preventing them from escaping into the Arabian desert.

BRITISH PAPERS SEE BEGINNING OF END FOR TURK

LONDON, Sept. 21.—[British wireless admiralty.]—In a leading article on Gen. Allenby's success in Palestine the Morning Post says:

"If the stroke fulfills its promise the way to Aleppo is clear of the only strong element of resistance in sight, and hopes of the Turks not only in Palestine itself but in Mesopotamia also are at an end. This is, therefore, an important victory which may have decisive results as far as the war in Asia Minor is concerned.

"The German road to the east, German control of Asia Minor, a German attack on the Suez canal and Egypt, and all these formidable projects which once sounded so promising are now visibly crumbing into ruin."

"Gen. Allenby's attack in Palestine," the Pall Mall Gazette says, "has in its opening phase been as thoroughly successful as an operation could well be and opens promise of a really striking victory. The Turks are stubborn fighters, but their army at Schechem (thirty miles north of Jerusalem) is in a trap from which it looks like being extremely difficult to escape."

WILL SEND QUILT TO GEN. PERSHING

Gen. Pershing has a birthday present awaiting him in Chicago. It is a solid silk quilt, the handiwork of Mrs. M. T. Hinckley, 76 years old, 345 East Forty-sixth street, and will go forward to France as soon as the necessary requisition arrives from "over there."

Mrs. Hinckley spent three and a half months at work on the general's birthday gift. Its center is an American flag with the inscription "Liberty" beneath it. Surrounding the Stars and Stripes are the flags of France, Italy, Belgium, and Great Britain. There are 195 separate pieces to the quilt.

"I haven't a son 'over there'—you see, my youngest is 54 years old," Mrs. Hinckley said yesterday. "I thought a nice silk quilt that he could throw over him when he took a nap would be a fine present in honor of his 58th birthday, so I set to work on it. I then wrote to Gen. March, chief of staff, and arrangements are now being made to have it shipped directly to the general."

Huge Amount of Candy Eaten by U. S. Soldiers

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—That the American soldier has a sweet tooth is demonstrated by war department figures today showing he consumes 630,000 pounds of chocolates, 135,000 pounds of lemon drops, and 440,000 pounds of stick candy monthly.

BARUCH DEFENDS RESTRICTION ON BUILDING WORK

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—Chairman Baruch of the War Industries board defended the right of that board to restrict private and public building operations as a war measure in a statement tonight, replying to a senate resolution by Senator Calder of New York.

Senator Calder said orders by the Baruch board would destroy the building industry, representing an investment of $4,000,000,000, and that the people were entitled to know whether it was "necessary in order to win the war to destroy this great industry."

Chairman Baruch said it was clear that there is not enough iron, steel, transportation facilities, fuel, and labor to supply war needs and the nonwar needs also. The war needs of the United States and the allies already exceed 21,000,000 tons of steel for the last six months of the current year, Mr. Baruch explained, and this country's output for the first six months was only 17,000,000 tons.

Colby, Former Hoover Aid, Enlists in Tank Corps

Orange, N. J., Sept. 21.—Announcement was made here tonight that former State Senator Edward Colby of West Orange, who several months ago investigated for Federal Food Administrator Hoover conditions in Belgium and France, had enlisted in the United States tank corps. He will begin training at Gettysburg on Oct. 1. He is 41 years old.

MORE KULTUR

Kaiser Welcomes Opening of Another Science for War College.

AMSTERDAM, Friday, Sept. 20.—On the occasion of the opening of Dorpat university, Emperor William, according to the Dusseldorf Nachrichten, sent the following message to the rector and professors:

"Among the changing events and impressions of the war which the German fatherland has been forced to wage in defense of its sacred soil and its culture against a world of enemies, the liberation of our German brothers in the Baltic lands from foreign oppression has given me very special joy. My joy is increased by the fact that the venerable alma mater of Dorpat has so soon been awakened to new activity as the center of intellectual life and that a valuable source of strength for prosperity is regained by the old German kulturland."

First Caproni Plane Built in U. S. Makes Good in Test

Hempstead, N. Y., Sept. 21.—The first American-made Caproni biplane made its first trial flight at Mineola flying field today and made good.

Capt. D'Annunzio, brother of the famous poet-aviator of Italy, was a passenger, as was Lieut. J. Harris, U. S. A., representing Maj. Gen. Kenly. Lieut. J. Tarvis piloted the giant machine.

Although the big flier carried 1,900 pounds of dead weight, representing bombs, besides its three passengers, and 410 gallons of gasoline, sufficient for five hours' flight, it rose 14,000 feet in 27½ minutes.

SERBIANS GAIN 9 MILES; BULGAR LINE SHATTERED

Ten Villages Liberated in Macedonia; French and Greeks Win.

LONDON, Sept. 21.—The Serbian troops east of Monastir have advanced more than nine miles in one day and now are less than eight miles from the main highway connecting Prilep with the Vardar river.

The Serbian official statement reads:

"Our indefatigable troops continued to advance and have fought northward in one day more than nine miles. The infantry has passed the line Krnyovo-Strigovo-Dregojel-Poloshko. The cavalry is north of this line. More than ten villages were liberated in one day. In the bend of the Cerna we have taken the village of Godiyak."

[Krnyovo is nine miles southwest of Domirkapu, the nearest point on the Vardar river and the Uskup-Saloniki railroad to the advancing Serbian line. Should the railroad be reached here the Bulgarians fighting the British and Greeks around Lake Doiran would be cut off from their base of supplies and reinforcements.]

The Bulgar Report.

An official communication issued by the Bulgarian war office on Thursday and received here today says:

"North of Monastir the enemy, after artillery barrage, tried to penetrate our trenches, but was repulsed.

"East of the Cerna there was stiff fighting throughout the day, with alternating successes. Between the villages of Gievgeli and Lake Doiran the enemy after desperate fighting succeeded in penetrating a portion of our advanced trenches, but was driven out with considerable losses by a dashing counter attack, leaving prisoners in our hands.

"Defending their positions in obstinate hand to hand fighting the last two days, our troops have inflicted heavy casualties on the enemy."

French and Greeks Win Town.

PARIS, Sept. 21.—The French war office issued this statement today on operations in Macedonia:

"Eastern theater, Sept. 19.—In spite of the vigorous resistance of the enemy rear guards, the offensive between the Cerna and Vardar rivers continued to progress today. Allied cavalry have reached the region of Poloshko. Serbian forces have gained a foothold on the left bank of the Cerna in the region of Dunye.

"The Serbians have succeeded in accentuating their progress in the direction of Konopishta, where they have traversed particularly difficult ground on the range of hills between the Belashnitsa river and the Boshava. French and Greek forces have taken the village of Tushin and have gained a foothold in the town of Dzena.

Violent Counter Attacks Beaten.

"Because of difficult communications over the vast amount of ground covered by the operation, it is not possible as yet to estimate the number of prisoners taken, but it is known that 5,000 prisoners and eighty cannon have been captured.

"The offensive of the Greeks and British in the Lake Doiran region, which has been marked by furious battles, continues to progress. Violent counter attacks have been made in vain by Bulgarian forces."

Italians Take Prisoners in Albania and at Home

ROME, Sept. 21.—Local fighting on the Italian and Albanian fronts was reported by the Italian war office today.

"In the Ledro valley an enemy observation post was driven back, leaving dead and prisoners in our hands," the statement said.

"In the Tonale and Sella regions and on the Piave islets reconnoitering parties brought back material. A hostile airplane was brought down.

"In Albania, west of Teeri, in the Janica valley, there were patrol encounters in which we took prisoners."

BATTLE STATEMENTS

AMERICAN REPORT

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—The war department received the following report from Gen. Pershing tonight:

AMERICAN HEADQUARTERS, Sept. 21.—Aside from patrol encounters and increased aviation activity in the Woevre, the day was uneventful in the sectors occupied by our troops.

FRENCH REPORT

PARIS, Sept. 21.—The French official statement says:

During the night the French troops operating in the region of St. Quentin captured Benay and made progress north of that village. A counter attack by the enemy upon Castres was repulsed.

There was activity by our own and the enemy's artillery in the region of the plateau north of the Aisne.

In Lorraine two attempts by the Germans upon our posts at Arracourt and Ancervillers (northeast of Luneville) were without result.

The text of an earlier statement reads:

Our progress east of Essigny-le-Grand has been accentuated and prisoners have been taken. Artillery activity has been maintained in the region of St. Quentin and north of the Aisne. The day was calm on the rest of the front.

BRITISH REPORT

LONDON, Sept. 21.—The British war office issued this communication from Field Marshal Haig tonight:

In a minor operation undertaken by us this morning east of Epehy English troops successfully advanced their line after heavy fighting. Strong opposition was encountered at all points, and later in the day the enemy launched a number of counter attacks of considerable strength. In spite of this resistance our troops made substantial progress on the whole of the front of their attack.

In conjunction with the attack the Australian troops made further progress in a completely successful operation in the Hargicourt sector, capturing a number of prisoners.

EARLY REPORT

On the occasion of the hostile attack on Moeuvres on Tuesday a corporal and six men of the Highland light infantry, forming the garrison of one of our outposts north of the village, were surrounded and believed to have been captured. During the two days which the Germans were in occupation of Moeuvres this party maintained its position with great gallantry and inflicted many casualties. On the night of Thursday-Friday, when Moeuvres was retaken by us, the whole party regained its unit without loss.

Yesterday fresh attacks against our posts north of Moeuvres were repulsed.

In the evening the enemy heavily bombarded our positions in the neighborhood of Gauche wood and under cover of this bombardment pressed back slightly one of our advanced posts north of the wood.

This morning fighting recommenced in the sector east of Epehy.

We improved our position slightly during the night west of Messines, capturing a strong German point and several prisoners. Progress was made southeast of Ypres.

GERMAN REPORT

BERLIN, via London, Sept. 21.—The German war office issued this statement today:

East of Merckem a Belgian partial attack was repulsed. There has been lively reconnoitering activity between the Lys and the Scarpe. During the repulse of British battalions which thrust forward north of La Bassee we took fifty prisoners.

Between Gouzeaucourt and the Somme there was strong artillery activity at times. A British partial attack northwest of Bellicourt failed.

South of the Somme we withdrew our advanced troops, which had been left far in front of the position, back to our position, thus evacuating Essigny-le-Grand.

[French troops occupied Essigny-le-Grand Thursday night, the French war office statement of Friday announced. Since then the French have advanced east of Essigny and also have taken Benay, to the southeast.]

Between Vauxaillon and Jouy (northeast of Soissons) enemy attacks in the evening were preceded by vigorous artillery fire. The enemy gained a footing on the high ridges west of Jouy. Elsewhere he was repulsed.

Baku in Flames After Capture by Turk Forces

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 21.—Explosions are occurring in the Caspian seaport of Baku, in Trans-Caucasia, and the town is on fire, according to a Moscow telegram to the Russian embassy in Berlin, which is printed in Vorwaerts.

(British and other troops of the allies recently evacuated Baku, and the town was occupied by the Turks.)

Trade Treaty with America Enthuses Danish People

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 21.—The announcement that a commercial agreement with America has been signed is greeted with utmost satisfaction by the press and people of all political faiths. It is especially noteworthy that the Socialdemokraten, which has repeatedly criticised the conduct of the negotiations, has only words of unqualified praise for the result attained.

REBELLION BOILS AGAINST ARMY RULE IN GERMANY

Centrists Tomorrow May Help Socialists Form a New Government.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 21.—Certain German newspapers, following the lead of the Leipzig Tageblatt, are boldly discussing the overthrow of the German government through joint action of the majority parties.

These factions have evidenced their determination to form at once a parliamentary government that will be independent of the domination of army headquarters.

Depends on Centrists.

The newspapers generally concede that the situation rests now with the Centrists, who are expected to decide which way they will throw their influence at a special meeting to be held Monday.

The Social Democrats plainly no longer have confidence in Chancellor von Hertling, and even the Progressives believe the aged diplomat is unfitted to bring about peace.

Attacks Hun Government.

AMSTERDAM, Holland, Friday, Sept. 20.—Philipp Scheidemann, socialist leader, in the Vorwaerts, the socialist organ, makes a slashing attack on the government, asking whether it is stricken with blindness and what will happen should the entente allies decline a peace of understanding and endeavor to enforce a dictated peace. Scheidemann argues that a government which has weakly avoided conflicts with the military and politicians and by short sighted policy has mobilized against Germany the Poles, Lithuanians, Courlanders, and others liberated from the Russian yoke, would be unfitted for the needful organization of a national defense calling for the last ounce of strength in defense of the fatherland.

Food Riots in Salzburg.

ZURICH, Switzerland, Sept. 21.—Serious food riots continue at Salzburg, according to Munich papers. Rioters attacked the government palace and broke down the doors, whereupon the gendarmes fired, killing or wounding several. Hotels have been looted, food shops raided, and army stores plundered.

CHICAGO FLYER KNIFES HIS WAY FROM GERMANY

BY FARMER MURPHY.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]
[Copyright: 1918: By the Tribune Company.]

PARIS, Sept. 21.—Sergt. Pilot Everett T. Buckley of Chicago, first American aviator to escape from a German prisoner camp and the only American airman in Nungesser's famous chasse squadron, told today for the first time a complete story of his experiences from the moment has was shot down over Dun sur la Meuse, Sept. 6 last year, to the time of his escape into Swiss territory, near Singen, on July 7, this year.

He Is Coming Home.

Since his return to France and safety Buckley has been with his escadrille at the front. He uniformly refused to tell of his thrilling experiences. Not even his nearest relatives and friends in Chicago know the details. Soon they will learn, however, that for his work as a flyer and for his dash out of Germany the young aviator received the French military medal, the French service medal, and the Croix de Guerre with palms.

What is more, they will shortly see the hero himself, for as soon as Lieut. Camplan, also one of Nungesser's squadron, recovers from his wounds in a Paris hospital where he is being treated, the two will sail for America with their Spad mechanics and will show the American people the latest in chasse and combat and fancy flying.

Joined Army in 1916.

It was on Jan. 2, 1916, that Buckley, then fresh from the University of Illinois, joined the foreign legion of France with the intention of qualifying as a flyer. After a thorough course in a French aviation school he was assigned to Nungesser's traveling squadron, known as escadrille Spad, which corresponded to the German traveling circus headed by the late Baron Richthofen. He and his French comrades, while attached to the Lafayette flying corps, had a roving commission which took them along the western front, but it was in the Verdun region that the American volunteer was to meet the biggest experience of his life.

Went Out to Bomb.

"It was the day before I was knocked down and made prisoner that I went out with our squadron to bomb Dun sur la Meuse," Buckley said. "After an exciting afternoon I became separated from my patrol, and machine trouble made me land around Menehoule. My comrades of the escadrille and American boys of the Lafayette flying corps had begun to consider me a goner when I turned up at the airdrome late that night. Well, they were so glad I was safe they promptly made me eat one of the greatest duck and wine dinners I ever attempted.

"At 11 o'clock the next morning, with the taste of those juicy ducks still lingering in my mouth, I went up over Dun sur La Meuse with a patrol composed of Commandant Fequant, Capt. Lamy, Lieut. Camplan, and two others.

"We were flying at a height of 4,800 meters in the midst of a heavy stretch of clouds. Fequant and I suddenly lost our patrol. We had been twenty-two kilometers behind the German lines. Before long I lost sight of Fequant. For fifteen minutes I flew alone, trying this way and that to emerge from the cloud bank.

Sees Three Foe Planes.

"I had nearly given up hope of ever getting out of the clouds and regaining my bearings when I caught sight of Fequant. Three Albatross scout planes were just over him, but he didn't see them. I flew in between him and the boches, then turned up and attacked them. By this time Fequant's machine was damaged and he slipped down into the clouds beneath me. I saw no more of him. I must either have killed or damaged the first boche I attacked, for within what seemed like the twinkle of an eye he went crashing to the ground. I learned later he was dead.

"Meanwhile the other two Germans fought me for all they were worth. They put my machine full of holes. One of the bullets hit me in the stomach. At the same moment another machine gun bullet—it was explosive—smashed my gasoline tank so the gasoline flew over my face. Sick from the wound in my stomach, the gasoline splashing over me blinded and choked me. I lost control of my Spad and felt myself whirling down through space. I glanced back and saw my fusillage ablaze.

Germans Shell Him.

"Then a thing happened for which I shall never forgive the Germans. They saw me come down vertically, my machine out of control, the tail afire. In spite of that they opened a heavy barrage fire from the ground.

"This angered me and I made my last effort to get the machine to work, but it was too late. I realized I was little more than twenty meters from the ground. I knew it to be hopeless to make a landing, for the ground was covered with shell holes. So at the last instant I hit my combination button and my belts flew off. All I know of what happened when I hit the ground was that my machine made several somersaults, throwing me clear out of my seat. When I came to after my spell of unconsciousness I saw many Germans standing around me, one of them with a sword in his hand, bending over me.

"They took me to Montmedy and put me in a dark cell of Montmedy fortress, where I lay for eighteen days on bread and water. No medical treatment was given me in all this time. Had it not been for a French medical officer in the same fortress, I might have died there.

Sent to Camp.

"From the fortress I was sent to the officers' camp at Karlsruhe, where I stayed for a month and a half. Fortunately the French officer was transferred to Karlsruhe at the same time, so I didn't have to worry about my stomach wound. But already I had made up my mind to get out of Germany. From Karlsruhe I was sent to Mannheim, then to Stuttgart, then to Cologne, and later to Giessen and Donningen.

"From the last place I was transferred to a camp near Heuberg. I realized my opportunity was at hand and I made my preparations.

"But all my plans went to smash when I was sent to Russian Poland near Warsaw with a working party. For several weeks I had to forsake the idea of escape. Then, however, we went back to Heuberg.

Four Attempts Fail.

"My wound was healing to such an extent I felt I could undertake a long hike through the Black forest. My three first attempts to cross over into Switzerland failed. Twice I got away from Heuberg and got as far as the Swiss frontier, but each time the German guards caught me just as I was about to reach freedom. The third attempt didn't even take me that far, for I had to turn back before I reached the frontier. For a while I was disgusted and discouraged, but the food and treatment I got as an American volunteer with the French soon made me wish for liberty harder than ever before. By this time the Germans were anxious to make sure I did not get away. It probably was with this intention that they sent me to Veringenstadt, about 120 kilometers from the Swiss frontier.

"It was now or never, I thought. Late at night on July 1 I started out. All I had on me was a map, some letters from my father and friends in Chicago, and a fine big pocketknife which I got from a German in one of the camps and which I wished to keep as a souvenir.

"For six days I kept on my way through the Black forest, walking by day and hiding by night, with raw potatoes picked off the fields as my only food. By the evening of July 6 my map showed me I was within a few hours' walk from Switzerland and safety.

On Last Lap.

"I started on the last lap as soon as it was dark enough to venture from my hiding place. Little by little, as cautiously as possible, I approached my goal. Just as I was about to rush over the frontier at a spot which seemed unguarded a man's voice from the darkness commanded me to halt. The voice seemed to come from the left.

"I went straight ahead, but suddenly I bumped up against a man in uniform armed with a rifle. It was a landwehr sentry.

"Dark as it was he must have recognized me as an escaping prisoner, for without an instant's hesitation he pointed his bayonet at my chest. With a swift movement of my left arm I forced the weapon aside and leaped on him with hands and feet, but I was exhausted after six foodless days of tramping, and I could see the sentry was getting the best of me as we grappled with each other on the ground.

"My German pocketknife was my only hope, so I used it."

By 2 o'clock in the morning of July 7 Sergt. Buckley was on Swiss soil. The next day he changed into civilian clothes. At Berne, where he went next, he was welcomed and taken care of by Capt. Schelleng, well known American musician who is attached to the American embassy there. On his arrival in Paris the young aviator reported to Maj. Edmund Gros, head of the liaison section, at American aviation headquarters.

With Lieut. Camplan, one of the aces of the escadrille, Spad Buckley will spend about two months on his tour of the United States. Exhibition flights to be given by the two airmen are being arranged by the French aviation authorities.

Sergt. Buckley, who is 25 years old, was born at Kilburn, Ill., where his parents still live. For years, however, Buckley has lived in Chicago.

CHRISTMAS FOR THE BOYS IN FRANCE

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—American soldiers in France will be restricted to one Christmas package each under an order issued by the war department today. The gross weight must be no more than three pounds.

Gen. March, the chief of staff, issued the following statement:

"The war department authorizes relatives or friends of officers and soldiers in France to send Christmas packages which will be of standard size and weight, one to each individual in the American expeditionary force. A standard contained to be used will be 9x4x3 inches and the weight limit will be three pounds. Standard containers of the size indicated may be had by application to the local Rew Cross chapters throughout the country.

"In order to insure the arrival of these Christmas packages in France and their distribution to the soldiers by Christmas all such packages must be mailed on or before Nov. 15, 1918.

"In order to insure the limitation of one package per man, which in itself will consume a very large amount of tonnage, a plan has been worked out by which Gen. Pershing is forwarding to the war department coupons on which are inscribed the correct names and addresses of the members of the American expeditionary forces. These coupons will be distributed, and no package will be forwarded without a coupon."

STARVE TO DEATH IN STREETS OF PERSIAN CITIES

New York, Sept. 21.—Horrible conditions of starvation in Teheran and other Persian cities are pictured in a telegram to the Armenian committee for Armenian and Syrian relief from Mrs. Eva Ballis Douglas, who has just arrived from Persia at Portland, Ore. Mrs. Douglas has returned to recuperate from typhus, with which her husband was also stricken and died while they were administering aid to refugees driven out by the Turks.

"In Teheran and other cities," her message read, "men, women, and children are prostrated in the streets from exhaustion and are dying. In Hamadan the head and arms of two children remained to tell the story of bodies that were probably eaten after they died from starvation."

British Casualties for Week Totaled 22,762

LONDON, Sept. 21.—British casualties reported during the week that ended today are as follows: Killed or died of wounds: Officers, 487; men, 3,153. Wounded or missing: Officers, 1,916; men, 17,206. Total, 22,762.

FLEET OF BARGES LEAVES ON FIRST TRIP DOWN CANAL

Great Lakes-Mississippi Link Hailed as Boon to Commerce.

In years to come Sept. 21 may be celebrated as an anniversary, an epoch making day in Chicago's maritime history, for yesterday saw the wedding of the inland rivers and the inland seas. Yesterday the first fleet of barges, under their own power, set out for their maiden journey from Chicago down the drainage canal.

The fleet consisted of one steam barge and two others in tow, loaded with about 800 barrels of salt and a large quantity of rock salt shipped by the Morton Salt company to La Salle, Ill.

It was something of an occasion, for it was the fruition of fifteen years of earnest endeavor by a number of forces which are convinced that the greater expansion of the nation's commerce lies through the building and use of waterways.

See Dream Come True.

The pioneer barge line in Illinois waters is owned by the Illinois Barge and Boat company. Col. E. S. Conway, chairman of the board, was present to see his faith come to a realization, along with other members of the board of water resource advisors and officials of the company.

The little pioneer fleet of barges sailed to the tooting of whistles from pier No. 1, Graham & Morton docks, at 7 o'clock last night. Down the "blue water" and through the locks at Lockport and beyond it will go, tying up at La Salle for unloading.

This done, the little fleet will take on a cargo of coal to bring back to Chicago. The start was made with considerable caution. For instance, the motive barge and the second one carried the cargo. The tail end barge of the train ran empty.

Train Expected Back Today.

It's for this reason—the inland waters to be traversed are uncharted. There may be hiden reefs. It is planned, if the loaded boats go aground, to have an "empty" handy to lighter to. All going well, good time is expected. The management looks for the barge train to come back up the curling waters of the Sanitary district canal today.

"We believe and have believed for many years," Col. Conway said, as the barges vanished in the growing darkness, "that the improvement of our rivers and canalization where necessary, to unite and complete inland waterway systems, is absolutely necessary to the larger and more complete development of our country.

"It is also our firm belief that an adequate barge and boat canal between the great lakes and the Mississippi river is of infinitely greater value to the United States as a whole than the building of the Panama canal."

British Monitor Sunk; 20 Dead, 57 Missing

LONDON, Sept. 21.—A British monitor was sunk Monday as it was lying in harbor, the admiralty announced today. One officer and nineteen men were killed, and fifty-seven men are missing and are presumed to have been killed.

CHICAGO VIA BERLIN

"That's My Route," Carter H. Harrison Says Before He Leaves for France to Engage in Red Cross Work.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—Carter H. Harrison, Chicago's former mayor left Washington tonight "for Chicago, via Berlin."

Mr. Harrison has been here conferring with Red Cross officials preparatory to sailing for France, where he will engage in special Red Cross war work.

"I am leaving Washington tonight," Mr. Harrison said, "for Philadelphia to visit my son, and will return to Chicago some day, but not until I have been to Berlin. Chicago, via Berlin, is my route."

Chicago's mayor had a Red Cross uniform in his luggage, but said he would not don it until he landed on the soil of France.

"No, I haven't had any picture taken of myself in uniform," he said, "and I won't until I get to France. Then I'll get all dolled up, have the picture taken in the uniform and send it home—that is, the picture, not the uniform."

BRITISH DOWN 19 FOE PLANES; LOSE 11 OF OWN

LONDON, Sept. 21.—Nineteen German airplanes have been accounted for by British airmen, while the British themselves have lost eleven machines, according to Field Marshal Haig's report tonight dealing with aviation. The text of the report follows:

"Despite low clouds and frequent showers our airplanes Friday carried out useful work in all departments.

"Sixteen hostile machines were downed and three sent down out of control. Eleven of ours are missing.

"Twenty-six and a half tons of bombs were dropped during the twenty-four hours."

The entente allied independent air force on Friday dropped bombs on the German towns of Mannheim, Karlsruhe, Boulay, Frescaty, and Morhange, according to an official statement issued this evening by the British government. Explosives were dropped on the Lanz works at Mannheim, on wharves and factories at Karlsruhe, on blast furnaces at the Bourbach works, and on airdromes at Boulay, Frescaty, and Morhange.

Roumanian Crown Prince Flees to Southern Russia

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 21.—The Roumanian crown prince has fled from Roumanian territory and arrived in Odessa, according to the Ukrainian newspaper Krewskaia Mysl.

News of the flight of Crown Prince Charles of Roumania follows closely reports that came from German sources of an anti-German outbreak in Roumania, in which Queen Marie, who is an uncompromising sympathizer with the entente, was the prime mover. King Ferdinand was reported to be holding aloof from the movement. Field Marshal von Mackensen, it was stated, was to return to Roumania at once, together with Dr. Solf, the German colonial secretary, presumably to deal with the reported outbreak.

Crown Prince Charles is known to have been in sympathy with the attitude of his mother in her bitter hatred for all things German and quite possibly would have been associated with her in any anti-German agitation.

YANKEE GUNS BEAT 2 ATTACKS ON RIGHT WING

Eight Fires Behind Lines of Germans Point to New Retreat.

BY FRED S. FERGUSON.

[UNITED PRESS STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

WITH THE AMERICANS ON THE METZ FRONT, Sept. 21, noon.—Two heavy German raids, almost large enough to be characterized as attacks, were directed against the right wing of the American line this morning. Both were repulsed.

At 6:40 the Germans laid down a barrage along the Bois de Rappes [on the west bank of the Moselle], on a front of about three kilometers [nearly two miles]. Their infantry started to advance, but the attack broke down under the American fire.

Second Raid Quickly Stopped.

The next raid, coming in practically the same region, also was quickly stopped.

Eight large fires were observed today in the rear of the Germans' lines near Dommartin-La Chaussee [four miles north of Thiaucourt]. Heavy movements of men and wagons were also observed.

These movements may indicate a further retirement of the Germans.

U. S. Lines Stabilized.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY ON THE LORRAINE FRONT, Sept. 21.—[By the Associated Press.]—Both German and American lines south of Metz have now been well stabilized. Occasional clashes have occurred between outposts, but for the present neither side is making any serious effort to alter its position.

The German artillery has continued its harassing fire, but the American guns have far overreached the enemy's front lines, a shell falling occasionally in the vicinity of Metz and serving to emphasize to the Germans the advances the allies have made.

There has been no bombardment of the city of Metz, and a bombardment of that place is not expected during the present operations. The fire against the forts around Metz will be continued at varying intervals.

HUNGARY COUNT SAYS BURIAN WAS PLAYING POLITICS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—Count Michael Karolyi, leader of the opposition in Hungary, according to an official dispatch from Switzerland today, says the Austrian peace note was sent by Count Burian, Austrian minister of foreign affairs, with the sole aim of strengthening his insecure position. Count Karolyi is reported to have said:

"We know the demands of the entente. President Wilson has defined them in fourteen articles. As for the German aims, Vice Chancellor Von Payer, who was certainly aware of the imminent danger of the Ballplatz, elaborated them in his speech at Stuttgart, and this speech makes void in advance any tentative reconciliation between the two groups."

War

THE government does not intend to interfere with the sale of platinum jewelry. However, when the pieces now in work are completed, no more will be made. We shall then prepare our shops to make surgical instruments for the government.

Congress is now working on new taxes that will be added to sales prices of jewelry. Better make selection now, while the stock is large.

"HIS MASTER'S VOICE"

THOUSANDS SEEK ESSENTIAL WORK AS BOMB SHELTER

Draftees' Rush to Escape Army Foiled by New Crowder Ruling.

As a widespread epidemic Spanish influenza hasn't much on draftitis, the new malady with which many Chicago men of a certain type are now afflicted. Its inception is seen in exposure to the second army draft, and its symptoms are frigid vibrations in the region of the spinal column and severe chills from the knees down to the fourteenth phalange.

The matrimonial remedy which was so popular at the time of the first draft back in 1917 having proven inefficacious, the hopeful have turned to quest for occupation in some sort of war work which promises protection from the draft via deferred classification on the ground of essential employment.

Literally thousands have stormed the Chicago offices of the United States employment bureau since the second conscription bill was passed and men from 18 to 21 and from 31 to 45 were required to register for army service. They are all seeking essential employment.

5,000 Applicants in Day.

Yesterday there was a continuous stream of men pouring in and out of the federal employment offices, at 116 North Dearborn street. One day last week 5,000 men applied at that office alone for essential employment. It is notable that the greater percentage of applicants are men whose ages appear to be those included in the second army draft.

"Work or fight"—the majority of Chicago men are strong on the fighting end, but there is a large minority who prefer to work. They seem willing to do any sort of work, even common labor.

Men in search of a bomb shelter are due for a jolt, however. A recent ruling by Provost Marshal General Crowder denies exemption in the draft in cases where it can be established that the men obtained essential work merely to avoid army service.

In justice to the applicants for jobs, however, it is only fair to state that thousands who have applied during the last month and many among those who applied yesterday are not seeking to escape the draft, but are patriotically seeking some sort of work that will aid directly in winning the war.

Case of Mr. B.

There was Mr. B., who came hunting a job the other day. Mr. B. is a traveling salesman, and has been for many years. It's the only job he knows. He was required to register for the draft, but he had every reason to expect deferred classification, for he has a wife and two children dependent upon him for support. At a soldier's salary there would have been something near starvation in the B. family back home.

But Mr. B. has been fussing his head off for some time about the Huns and his inability to do anything in the way of beating them. Yesterday he applied for a job at the federal employment bureau, and last night was shipped out to Hog island to go to work as an unskilled laborer. He's going to help build ships to beat the kaiser. He doesn't know anything about it, and his hands are soft from years of work with his head and tongue, but he's going to do his darndest. His earnings will easily care for his family.

Mr. B. is one of many men who by dire or necessity have sought essential employment with no thought of escaping the draft. But it is also true that the tremendous run on essential jobs started with the second army draft. Not only has the North Dearborn street bureau been swamped but all the branch offices throughout the city have been literally flooded with applications for jobs.

Hard to Classify Men.

"It is impossible to make any estimate of the number of these men who are seeking to escape the draft," Einor Graff of the division of information of the United States employment bureau said yesterday. "Some of them probably are, or they wouldn't have waited so long before trying to get into an essential occupation. On the other hand, I know many men who have secured work through this bureau who simply want to help beat the kaiser and many more who have been forced from their regular employment.

"Many salesmen are out of work and are turning to other occupations. The same is true of men who were employed in other lines of nonessential work. Last month, before the second draft, this bureau alone placed 36,000 men.

Women Rush to Work.

"Our applications from women also are increasing. Housewives are beginning to discover that maids are getting scarce, and the reason is that they are going into some war work that pays more money. Many women are taking clerical positions, but there are thousands throughout the country who are replacing men in factories as lathe hands, etc.

"We have many applications from women whom we cannot accept. Their intentions are good, but they cannot fill the bill. They are the women who have never done any real work. The 'woman of the hour' is the woman who has learned to work, the women from the farms and the sturdy women from the foreign districts."

INDUSTRIAL DRAFT SURVEY BLANK FOR EMPLOYERS

Sample of Form That Will Simplify Work of Exemption Boards and Also Give Industries Fair Deal in Continuing Necessary Operations.

Age	Name	Single	Married	Dependents	CLASSIFICATION Old Draft					CLASSIFICATION New Draft					Position	Years Employed	Industrial Claim	Liable for Service	Likely to Remain
					1	2	3	4	5	1	2	3	4	5
19	Smith, R.	x		None						1A					Messenger	2		x
24	Jones, A.	x		Mother			3B								Bookkeeper	4		x
32	Roe, R.		x	Wife-Child									4A		Rec. Teller	7	x		x
35	Thompson, H.		x	Wife									4A		Cashier	10	x		x
20	Edwards, J.		x	Wife-Mother									4A		Bookkeeper	1		x
39	McDonald, H.	x		None						1A					Janitor	4		x

This table was originated by W. R. Dawes of the Central Trust company, for benefit of employers who are to make an industrial survey for guidance of the draft boards. When these are filled out they will go to a central committee in each industry. If passed upon favorably they will go to the draft boards as basis of claims for deferred classification in order that men may keep positions in which they classed as essential. The Central Trust company will have these blanks for free distribution Monday. The crosses in the filled-in blank, mark the theoretical checking of the employés of a bank. The blank has designation space for classification in both the old and new drafts. For men who were classified in the old draft, the employers are requested to so report on the form. This record, together with the listing of the new draft men, will constitute a complete record of all the employés of a given institution. When all reports are in the basis of the industrial survey will thus include all selectives of 18 to 45 years of age.

McCormick Tells of War to Inspire Bond Buying

German soldiers were marching through a wide gap in the allied lines in March, bands playing, flags flying, everything their way. Then an obscure officer, with two regiments of United States engineers and the wreckage of broken lines, turned the tide.

Medill McCormick, Republican nominee for the United States senate, told the story yesterday to the Irish Fellowship club at Hotel Sherman. "It was a regular Irish trick to turn on the boches," he said. Mr. McCormick heard about it when he was "across."

He also told the club how the attack upon Metz, which began with the taking of the St. Mihiel salient, was mapped with care months ago. There are other maps, he said, and if the soldiers over there are to make the plans of the mappers come true, as they have done so far, America must supply the money.

"Buy the fourth Liberty bonds," he said. "Buy all you can. Buy, so that young Germans will die, instead of young Americans. It is one or the other."

DICKSON ORDERS BOARDS TO RUSH QUESTIONNAIRES

State 3 Days Behind Nation in Handling New Draft Work.

Instructions to local draft boards throughout Illinois to begin mailing out questionnaires at once were issued yesterday by Adjt. Gen. Dickson. The questionnaires are to go to men between the ages of 19 and 36 who registered recently.

Adj. Gen. Dickson announced that the delay, which has put Illinois three days behind other states, was due to the fact the original telegram has never been delivered to him at Springfield. The questionnaires are to go out at the rate of ten per cent a day.

Ruling on Slacker Marriages.

New editions of revised selective service regulations issued yesterday by Provost Marshal General Crowder fix Aug. 5 as the date from which draft boards shall disregard marriages of men who registered on Sept. 12 as ground for exemption. The so-called slacker marriage provision says:

"The fact of dependency resulting from the marriage of a registrant of the class of September, 1918, who has married since the date of the introduction in congress of the act requiring his registration, to wit, Aug. 5, 1918, will be disregarded as a ground for deferred classification."

Orders also were issued by the provost marshal general to draft boards to cease accepting cards of belated registrants on Monday, thus allowing the attaching of serial numbers to the registration to be completed. The date for the order of call drawing can thus be fixed next week.

On account of the delay in sending out questionnaires in Illinois there has been considerable confusion. This was straightened out yesterday through an announcement by H. H. Merrick.

Extension Can Be Asked.

"A number of the local boards in Chicago, in their zeal and enthusiasm, mailed out thousands of questionnaires several days ago," Mr. Merrick said. "A number of the biggest concerns in Chicago have been calling us up, wanting to know what should be done about these questionnaires—whether they should be filled out or held until all are sent out. The seven day limit for answering some of these will expire Monday.

"I am authorized by Maj. Gen. Tolman to state that in cases where the questionnaires have been mailed out it would seem best that they be filled out at once, but in cases where there is not sufficient time to secure the necessary affidavits it is suggested that the registrant immediately write to his local board and request a formal extension of time. It is necessary that this should be done promptly, and it should not be done by telephone.

Blanks Cover All Occupations.

"As an aid to those who are to make an industrial survey, the Central Trust company has prepared blanks which fit any line of business. Copies of this will be ready for distribution at the company's main office Monday morning. The plan has been sent to the provost marshal general and is likely to be adopted all over the United States.

"The chairmen of the fifty-eight subdivisions of the Association of Commerce have been called together for a meeting at 12:30 o'clock Monday at the Morrison hotel. They will meet members of the ways and means committee to put into practice the general plan adopted Friday at the business men's meeting whereby each firm will be enabled to make a survey of its employés to ascertain what claims should be filed for deferred classification for occupational or industrial reasons."

Crowder Calls on 34 States for 13,000 for Limited Work

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—Provost Marshal General Crowder today sent out calls to the governors of thirty-four states and the draft executives of the District of Columbia for 13,000 white men qualified for limited military service to be sent to camp between Sept. 30 and Oct. 4. Among the state quotas and camps designated in the call for limited service men are the following: Illinois, 1,800, Jefferson Barracks; Indiana, 75, Jefferson Barracks; Iowa, 250, Jefferson Barracks; Michigan, 1,000, Columbus Barracks, O.; Minnesota, 350, Jefferson Barracks; Ohio, 750, Jefferson Barracks; South Dakota, 150, Jefferson Barracks; Wisconsin, 400, Jefferson Barracks.

$27,800,000 Agricultural Bill Passed by House

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—Without the provision increasing the government guaranteed price of wheat from $2.20 a bushel, which once caused its veto by President Wilson, the agricultural appropriation bill, carrying $27,800,000, was passed late today by the house without a record vote.

BUSY BOOK AGENT GETS IN TROUBLE AT CAMP GRANT

Camp Grant, Ill., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—Selective fighting men stepped calmly to the receiving end of the latest alleged attempt at profiteering in Camp Grant today and pocketed a neat 50 per cent of the money made in the unusual commercial transaction.

James McKeown, aided by some noncommissioned officers, sold booklets entitled "My Military Record" for 75 cents each. Officers declare the books could be printed for 16 cents and cost 25 cents delivered here. McKeown was forced to disgorge half his $250 profits and it went to the mess funds.

As the result of another profiteering campaign, seven Negro soldiers are facing court martial and the possibility of terms in Leavenworth prison on charges of having manufactured camp passes by wholesale, selling them to Negro recruits at prices ranking from a quarter to a dollar, and from pocket knives to shoes. Each of the seven artists made out passes that allowed men to leave the camp without provision for their return.

HERE'S STORY OF U. S. VICTORY IN COLD FIGURES

Colossal and Efficient Work of Yanks in Big Drive Revealed.

BY FREDERICK A. SMITH.
[Special Cable to Chicago Tribune.]

WITH THE FIRST AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 20.—[Delayed.]—It now is possible, more than a week after Gen. Pershing's army struck its first great blow in France, to give an idea of the immensity of the operation, based on figures obtained from official sources and on observation during two days' motoring behind the lines where the Americans stand tonight arrayed against the Hindenburg line.

In order to take 152 square miles of territory and seventy-two villages, captured in the crushing of the 4 year old St. Mihiel salient, the American army first had to evolve preparations on colossal lines, because the action itself brought into the plan hundreds of elements, all of which had to coördinate smoothly.

Used 100,000 Maps.

First, we issued 100,000 detail maps covering in minutest detail the character of the terrain of the St. Mihiel salient, including natural defenses, and telling how each was manned and by what enemy units. These maps were corrected, in some instances, as late as the day before the battle opened, and were supplemented by 30,000 photographs. These were for the guidance of the artillery and infantry, and were scattered among the officers of the whole army a few hours before the zero hour.

Five thousand miles of wire was laid in the St. Mihiel salient and on its borders before the attack, and immediately after the Americans advanced 4,000 telephone instruments were connected with these wires throughout the battle zone.

Rush Phones to First Lines.

When the battle opened on the morning of Sept. 12 trucks started north at a speed of seven miles an hour, unreeling wire across No Man's land, until they reached points where the reels had to be carried by signal corps men afoot.

Such work as this made it possible in the recent battle for American officers whose troops had flanked the foe's trenches to telephone back, informing the artillery of the exact location of the enemy trenches and in a few minutes bringing a deluge of metal on the boche.

Telephone squads carried these lines up to the fighting front Thursday morning and soon in the triangular battleground there was a telephone system in operation that would have been adequate to handle the telephone business of a city of 100,000, and it was going at top efficiency. The branch lines were connected with the main axis, which was established through the middle of the salient. Ten thousand men were busily engaged in operating the system. Many of the phone exchanges were on wheels.

U. S. Takes Movie of Battle.

In the midst of the battle other signal corps men took more than 10,000 feet of movie film depicting war scenes and many thousands of photographs.

Extensive hospital facilities were arranged, including thirty-five hospital trains, 10,000 beds in the advance areas, and 66,000 others farther back. Happily, less than 10 per cent of the hospital facilities were needed and therefore our surgeons and nurses were enabled to give the finest care to our wounded and sick, and every attention to the German wounded.

Fire 1,500,000 Shells.

In the course of the operation our guns fired approximately 1,500,000 shells.

Forty-eight hundred trucks carried men and supplies into the lines. They were assisted by miles of American railroads of standard and narrow gauge, and the cars were pulled by engines marked U. S. A.

In addition to restoring this big territory to France with an unprecedented small force, the Americans liberated two railroads and a canal from the menace of the boche artillery. We took 15,188 prisoners and the following spoils: One hundred and eleven guns, including twenty-five of large caliber and seventy-eight Austrian 77s; forty-two trench mortars, 200 machine guns, thirteen trucks, including an ambulance; thirty box cars, four locomotives, five caissons, forty wagons, and thirty-six narrow gauge cars.

The quantity of captured munitions is still unestimated, but one spot alone yielded 4,000 shells for 77s and 350,000 rounds of rifle cartridges.

Capture Four Ammunition Dumps.

Twelve thousand hand grenades were found in one place. Four ammunition dumps were taken, but the quantities of munitions in them is as yet unestimated.

Large quantities of food, clothing, trinkets, and many documents bring up a total which makes our first venture as an individual unit assume characteristic American proportions.

In four days American airmen, many of them using planes made in America and equipped with American instruments, made more than 3,300 sorties, totaling more than 4,000 hours. They engaged in seventy-five combats, bringing down nine planes aflame and fifty-four others out of control. They also destroyed thirty balloons.

Airmen Attack Enemy Troops.

Our pursuit groups dropped barrages over the advance lines, thus facilitating the efforts of the observation corps. Observers and pilots fired more than 30,000 rounds from their machine guns, raking enemy transport trains and artillery and troops concentrating back of the German lines. They also launched many small bombs at enemy columns.

Our airmen reported immediately on any changes in the enemy lines, meanwhile taking 1,000 photographs and making visual reconnaissances, in some instances fifty kilometers beyond the foe's lines.

More than 1,000 bombing raids were made behind the German lines despite unfavorable weather. The targets were railroad centers, bridges, and other military objects. More than seventy tons of bombs were dropped in four days. Our balloons made seventy-nine ascensions for a total of 300 hours in the air, spotting fifty-five hostile batteries in addition to giving other incalculably valuable assistance.

French planes made about 1,000 individual sorties, being always on hand when there was a combat to be staged or they were needed for any other work.

Opinions of 14,000 Prisoners.

Within our lines there are sufficient military policemen on duty at the crossroads to police a town of 100,000. Fourteen thousand prisoners have been questioned and the following is a fair summary of their statements:

Germany cannot understand why the Americans are waging this vigorous warfare unless she wants indemnities or colonies.

They smile at our assertions that we are fighting for democracy against militarism.

They suspect that we want to secure the debts of the allies to us by victory, saying American officers seem to be more sportsmen than warriors, and Germany hopes if she can kill a lot of Americans our country will tire of the novelty of war and demand peace.

There is a significant change in the German prisoners' predictions on the outcome of the war. Formerly they announced bravely that Germany would win, but now they content themselves with saying, "You cannot win the war."

They indicate that the food situation in Germany is better than during the period from January to April, when they say it was very serious.

Lastly, they admit they can patch their uniforms and practice every device of economy in conserving food and war materials, but they cannot make new individuals to reinforce their man power.

Since the middle of July nine German divisions have been dissolved because they were too shattered for reorganization.

Padden of 2542 Smalley court were in charge.

Everything at the fair was donated and it is estimated about $3,500 was added to the fund. A parade of all the neighborhood children served to stimulate sales last night.

FLING IN HOUSE AT DEMOCRATIC CAMPAIGN WILE

Tried to Delay War and Now Steal Its Glory, Gillett Says.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—Representative Gillett of Massachusetts, acting Republican leader, in a speech in the house today, attacked the war record of the Democratic majority, contrasting with it that of the Republican minority. He said the election of a Republican house this year would bring no encouragement to the kaiser, "for he knows who have been his fiercest foes and whom he had most reason to fear."

Speaker Clark, Mr. Kitchin, Democratic leader, and Chairman Dent of the house military committee were singled out for comment on their attitude and activities and Chairman Ferris of the Democratic congressional campaign committee was accused of unfair criticism of the Republican record for campaign purposes.

Singles Out the Backward.

"Would the support of the war have been any less vigorous if a Republican had been speaker instead of our honored Champ Clark, who opposed the declaration of war and went out of his way to defeat the draft?" asked Mr. Gillett.

"Would the sinews of war have been any less amply or more sectionally provided if a Republican had been at the head of the ways and means committee instead of Mr. Kitchin, who also voted against the war and against the draft? Would necessary war legislation have been retarded any more if at that momentous juncture a Republican had been chairman of the military committee instead of Mr. Dent, from whose hands the administration program of the draft had to be taken and carried through by a Republican? And so I might proceed with the other committees."

Points Ferris Sophistries.

Mr. Gillett said he believed that Mr. Ferris "was the first to stain the columns of the record with a partisan tinge from which th / had so long been free." He added that the speech was intended as a campaign document like others for distribution under Mr. Ferris' rank.

Mr. Ferris' recent assertion that the last two Democratic congresses appropriated more money for the army and navy than the preceding two Republican congresses, declared Mr. Gillett, "shows that some in the Democratic party recognise public opinion too well to say with Mr. Creel that they thank God we were not prepared when the war broke out."

"And letters are being systematically sent out by the same Democratic chairman," he added, "pressing the same argument and trying to monopolize as a Democratic asset the patriotic war spirit which now inspires the nation."

Hits at Failure to Prepare.

Referring to preparedness, Mr. Gillett asserted that "during the fifteen years before this war it was the main body of the Republican party and its leaders which vigorously favored preparation and it was the main body of the Democratic party and its leaders which denounced and defeated it."

He said that last winter there were four seats in the house vacated by Democrats, "who had returned to private life for motives of self-interest in order to increase their pecuniary incomes," while four vacant Republican seats were those of men who went to "serve their country, not at office desks but in the fighting ranks."

Records Shown by Votes.

The statement of the National Security league, selecting eight measures of the last two congresses, which it regards most vital to the war, was pointed to by Mr. Gillett as showing that seven men voted wrong on all eight measures. "Of these seven," he said, "six were Democrats and one Republican. Forty-seven men voted right on all eight measures and of them four were Democrats and forty-three were Republicans. I do not maintain that the test was in all respects a just one, but it was made by an impartial, nonpartisan committee and is one of the significant straws which show that the claim of superior foresight made by the Democratic chairman is ridiculously unfounded."

FOR CHILDREN

Chicago Woman Goes to Washington to Make Report After Study of Vocational Education.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 21. [Special.]—Miss Anne Davis, chief of the bureau of vocational education in Chicago, has arrived in Washington to begin the work of making a study of vocational guidance and education in America for the federal children's bureau.

Her report, to complete which she has been granted five months' leave from her duties in Chicago, will be a summary of what each state is doing to keep its children in school, to assist them in finding suitable employment if they leave school, and to guide their industrial development.

Miss Davis, who is a graduate of the University of Chicago and well known for her work in connection with vocational education, has undertaken the survey of what America is doing for its children in response to the request of Miss Julia Lathrop, chief of the children's bureau.

Gompers Routs Pacifists Among British Labor

LONDON, Sept. 21.—The interallied labor conference has been more protracted than had been expected, but after another extended discussion, arising mainly through objections of a small pacifist group, the entire report of the committee on war aims was adopted with virtual unanimity. This result is regarded as a triumph for Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor.

CHARGES BAKER BESTOWS WAR PLUMS ON SOUTH

Democratic States Get Stream of the Gold, Congress Told.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—Charges that political influence has been brought to bear on Secretary Baker in making selections for cantonment sites and for the location of other war activities, were made in the house today by Representative Robbins of Pennsylvania, Republican.

Discrimination in favor of the south as against the north was charged by Mr. Robbins, who declared that to Democratic states the treasury is sending a flow of gold to aid in meeting political exigencies.

Compares War Helps.

This is true, he said, in spite of the fact that the north furnishes more men for the war than the south, and that it pays much more in federal taxes.

The representative declared that sixteen southern states have received from the federal government a total of $490,306,991 for camps and war plants, while Pennsylvania, he said, has received only a little more than $8,000,000, and other northern states have received proportionately the same.

Heflin Denies Charge.

Replying to Representative Robbins, Representative Heflin of Alabama, Democrat, denied the charge.

He said Pennsylvania had received from $50,000,000 to $60,000,000 for every $1,000,000 spent in Alabama, and that the north generally had enjoyed the expenditure of $150,000,000 for every $1,000,000 spent in the southern states.

BAKER SEES SUPPLY WORK.

PARIS, Sept. 21.—Secretary Baker visited the headquarters of the supply service of the American expeditionary forces today. He was received by Maj. Gen. Harbord, head of the service, the headquarters staff, the French commanding general, the French and British missions, the prefect, and the mayor of the city. The secretary reviewed the escorting troops.

The "Perfecto"

Perfect Shoe Comfort

Why Dr. Pinkston calls his special shoe the Perfecto. Because it fits all feet perfectly. It matters not whether your bunions are large or small or whether there are no bunions at all. He made his shoe two widths narrower in the heel, one width narrower in the arch, two widths wider through the ball of the foot than any other shoe that has ever been made. The narrow heel prevents the shoe from slipping up and down. The narrow arch keeps the foot from sliding forward. The broad ball gives perfect comfort and freedom to the toes. The entire comfort and grace of walking depends entirely upon the proper articulation of the ball of the foot.

Most people have the mistaken idea that to have the feet comfortably dressed it requires an unsightly shoe. The Perfecto is truly a stylish shoe and not an anatomic shoe, nor has it a stiff, heavy, clumsy broad toe, flat heel, such as is recommended for foot comfort.

Dr. Pinkston has solved the foot problem; he can relieve you of all your foot troubles and cure nine-tenths, regardless of the nature or condition of the ailment. He was forced to originate and design a comfortable, dressy shoe for ladies. His motto is not only to cure foot troubles but to prevent them and to keep the feet well after they have been cured, and that is just what the Perfecto does. Dr. Pinkston has absolutely the most scientific method in the world of making and fitting shoes in connection with his foot specialty work. Come in today.

tending the engine in a sealed compartment that any moment might be turned into their tombs, while above deck the men stood ready at the guns—and all the time in the tiny radio room the American boy had the receivers strapped over his ears keeping in touch with the ships that had sailed away.

Through the long afternoon the prowless ship made its five knots hourly. The men changed watches every few hours, those from the guns exchanging places with the men on deck and guns. Some refused to leave the hot and dangerous boiler room right through to the end. Mike Ryan, a first class machinist mate from Buffalo, was one of these, and for twelve hours straight he fed the fires.

Wrath of Sea Begins.

Night came on and it was dark. A sea rose and the high waves knocked and pounded at the thin bulkhead, demanding to be let in. If the bulkhead could hold the ship would win and it would reach port. The hours dragged on, with every man giving all he had to the ship in its battle against the sea. It was an even chance, and all of the twenty-nine men and officers knew it.

The sea rose higher and the pounding increased—it was like bringing up heavy artillery to break through. It was an angry ocean that would not be denied.

A little before midnight it won. The thin steel plates gave way and No. 2 bulkhead was flooded. The engine and boiler room were next, and now it apparently was only a question of time.

All hands were called on deck. The British captain ordered the lifeboat lowered from the davits and a crew of eight men to man it and take all on board. Lieut. Brown, however, decided to stay with the ship and chose four Americans and four Britishers who volunteered to stick with him.

Lifeboat Is Swamped.

Seas were running high and wild now, and once the boat was lowered it smashed against the whaleback turret and was almost capsized. It was a desperate battle to keep the boat from being carried by the waves to the top of the turret and crushed to pieces. Again and again the boat's crew tried to hold it close to the ship's side, so that the men could drop into it, but it was useless—the great seas carried the boat away, flinging it about like so much cork.

For more than an hour these eight men battled to keep the lifeboat close by. Then, completely exhausted, the boat crew gave up. A single American bluejacket in the boat, Dan Grimshaw of Easthampton, N. Y., tried to swim back to the ship with a line, but failed.

S. O. S. Call Is Heard.

While all this was going on the radio operator was sending out desperate "S. O. S." calls. An American destroyer picked it up and answered that it was coming. The crew of the torpedoed ship, knowing how grave its position was, began sending up colored distress signals, but it started raining, making the night even blacker and the signals were useless.

Suddenly the men in the lifeboat saw the lights of the destroyer come out of the darkness. With renewed hope they sent up the last of their rockets and shouted, and then the destroyer, recognizing them, swept the waters with its searchlight. But against the rain and heavy blackness it was like candle light. But they told the way to the rescue, and the lifeboat, wallowing in the heavy seas, reached it, and the men were thrown life belts and pulled aboard.

Boat Turns Over.

In the meantime the twenty-one men still remaining on the torpedoed ship were calmly, bravely awaiting their end. The destroyer, circling about, and not daring to come too close, tried a score of times to get life lines aboard, but the high sea, black night, and storm combined to make it a failure. There was nothing to be done except to hope and wait until morning came. It was after 2 o'clock now.

At 4 the radio operator on the destroyer got this message: "We are turning over; you've done everything you could. Good-by."

Crying on account of their helplessness, the men on the destroyer circled close in and threw overboard their life rafts and boats. They could hear the calls for help come out of the black night, then maybe for a second their searchlight would pick up some shipmate struggling in the water, and then the tumbling seas would carry him away. These dark hours before the light broke were hours of the most intense and terrible suffering. There was nothing they could do but wait, with the cries of their shipmates coming up from the black seas.

Just Before the Boat Sank.

Just before the great ship had turned over and made its last final plunge to death most of the twenty men left dived overboard, holding to some bit of wreckage. Shortly before, when there had still been hope that the ship might live, George Christy, a machinist mate from Staten Island, N. Y., slipped down into the boiler room, shut off the fans, and opened the fire doors so that the boilers would not explode. At this time the water was rushing through the bulkhead and coming up. He reported on the bridge that the ship was doomed.

"Guess this is my turn, lieutenant," the British captain said to the American officer, turning and shaking hands with him. "You knew I can't swim."

Lieut. Brown tried to hold him over the side and clear of the ship, but it wasn't any use. The seas tore him down and he was drowned. He was a young man and married, and his saved shipmates said he had two or three babies.

Illinois Man the Hero.

Most of the men had left the ship now, and slowly it began turning on its side. Lieut. Brown and the sturdy young coxswain, James Clarence Osborn, from Homer, Ill., who enlisted with the coast guards from Chicago, slipped over the side and stood on the ship's propeller. Then the great boat shook, lunged, and went down.

Here, on the propeller, Osborn threw off his life preserver, tore off his clothes, and when he dived into the water was naked. It was 4 o'clock now and still dark, and he swam around, calling through the darkness from one shipmate to another.

Rescue of a Comrade.

Suddenly he heard some one calling for help. Swimming in that direction with the raft, he reached Coxswain August Petersen, a foreign born American sailor, clinging to a bit of wood in a complete state of exhaustion. Pulling him to his raft, Osborn laid him on top of it, while he held him there with his free arm. All the time he kept encouraging him, promising rescue with the dawn. Finally the light broke and all about, riding the great tumbling waves, were men clinging to rafts, lifebelts, and anything they could grab.

Difficult Work of Rescue.

Then the rescue work began. The seas made it hard and almost impossible. The destroyer would run near a man, throw him a line, and pull him on board. The crew worked fast and desperately.

Then, off on the port bow, through the dim morning light, the lookout reported a naked man standing on a raft. He was signaling with his arms, and a sailor spelled out the words: "H-e-l-p—have dying man. Hurry, help."

With glasses the men on the bridge could make out the figure of a sailor lying on the raft held fast between the extended feet of the naked man. They pointed straight for him, and drawing near threw the line. He missed it. Then the destroyer turned about and threw another. This time he grabbed it, but fell from the raft. As he did his exhausted shipmate slipped into the water. Osborn rescued him, held him up, and tied the life line under his arms. Then the destroyer men pulled Petersen aboard. A second line was thrown to Osborn, and he was pulled aboard.

Thinks Only of His Men.

Seaman Ray Gorman of Brooklyn and Lieut. Brown were the last to be picked up.

Once on board the officer kept mumbling over and over again, hysterically, "I had eighteen men. I had eighteen men."

For hours the destroyer cruised about the spot, searching for suvivors. Then it turned its nose towards this port.

While the sea and the German submarine may claim ten American boys, all America is richer by the glorious example, and the navy has gained what will be one of the United States' proudest and finest stories of duty done and faith held firm.

SOLDIER SHOOTS AT TROTZKY, BUT MISSES TWICE

Wilson Asks Neutral and Allied World to Stop Russian Terrorism.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 21.—An attempt has been made at Kursk to assassinate Leon Trotzky, the Bolshevik minister of war and marine, according to a dispatch sent from Kiev by the correspondent of the Leipsig Abend Zeitung. The correspondent says a soldier fired twice at Trotzky, but missed his mark.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—In an effort to align the civilized world against the terrorism in Russia under Bolshevik rule, the United States government has directed its ambassadors and ministers in neutral as well as allied countries to ascertain whether the governments to which they are accredited will join in some immediate action "to impress upon the perpetrators of these crimes the aversion with which civilization regards their present wanton acts."

Separate from War.

The proposal is to take steps entirely separate from the conduct of the war; that all civilized nations register their abhorrence of such barbarism.

The message to the diplomats says this government is informed that the peaceable Russian citizens of Petrograd, Moscow, and other cities are suffering from an openly avowed campaign of terrorism, that thousands of persons have been shot without even a form of trial, and that ill administered prisons are filled beyond capacity.

Great Britain and France, having virtually declared the Bolsheviki outlaws, will not be interrogated, but have been advised by cable of the action of the American government.

Here Are Instructions.

The instructions to the United States representatives at foreign capitals follow:

"This government is in receipt of information from reliable sources revealing that the peaceable Russian citizens of Moscow, Petrograd, and other cities are suffering from an openly avowed campaign of marked terrorism and are subject to wholesale executions. Thousands of persons have been shot without even a form of trial; ill administered prisons are filled beyond capacity, and every night scores of Russian citizens are recklessly put to death and irresponsible bands are venting their brutal passions in the daily massacre of untold innocents.

"In view of the earnest desire of the people of the United States to befriend the Russian people and lend them all assistance that is possible in their struggle to reconstruct their nation upon principles of democracy and self-government, and acting therefore solely in the interest of the Russian people themselves, this government feels that it cannot be silent or refrain from expressing its horror at this state of terrorism.

Register of Protest.

"Furthermore, it believes that in order to check the further increase of the indiscriminate slaughter of Russian citizens all civilized nations should register their abhorrence of such barbarism.

"You will, therefore, inquire whether the government to which you are accredited will be disposed to take some immediate action which is entirely devoid from the atmosphere of belligerency and the conduct of war to impress upon the perpetrators of these crimes the aversion with which civilization regards their present wanton acts."

The Norwegian foreign office advised the state department today that American Consul General Poole at Moscow had not been arrested by the Bolsheviki, as recently reported, and that direct communication had been held with Moscow as late as Sept. 18.

Says Americans Were Killed.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 21.—Subjects of the allied countries and citizens of the United States, particularly the latter, have been slaughtered in Petrograd, travelers reaching here today declared.

The massacres, it was stated, followed a German-inspired meeting in which resolutions were adopted urging war on the allies, arrest of all subjects, and confiscation of their property.

Russians Call for Help.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 21.—At a recent meeting of the members of the Russian duma and the Russian imperial council at Kiev it was resolved, says a telegram from that city, to appeal to the public opinion of Europe and all governments to put an end to the "Bolshevist terror."

Wilson Asks Passage of Emergency Power Bill

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—President Wilson today asked congress to pass promptly as a war measure the emergency power bill authorizing government control and extension of electric plants and providing a fund of $175,000,000 for the purpose.

GIVES LIE TO MAN WHO DISPUTES SISSON PAPERS

Creel Nails Charge Bolshevik Documents Are Forgeries.

New York, Sept. 21.—[Special.]—A charge was made here today by S. Nuorteva, head of the Finnish information bureau, that the series of documents on Bolshevik relations with Germany, just made public by the committee on public information, are forgeries.

The declaration was promptly branded as a "lie" when it was brought to the attention of George Creel, head of the committee on public information. The documents were procured by Edgar Sisson in Russia. Mr. Creel said:

"The government of the United States put out these documents and the authenticity is backed by the government. This is Bolshevik propaganda, and when an unsupported Bolshevik attacks them it is hardly worth bothering about."

Mr. Sisson said tonight that the evidence of the authenticity of the documents is indisputable.

The "Forgery" Charges.

Mr. Nuorteva said in his charges:

"These revelations are based on brazen forgeries, and the monstrous falsity of this entire attempt to discredit the Russian statesmen is obvious. I am enabled to give the following facts, which you will be able to corroborate by inquiries from Col. Raymond Robins, Col. William B. Thompson, and Maj. T. Thatcher, all connected with the American Red Cross.

"Some time in January, 1918, certain Russian counter revolutionists who were interested vitally in discrediting the soviet statesmen, sent to Col. Robins a series of 'documents' purporting to show sordid relations between the German imperialists and the Soviets.

"A part of these 'documents' was a series which was in the hands of the Kerensky government about July, 1917, at the time when that government was vitally interested in convicting Trotzky and Lenine as German agents. Another part of these 'documents' had reference to the period after the Bolshevik revolution. The documents are the same which Mr. Sisson now is publishing.

Proved to Be Forgeries?

"Mr. Robins undertook to investigate the matter. Among others he visited Mr. Halpern, who, in July and August, 1917, prosecuted Trotzky on behalf of the Kerensky government. Mr. Halpern admitted that he had many of these 'documents' at his disposal last July, but they turned out to be forgeries and could not be used against the Bolsheviki.

"Through diligent inquiries from other sources Col. Robins became convinced that the rest of the 'documents' as well, in so far as they had relation to activities of the soviet statesmen, were just as unreliable."

Col. Raymond Robins is in Arizona and could not be reached last night.

TWO TRAINMEN KILLED.

Amsterdam, O., Sept. 21.—Fireman H. E. Long and Brakeman H. F. Elliott of Berghotz, O., were killed and Engineer H. Wincereid, residence unknown, injured near here today when an engine of the Alliance division of the New York Central railroad was derailed and rolled down a steep embankment.

YOU, no doubt, have often realized that the difference in stores is mostly the difference in the people that own and manage the stores, just as the difference in homes is the difference in the people of the homes; meaning, of course, to compare those in the same class.

The spirit, the atmosphere of this store is the spirit and atmosphere of hospitality. That's the way we feel toward anyone who comes here looking for something; we want to help him find it; if he can't find it here we don't want him to take something else just so we can make a sale; and more than that, if he finds what seems to be the thing he wanted and when he gets it home it proves to be not exactly the thing, we want him to send it back and let us go on helping him until he is entirely satisfied.

This attitude has kept up the quality of Scholle furniture and has kept down the prices to the point where they are always fair.

These are times when it's easy for us to demonstrate the value giving qualities of Scholle furniture. Come and see.

Hoover Says It Will Save Million U. S. Lives; Eliminate Waste.

sured them that 'in this common cause we eat at a common table,' and upon entering these conferences in Europe we promise them that whatever their war food program called for from us we should fulfill.

"If we survey our ability to meet this definite promise to them we find that while our wheat production this year is better than last year, our production of other cereals is less. We have had severe losses through drought in many sections.

Enough if There Is Economy.

"On balance our resources are no greater than last year. We find, however, that we can give this increase in food supplies of 5,730,000 tons over last year, and still have a margin over the amount necessary to maintain our own health and strength.

"At best the allied table will be less than ours, for the allied peoples are denying themselves more in order to transport our soldiers. We can do no less than fill the ships they send us.

"Of our imports, we shall apparently have sufficient sugar to maintain the present consumption and take care of the extra drain of the allies from our markets, instead of compelling them to send their ships to the far east. We can secure in sailing vessels the coffee we need, if no one makes an overbrew.

Half Pound Per Person.

"Of our own products we must secure a reduction in consumption and waste in the two great groups of, first, breadstuffs, and, second, meats and fats—that is, in all bread and cereals, beef, pork, poultry, dairy and vegetable oil products. The average consumption of our people of breadstuffs amounts to about six pounds per week and of meats and fats to four pounds a week for each person. A reduction in consumption of less than one-half pound per week per person in each of these two great groups of foods would accomplish our purpose. We wish to emphasize, however, that we do not want curtailment in the use of milk for children.

"Some of our homes, by reason of limited income, cannot now provide more food than they should have to maintain health in the family. They cannot rightfully be asked to make the suggested reduction in consumption. But the great majority of our homes can do more than suggested.

"We need even greater simplicity of living than last year amongst all that section of the community to whom foodstuffs are a secondary item in expenditure.

"We estimate that nearly 9,000,000 people eat at our public eating places—hotels, restaurants, boarding houses, clubs, dining cars, and so forth. The food consumption in these places is larger than in the average homes. We are asking the proprietors and employés of these institutions to undertake in many particulars a more strict program than last year, and we are confident that they will willingly do this.

Rationing Not Yet Necessary.

"This is not rationing—a thing we never will have if our people continue to support us as in the past. We are simply making an appeal to the intelligence in the homes and public eating places of America to work out for themselves the means and manner of saving.

"This year, as last, I believe we can accomplish the necessary ends by voluntary action of our own people. The willingness to assume individual responsibility in this matter by the vast majority is one of the greatest proofs of the character and idealism of our people and I feel it can be constantly relied upon. Our simple formula for this year is to further reduce consumption and waste of all food.

May Be No Wheatless Days.

"We have so arranged the international food program that, except for a moderate substitution of other cereals in bread, it will not, we hope, be necessary to substitute one foodstuff for another, nor to resort to wheatless and meatless days. What we need is to reduce directly our consumption of ALL foodstuffs, laying especial emphasis on the staples. The allies are in need of all the surplus of the great staples that we can provide.

"It is necessary that every family in the United States study its food budget and food ways to see if it cannot buy less, serve less, return nothing to the kitchen, and practice the gospel of the clean plate."

AFTER THE WAR READJUSTMENT PROGRAM GIVEN

Must Have Work Ready.

The blindest must see that it is the part of wisdom to have as much public and private work as possible ready to start the moment peace is declared. In no other way can the slack be taken up without delay, distress, and disturbance.

This necessity, growing out of war conditions, only makes more compelling the duty of the voters to approve at the election on Nov. 5 the bond issue of $60,000,000, the proceeds of which are to be used in the construction of permanent, hard roads. The bonds are not to be sold until peace comes. They are to be paid off, principal and interest, from the funds received from automobile licenses. They will provide for the construction of 4,600 miles of highways reaching every corner of Illinois. They will not add a cent to the tax bill of any citizen.

Equally urgent is the duty of the people of Chicago to approve by their votes the ordinance which provides for the construction of an adequate system of rapid transit, subway, surface, and elevated, connecting all parts of the city.

Better transportation is a necessity. It cannot be had until the close of the war. To approve the ordinance now will mean that the work will be started at the earliest possible moment and that work will be provided for thousands of men at a time when other work will be scarce.

THE TRIBUNE hopes that its readers will go over carefully every item of the program which is printed this morning at the head of the editorial page. THE TRIBUNE will discuss each of its items as occasion arises. It will be glad to have from its readers letters of suggestion or criticism on any part of the program which it proposes and supports.

Pullman and Railroad Tickets to Go Together

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—Plans for selling railroad and Pullman tickets in a single transaction at ticket offices have been completed and will be put into effect by Nov. 1 at the latest, the railroad administration today announced. This will eliminate the present system by which a traveler is required to purchase a transportation ticket at 3 cents a mile, or 3½ cents, if he intends to travel in a Pullman, and then to get his Pullman reservation at another window.

BREWERS FIGHT TO CURB INQUIRY INTO PRESS FUND

Tumulty's Letter to Brisbane Read by New in Senate.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—The brewers and allied interests are exerting themselves to the utmost to restrict, if they cannot prevent, further investigation of the purchase of the Washington Times by Arthur Brisbane with money furnished by the brewers, and other activities of the brewers in politics, including the spread of German propaganda.

The fight is under way now in the senate judiciary committee, to which the investigation resolution has been referred. On Monday the committee is expected to decide whether the investigation shall be made, the time of its making, and the extent to which it will proceed.

Tumulty Writes Brisbane.

Senator New of Indiana read into the record today a letter from Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to the president, to Arthur Brisbane, in which Mr. Tumulty expressed confidence that Mr. Brisbane was going "to make the same good Democratic fight in Chicago" that he had been making in his paper in Washington.

The letter was dated May 18, about the time that the Chicago Herald was sold and consolidated with William Randolph Hearst's Chicago Examiner. The text of the letter follows:

"White House, Washington, D. C., May 18, 1918.—My Dear Brisbane: When you were at the White House offices today I forgot to ask you to send me the Chicago Herald and Examiner regularly to my offices here. I am sure you are going to make the same good Democratic fight in Chicago that you have been making in your paper in Washington and I want to see just how you do it. Sincerely yours, [Signed]

"J. P. TUMULTY,
"Secretary to the President."

After Politics Was Adjourned.

"This letter," Senator New explained to the senate, "was issued from the White House shortly after politics had been officially adjourned."

At Senator New's request the letter was referred to the judiciary committee.

STATEMENT BY KONTA.

Alexander Konta of New York, who was brought into the senate investigation into the ownership of the Washington Times through discovery of a letter which he wrote to Dr. Dernburg in 1915 regarding the possibility of German interests buying a New York newspaper, made a statement in Chicago yesterday regarding his connection with the entire affair. He returned to New York last night to be ready to appear before the senate committee.

"The unfortunate letter which I wrote to Dr. Dernburg in 1915," he said, "had nothing to do with this investment by the brewers in the Washington Times. The authorities know that.

"If methods like the ones employed by A. Mitchell Palmer will help us to win the war, I am heartily in favor of them. I voluntarily turned over the letters published. I had nothing whatsoever to do directly or indirectly with the purchase of any newspaper. I will give every dollar I have in the world to the man who hooks me up with this Brisbane fund.

"I am a Hungarian and have been in this country thirty years. I have never been pro-German. Once at a dinner in New York I met Dr. Dernburg. I never saw him again. He spoke to me about the trouble the Germans were having in getting their side of the war before the American people. He asked me what I thought of the Germans buying a New York paper. I told him I would write him a letter about it. I did so. He never answered the letter. No one then dreamed that this country would be at war with Germany. I saw no harm in my offer to act as a broker for him and see no harm now. Other interests have newspapers."

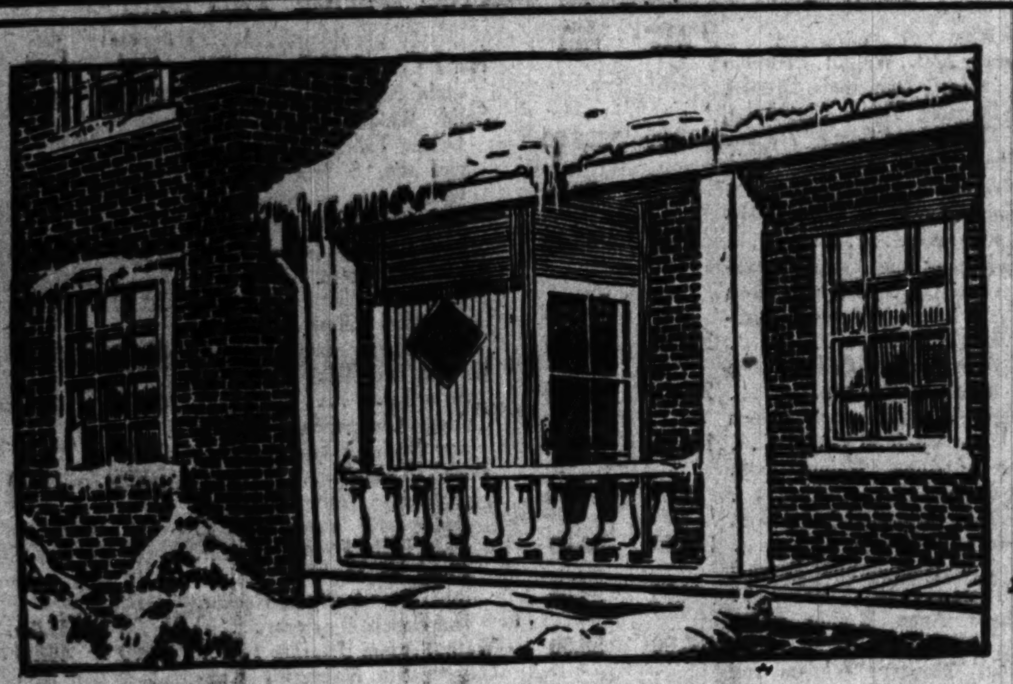
TRIBUNE READERS ARE INTELLIGENT READERS



Don't Be a Coal Waster

WAR needs require this year 100 million tons more than our normal coal production—production can be increased only 50 million tons. That leaves 50 million tons that must be saved, unless war industries are to be hampered or countless persons made to suffer.

Everyone wants to do his part. You can do your full share in saving coal by equipping your house with

Storm Windows and Storm Doors

They increase the comfort and healthfulness of your house by eliminating cold floor drafts, by making it possible to keep the house warm in the severest winter weather, and by permitting perfect ventilation.

Houses protected by storm windows and storm doors require from one-third to one-half less coal. You can easily figure what that means to you in dollars and cents. The saving in coal in one or two seasons will pay for the cost of the storm windows and doors.

There is no better way to save coal and keep your family comfortable and healthy. And to think that it is a paying investment!

Your local lumber dealer or building-material dealer can give you complete information. See him now so that your house will not be a coal-waster this winter.

MONTHS AHEAD OF SCHEDULE OF TROOPS OVERSEA

Two Million Mark to Be Reached in November, Gen. March Says.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—Evidence that the United States is months ahead in its schedule of troop shipments to France was given today when Gen. March, the chief of staff, announced that the army has embarked more than 1,750,000 men for foreign ports.

The highest war department estimate called for 2,000,000 men in France by Jan. 1. With three-quarters of a million on the second million already embarked, it is almost certain that the 2,000,000 mark will be reached by November and that the first quarter on the third million will have been reached by the first of the year.

News from Front Good.

Gen. March said that "news on all fronts has been continually and continuously good."

Referring to the operation of Gen. Pershing's First American army in the St. Mihiel sector, the chief of staff said the new American line, so rapidly produced by cutting off the St. Mihiel salient, has been quickly stabilized.

"The enemy has been hurriedly strengthening his line of defense," Gen. March said. "The so-called Kriemhild line lies only a mile or two in front of our new line on a front of about twenty miles from near Maizeray to the Moselle river at Vandiers. We are now ten miles away from Conflans and twelve miles away from Metz. Conflans is the center of this general section, and, as you can see on the map, from very important strategic point from which railways feed the Lorraine front. During the last few days there has been no attack in force by either our army or the enemy's. Reports indicate simply patrols, airplane observation, and artillery fire."

Gives Glory to the French.

In connection with the American operations at St. Mihiel, Gen. March said he had an interesting cablegram giving some details of the fine work of the French. "It appears," he said, "that the French regiment that had the honor of being the first to enter St. Mihiel was led by the son of the prime minister, Clemenceau; a regiment of zouaves, colonial infantry and the foreign legion, composed almost entirely of men belonging to the laboring class. This organization was the first of either army to enter St. Mihiel. The work of the French in that fight was of the high character that we find them always showing.

While the Americans are preparing for their next move from the advanced positions in Lorraine, Gen. March reviewed successes scored by Haig and Mangin farther to the west.

"In Picardy," Gen. March said, "the British Third and Fourth armies with the French First army renewed their advance Wednesday on the Cambrai-St. Quentin front, toward the old Hindenburg line. In spite of the concentration of the enemy forces defending this sector and in spite of very strong counter attacks by the enemy at several points, especially west and southwest of Cambrai, the British have made steady progress, reaching the Hindenburg line at several points; and the enemy is reported to have lost very heavily. It is now officially confirmed that 10,000 prisoners have been captured."

Can't Name Troops at St. Mihiel.

Gen. March said he was unable as yet to identify the American troops operating in the St. Mihiel sector, as he had received no full report. The only divisions to which he referred were the Thirty-ninth, from Camp Beauregard, Alexandria, La., which has arrived safely; the Ninetieth, from Fort Sam Houston, Tex., which is in eastern France, and the Thirty-sixth from Camp Dowie, Fort Worth, Tex., which is in one of the French training sectors.

U. S. Balloon Units Pressed on Heels of Infantry in Chateau Thierry Drive, One Won French Citation, Returned Officer Says.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—An American officer of the division of military aeronautics, just arrived from overseas, reports that in the beginning of the recent offensive one American balloon company with about 170 men and its equipment was in Chateau Thierry three hours after the infantry had occupied the place. It had a balloon up the following morning five miles beyond the village and was observing for American artillery with a complete line of communication established.

Another balloon company a few hours behind the first nevertheless got into action quick enough to bring down an enemy plane with a captured machine gun, and for the service rendered on this occasion was cited in the French army orders. For this exploit each member of the company hereafter has the privilege of wearing a green and white cord looped over the right shoulder of his uniform.

On one edge of a wood about fourteen acres in area another American balloon company was so heavily shelled that it had to haul down its gas bag. In a remarkably short time, however, it had transferred its equipment to the other side of the forest and went on making observations uninterruptedly.

SAYS INFLUENZA AT GREAT LAKES IS NOT ALARMING

Capt. Moffett Calms Relatives of Sailors; Admit Visitors Today.

After a number of sensational rumors had reached Chicago concerning the Spanish influenza epidemic at the Great Lakes Training station Capt. W. A. Moffett, commanding officer, last night calmed worried relatives and friends of the sailors with a statement that the situation is not alarming.

"It is largely because health conditions at Great Lakes have been so good in the past," he said, "that the present situation attracts attention. It is because of the contrast.

"Although we have 45,000 men at the station, we have only 800 cases of sickness and the mortality rate is correspondingly low. There is nothing alarming in the situation."

Although the general week end leave for all bluejackets entitled to liberty was canceled, the station is not under quarantine and visitors will be admitted today.

Fourteen Deaths at Camp Dix.

Sixteen at Camp Devens.

Ayer, Mass., Sept. 21.—Two officers and sixteen privates died at Camp Devens today, as a result of influenza and pneumonia.

Newport Reports 124 New Cases.

Newport, R. I., Sept. 21.—The influenza epidemic in the second naval district resulted in five deaths today, with the development of 124 new cases.

Only One Death in New York.

New York, Sept. 21.—The number of Spanish influenza cases reported to the health department in this city today showed a decrease compared with the previous two days, there being twenty new victims as compared with thirty-one yesterday and thirty-eight the day before. Only one death has resulted thus far.

Six Deaths in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 21.—Sixteen deaths from Spanish influenza were reported in Philadelphia and vicinity today, eight among the civil population and the same number in the Fourth naval district.

Accidents Cause 12 Deaths in Week at Flying Fields

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—Twelve deaths from airplane accidents at army aviation fields throughout the country during the week ended Sept. 14 are reported in a summary issued by the war department.

ELEVATED OPENS CAMPAIGN FOR A SEVEN CENT FARE

Seven cents fare on elevated trains, with 12 cents to Evanston, is the object of a drive to influence public opinion started yesterday by the Chicago Elevated railroads. The campaign was opened by pamphleteering patrons at the various elevated stations.

It is pointed out to the public that the recent increase in wager granted by agreement with the National War Labor board means an added burden of $1,647,000 a year; that increased costs have added $235,000 a year to the cost of materials, and that war taxes have placed another $60,000 on the cost side of the ledger.

A table shows the increased cost of maetrials, ranging all the way from 33 per cent up to 397 per cent. With an estimated $505,000 needed for maintenance, the elevated system estimates its extra budget for the year at $2,447,000 over normal.

Come and see for yourself what our Cloverland Farms Tract offers to farmers, dairymen, stockmen, market gardeners, poultrymen and farm renters.

We own outright 100,000 acres of this land in the upper peninsula of Michigan, in Menominee County, just north of the city of Menominee. We want you to examine the conditions of development surrounding it—the soil, good roads, schools, churches, markets and the other things that make the big difference between your success and your failure. This land is covered with clover and grass and is ideal for dairying. Farmers in this district prosper through the dairy and diversified farming industries. Creameries and cheese factories abound through the district, due to the strong demand for these products and excellent transportation facilities to markets farther away for milk, cheese, butter, etc. Former Secretary of Agriculture James Wilson came to Cloverland, looked over the country and then said: "This should become a great dairy country. It will grow all the crops necessary for dairy and stock."

After You Have Seen This Land You Can Arrange to Buy a Farm Direct from Us at as Low as $10 to $25 an Acre—Easy Payments—No Taxes for Five Years to Actual Settler

We own this land outright—have owned it for many years. It is hardwood timber land, from which we have cut the timber. Good, rich soil—the kind of land that rewards a man's work by producing money-making crops. Ample rainfall, 34 inches per year; 149 days growing weather according to the U. S. Weather Bureau. Best transportation by water and rail.

Do Not Buy Lands or a Farm Until You See What We Have to Offer. We Can Save You Money.

Even after you have seen it you will be asked to show that you really want a farm to live on and work. If you can measure up to these requirements we will meet you more than half way on price, terms and other help that will get you started right and keep you going right. No taxes for five years to the actual settler. Work all winter at good wages if you desire.

The Land for Sheep and Cattle Raising

The Hon. Frank G. Hagenbarth of Salt Lake City, Utah, President of the National Wool Growers Association of the United States, an eminent authority on the subject, also the representative of the Wool Growers Association on the United Live Stock Industry Committee of the Government, and one of the Hoover Committee to assist in increasing the supply of wool, sheep and cattle, made a trip through CLOVERLAND. He said:

> "You people of Upper Michigan, of CLOVERLAND, are losing an annual return of $85,000,000. You are permitting the best grazing and dairy lands in the whole world to lie idle, and you are failing to do your patriotic duty by not presenting to the nation the wonderful opportunities which your region offers to the sheep and cattle man. If I were twenty years younger I would come into your remarkable country and do even more than I have in the West. I went there years ago, got a small interest in a grazing business worth $18,000, and today that industry has grown to a valuation of $3,000,000. I could do even more than that here."

Call at our office for additional information, or send coupon for illustrated literature. Nine out of ten who visit the land buy. No such record is possible unless the land—the location—the price and the terms are right. Prove it to yourself.

STATE PAGEANT READY FOR DRESS REHEARSAL

First Costume Performance Will Be Given Tomorrow Night.

The Pageant of Illinois, the historical allegory which will be one of the chief attractions in Chicago during Centennial week, Oct. 7-12, will be whipped into final shape at a dress rehearsal tomorrow night at the Auditorium theater.

This first dress performance had been planned for Tuesday night, but it was announced yesterday that the centennial committee would hold a patriotic rally on that evening with Prof. Thomas Masaryk, the Bohemian revolutionary leader, as the chief speaker.

Teutonic Tinge Gone.

The pageant itself, shorn of all suspicion of Teutonic influence, is ready. A few changes in the music will be made by Daniel Protheroe, the choral director chosen to take the place of William Boeppler, resigned.

The pageant opens with "The Star-Spangled Banner," sung by a chorus of 300 voices. The first scene is laid in the days when Chicago was free hunting grounds for the Indians and sweet Laughing Water ruled the lodge.

The dark ages pass and the primitive natives are visited by Marquette, who tells them the story of the cross. La Salle, the adventurer, comes into view, establishing the first French settlement in the country of the great lakes.

Gradually out of the wilderness a civilization is born and the town of Kaskaskia appears. The settlers are dancing and celebrating the revolutionary flag of the United States of 1776. Gen. Clark and his Virginians enter the town and join in the merrymaking.

Days of Fort Dearborn.

The days of the Fort Dearborn massacre in 1812 are given one scene. Illinois' entry into statehood is celebrated in a dance by eighty girls. The visit of Lafayette in 1829 forms the next scene. The reception is at Kaskaskia. The boys and girls of the town dance a minuet in the costume of the Louis XVI. period, followed by the Virginia reel. The French sing the "Marseillaise."

The harvest festival group follows. Then comes the civil war with the boys of Illinois responding to Lincoln's call to arms.

The next scene shows the Chicago fire, with eighty girls dancing the fire ballet in front of the burning city.

Chicago rising from the ruins into the glory of the world's fair of 1893 is the subject of the next scene. Sousa and his band appear in the famous "Exposition March."

Theme Turns to Great War.

Then the scene shifts to today. America is stirred by the outbreak of the war in 1914. The fate of Belgium and the danger of France and England lead this country at last to take up arms to save the world from Prussian autocracy.

The last scene shows Illinois offering the great industries of the state and all her resources to Columbia to win the war. All the nations that have been thrown into Illinois' melting pot march with the soldiers and sailors, pledging their devotion to the war purpose.

Appreciation of Boeppler.

The committee sent out a statement yesterday expressing appreciation of Boeppler and "confidence in the propriety of all of Mr. Boeppler's original arrangements and all his actions."

"There were thirteen popular American airs, including 'The Star-Spangled Banner,' 'Yankee Doodle,' and marches of Sousa's, in the program as originally prepared by Mr. Hercz and Mr. Boeppler," the statement reads.

The committee announced the unveiling of the Alexander Hamilton monument in Grant park for Sept. 28. The centennial monument in Logan square will be unveiled in centennial week.

Aid Is Pledged.

Complete coöperation of the foreign language divisions of the Liberty loan committee towards making the pageant a success was assured last night when representatives of thirty-four nationalities met and passed a resolution to that effect. Felix J. Streyckmans presided at the meeting.

Haywood, In for 20 Years, Named in Omaha Charges

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 21.—William D. Haywood, head of the I. W. W., recently convicted in Chicago, now serving a twenty year sentence in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kas., was named with twenty-one others as coconspirator in the examination of twenty-eight I. W. W. prisoners who were indicted by the federal grand jury in Omaha this morning. The indictments were drawn along similar lines to those used in the famous Chicago case. Assistant United States Attorney Saxton says that several federal prisoners who were not arrested in time to be dealt with in Chicago will be arraigned here. It is possible that "Bill" Haywood will be brought from the federal penitentiary to testify here.

POLICE HOLDING THREE FOR ARGO BANK ROBBERY

Typist Partially Identifies One Suspect; Others Being Trailed.

Three men were arrested yesterday as suspects in the robbery of the Argo State bank on Friday when $20,105 in cash and probably more than $20,000 of Liberty bonds were taken. Miss Beda Steinwald, bookkeeper and stenographer of the bank, looking at a photograph in the hands of the police, said she was quite sure it was a picture of one of the robbers.

"If I could see the man I could tell without a doubt," she said.

As a result the police arrested Carman Taglio, 1503 West Polk street; Samuel Taglio, brother of Carman; Samuel Ovana, a pal of the two.

Seek Other Participants.

The police also threw a net around a section of the west side slums last night and started a hunt for Paul Masilotti, Frank Reo, Dan Vollo, and August Cardinella. The men are alleged to have intimate knowledge of the robbery and some of them are believed to be actual participants.

Carman Taglio's picture was the one the girl practically identified as that of the robber. The Taglio brothers and Ovana were taken to State's Attorney Hoyne's office last night and sweated for hours. After that they were locked up incomunicado.

Miss Steinwald spent some time yesterday in the office of Supt. William O'Day of the Mooney & Boland agency, and it was there she was shown the picture of Taglio.

Tracked by Automobile.

The arrests came as the result of information that four or five of the men suspected had been riding around the Italian district in a car similar to the one used in the United State bank robbery. The car used in the more successful robbery at Argo answers the same description.

Fred M. Heller, cashier; A. J. Linke, assistant cashier, and Miss Steinwald will all face the men under arrest today, according to plans, to see if they can make positive identification of them.

Three Italian detectives have played important parts in securing the names of the men under arrest and the other suspects. They are Detective Sergeants Riccio, Devito, and Bernacchi, and with them has been working Detective Sergeant Hughes.

Skeleton of Giant Found on Resort at Lake Bluff

Waukegan, Ill., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—The skeleton of a man who must have been a Goliath has been unearthed on the C. B. Herman resort property at Lake Bluff. It was said to be 8 feet tall.

OAK PARK FAILS TO GET NEW MEN FOR FIRE FORCE

Despite the promise of Calvin H. Hill, president of Oak Park, that fifteen new men would be sworn into the fire department at once, the department last night still consisted of only eight men, including the chief. Eighteen firemen walked out, demanding the resignation of Fire Chief Herman J. Schoff, accused of pro-Germanism by the men.

"Oak Park is well protected against fire," Mr. Hill declared. "The new men, who are loyal to the village president and their fellow townsmen, will serve in place of those who resigned. In the meantime the street and police department will assist."

RISE IN BUTTER SEEN AS DANGER TO THE PRODUCER

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—At a conference today between the food administrator and the committee appointed at Chicago last year by the conference of the dairy industry, it was generally agreed that the recent rapid rise in the price of butter must result to the great ultimate disadvantage of the dairy industry.

"It must stifle consumption of dairy butter," said an official announcement on the subject, "must induce the larger consumption of margarine, and bring an ultimate slump in butter prices, with disastrous results to the producer. The recent rise was due somewhat to misconception of the amount of butter taken by the government, which amounts to about 35,000,000 pounds out of our 100,000,000 pounds of storage butter in stock."

It was decided to call further conferences with representative producers, distributors, and manufacturers at an early date to consider the situation further.

3-CENT POSTAGE CUTS CITY P. O. BUSINESS 10%

Three cent letter postage and the high cost of living generally have caused a falling off of 10 per cent in the volume of first and second class postal matter handled at the Chicago postoffice, in the opinion of Postmaster Carlile. He concludes from observation that people are writing longer and fewer letters. On the basis of statistics, the postmaster has found that the number of letters handled daily in Chicago equals the population of the city. The report of business follows:

Average number of pieces of first class mail handled daily, 3,253,271; this is said to be a decrease of 10 per cent from last year's average.

Hitch dependable thrift to dependable pleasure

Quite often we find cases like this. A man has been smoking pretty expensive cigars. But he wishes to hitch thrift to smoking—for the sake of the Government, the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A. or the Belgian Relief.

To such men we say: "Try Owl and White Owl. You will find two cigars of rare mellow fragrance. You will discover in them unchanging fragrance—a rare ability to give dependable pleasure. Their dependability is guaranteed by a reserve of ever-curing leaf worth always nearly $2,000,000.

Many have taken the advice, and later said—"Thanks—very much."

42 GIRLS ARRIVE FROM FRANCE TO ENTER COLLEGES

Vivacious Travelers Separate Here for Midwest Institutions.

BY LUCY CALHOUN.

Forty-two French college girls parted yesterday from their chaperon, Mrs. Mack Millar of Denver, who helped to select them, and has traveled with them from Bordeaux, France. Mrs. Millar escorted her attractive charges as far as Chicago's Union station, and from here they will go to various midwestern colleges.

Amid the usual manifestations of feminine excitement, farewells were said and each of the vivacious visitors was embraced and kissed on either cheek by their traveling companion.

They are the first of the exchange pupils to whom scholarships have been awarded by the American Association of Colleges and whose expenses are met by a fund of 75,000 francs appropriated by the French government. Some are going to the University of Illinois, some to Grinnell college, Iowa, some to the University of Colorado, some to Jacksonville, Ill., and others to smaller colleges. They were selected from all parts of France for their intellectual acquirements and personal qualities.

Weary from Journey.

It was a weary lot of young women who alighted from the train. Some of them sank down on their suit cases on the station floor. One girl was so homesick that she wept a bit, but her temperament saved her, and she was smiling in a moment over the account one of the other girls was giving of the trip in the Pullman sleeping car. It was the first the girls had ever seen. New, too, were the delights of ice cream soda, to which the chaperon introduced the girls in New York, where they landed Thursday.

A committee from the Chicago College club, headed by Miss L. D. De Lagneau, met the student travelers and took them to the clubrooms in the Stevens building, where there was an informal reception and dinner, and a talk by Antonin Barthelemy, French consul. Mrs. Millar told how the girls had been selected under the direction of the French minister of education.

France Sends Her Daughters.

"France has done something now which she has never done before," said Mrs. Millar. "She has sent us her daughters. A professor at the University in Bordeaux said: 'America has sent us her sons. We give her our daughters.' The French love the American soldiers not only because they have come to fight in France but for themselves. So we shall love the daughters of France."

Another lot of girl students from France will arrive next week.

ROOSEVELT NOTE TO SENATE ASKS VOTE FOR WOMEN

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—A message from former President Roosevelt to Republicans in the senate, brought to Washington today by Mrs. Florence Collins Porter of California, a member of the national woman's Republican executive committee, is as follows:

"Sagamore Hill, Sept. 19, 1918.—I earnestly hope every Republican will vote for the national suffrage amendment. We need it both as a peace and a war measure. The draft law, as amended, makes service the test of citizenship of men. Let us apply the same test to women. Let us demand service from every citizen and let us give the suffrage to all who render the service. Let us base suffrage on service, and not on sex.

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

Mrs. Medill McCormick of Chicago, chairman of this national Republican woman's executive committee, arrived tonight to join Miss Mary Garrett Hay, who has represented the committee in Washington this week. Voting women from all parts of the country are rapidly focussing the nation's attention on the senate situation.

COMMUNION WINE PROVES UNDOING OF CHURCH THIEF

When William J. Grady, 5544 Lowe avenue, known as "Hook Barnacle," robbed the Bethlehem Lutheran church at Fifty-eighth and Wells streets, the loot he took was varied. There was a communion decanter, an American flag, and a jug of wine, not to mention a waste paper basket. But it was the communion wine that proved his undoing.

After Grady had consumed about a half gallon he became a bit careless, "tearing up the place" something awful, according to the Rev. G. S. Ohslund, and leaving in the woodwork imprints of the iron hook at the end of his amputated arm. With this as a clew, the police found him easily.

Grady confessed yesterday at the Englewood station. The loss was estimated at $1,000.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—Victor Murdock of Kansas was nominated by President Wilson today for another term as a member of the federal trade commission.

Senator Lewis Has Cold; Ordered to Stay in Bed

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois, returned to Washington today from his mysterious mission to Europe, reported to have been undertaken for President Wilson. The Illinois senator arrived suffering from a severe cold and was at once ordered by his physician to bed and to remain there until Monday.

LIBERTY MOTOR BEST, DECLARES AIR MAIL HEAD

"The Liberty motor is the best engine ever made or designed. We have used them in aerial mail airplanes since May 15, and not a single engine has given us one moment's trouble. They are a wonderful piece of mechanism and the best engine every placed in an airplane."

This emphatic approbation of the government's airplane motor came yesterday from Capt. B. B. Lipsner, superintendent of the aerial mail service. It was an answer to stories that the aerial mail aviators have had considerable trouble with Liberty motors.

"The story has made the rounds until it savors of German propaganda," Capt. Lipsner said. "The truth is the motor is a marvel."

Capt. Lipsner leaves the first of the week with Aviators Edward W. Gardner, Louis Gertson, Lauton Smith, and Max Miller for Houston, Tex. They will return the latter part of the week with army planes to be used in the mail service between this city and New York. It is planned formally to inaugurate the service to New York on Nov. 1.

CHOWCHILLA 108,000 ACRES

The Profit Land—A Real Farm-Home

IN CALIFORNIA

ALL through Iowa and Illinois they are talking of Chowchilla, California.

Telling each other about the wonderful ALFALFA LAND. The country of dairy dollars and hog profits.

Some have been out there. Others have had word from there.

They have heard of Alfalfa—6 to 10 cuttings a year—1½ tons to the cutting. They have heard of Chowchilla's sugar beets and wheat, and rice—each growing immense crops.

They know of Chowchilla in The Valley of the San Joaquin with its fertile soil—and underneath a lake of pure water, tapped by electric pumps from shallow wells—a water supply ready on the instant to provide water to meet all the farm's needs.

Out there in Chowchilla now hundreds of families are thriving—raising big crops—getting big prices.

A real living in this wonderful sunshine country, where they grow always two staple crops a year—and where farming operations continue all the year round.

It has a model creamery, grain elevator, churches, a $50,000 high school and unsurpassed transportation.

A splendid paved boulevard extends twelve miles out into the tract, and in town, connects with the great California State Highway.

Almost everyone motors at Chowchilla, and the roads are hard, dry and dustless, connecting all the cities of the State, north and south.

It is only a short run to Fresno, San Francisco, Los Angeles, or east to the cool shades of the Yosemite.

Chowchilla has plenty of sunshine.

That is why the alfalfa in certain seasons grows an inch a day.

At Chowchilla it is the fashion to have a back-yard orchard, with peaches, grapes, figs, olives and practically all the tropical fruits. You can grow everything you need for home consumption, with an unlimited market and good prices at hand.

Daniel Hayes Chowchilla Farms

The first great sale of Daniel Hayes Chowchilla farms—5,000 acres in 30 days, was a real success. Five thousand two hundred and twenty acres were sold to the wisest, most careful buyers in America—the thinking farmers of Iowa and Illinois.

They were sold, because these farmers wanted to change a part of their investment in their own State to a country that offers even more. Because they realized the advantage of a home-life in California.

And because they realized the patriotic service of helping to put this vast acreage into crop and making it produce food for this Country and its Allies.

Hayes Certified Farms at Chowchilla Are Certified

Certified as to location—as to crop advantages—as to the results of surrounding farms.

And certified by the Hayes Cropping Memorandum, in which we share the cost of putting the land into crop and insure the actual cropping production.

Investigate Chowchilla farms! A Second Chowchilla Drive is now on. Ten thousand acres of this choice Chowchilla land is released for sale in forty days.

The Daniel Hayes Certified Farms are well located, ready for development and cultivation. You can select your farm now and go out there after it is in crop—producing and paid for.

Buy it now on our money-back plan and have your money returned if, on investigation according to our contract, you find it is not to your complete satisfaction.

There is a Daniel Hayes man in your neighborhood. Look him up. He has a big story to tell you—the story of Chowchilla and Chowchilla's prospects.

Chowchilla prices are bound to advance in the near future. If you want to take advantage—act now. If you want further information, please send coupon for illustrated literature. Address—

CHICAGOAN TWICE DECORATED DIES ON BATTLEFIELD

Nineteen Names on Official Casualty List; Relatives Report Three.

Nineteen Chicagoans were named in the official casualties of yesterday—thirteen in the early list and six in the list issued last night. In addition, relatives reported to THE TRIBUNE the names of three men killed in action.

Of these, Corporal Clarence E. Eagle, company E, One Hundred and Thirty-first infantry, had recently been decorated for valor by King George and Gen. Pershing, for his work in an "over the top" engagement July 4 in capturing four German soldiers. He was formerly with Wilson & Co., packers, and his death adds the seventh gold star to the company's service flag of 1,300 stars. His home was at 6607 West Sixty-third street.

Son of "Tribune" Employé Killed.

The second man unofficially reported killed in action is Bugler Frank B. Swift, also of the One Hundred and Thirty-first infantry. He was a son of Benjamin W. Swift, an employé of THE TRIBUNE proofroom, and lived at 444 Circle avenue, Forest Park. He was 21 years old and enlisted in April of 1917.

In his last letter to his mother, Mrs. J. F. Hutchins of 2153 West Jackson boulevard, Private Creighton McVean Hutchins, Company C, Thirteenth field artillery, wrote: "Never fear but that your son will do his duty." He was reported as killed in action in a private war department telegram received by Mrs. Hutchins yesterday.

In the Official List.

Private Christian W. Schaflein, named in the official list yesterday as killed in action, was with Company A, Fifty-ninth infantry. His parents live at 6240 Aberdeen street.

Among those listed as "died from wounds" are Private Joseph John Winandy and Corporal William J. Seskarski, both of the machine gun company, One Hundred and Thirty-first infantry; Private Charles L. Kell, Company A, Three Hundred and Fifty-fifth infantry, and Private Otto Ledecky, Company B, First field battalion, signal corps.

The complete list of Chicagoans officially announced will be found in the casualties.

North Side to See Circus Parade Today

The small boys and grownups who live on the north side who didn't get a chance to see the circus parade in the loop on Friday will have an opportunity of viewing the red wagons this morning. Leaving the show grounds in Grant park at 9:30 a. m., the Hagenbeck-Wallace pageant will pass over the following route: Monroe street west to Clark street, on Clark to Wilson avenue, east on Wilson avenue to Broadway, south on Broadway to loop and back to Grant park. The circus is playing a short engagement for the benefit of the stage women's war relief.

CHICAGOAN HOME AFTER BATTLE OF CHATEAU THIERRY

Thrilling Tale of 'Wonderful Americans' Told by Officer.

Lieut. Warren A. McCracken received his commission in the artillery at the second Fort Sheridan officers training camp. He left Chicago for France late in 1917. He was in the battle of July 13 at Chateau Thierry and in other battles.

WARREN A. McCRACKEN
MOFFETT PHOTO

He started back from abroad on the Mount Vernon, which was torpedoed. He reembarked on another ship and reached Chicago Thursday.

After a week's furlough with his parents in Chicago he will leave for Camp Meade.

During the trouble with Mexico in 1916, McCracken was on the Texas border with the artillery. He is a son of C. A. S. McCracken of THE TRIBUNE.

Masks on Seven Hours.

Of his experiences Lieut. McCracken says:

"We went up about the first week in July, and took our first position the 13th—the day before the tremendous German bombardment. A great deal of the shelling was gas. We had our masks on for seven hours.

"The Americans are wonderful. They have put new life into the allies. Our men were under fire for the first time and they were very courageous. Some of them won croix de guerres.

"The firing lasted until noon the next day, when we returned to our guns and prepared for a big offensive. All the time the enemy fire was great. That night it was heavy. The following day it was bad, and for a week we received many projectiles. I didn't get any sleep for the first ten days in battle. The third day I was instructed to go up to the infantry lines to do some observation, and to get up there I had to travel through a heavily shelled woods, which was five miles wide.

"I left the gun position and started on the trip with a sergeant and another officer. We were constantly dodging shells, many of them dropping close to us. I don't know how we ever got through that woods. We stayed four or five hours, hoping we could get communication, but as soon as the telephone wire would be repaired some German shell would knock it out.

Escapes Through Heavy Barrage.

"We finally decided to get back and about 5 p. m., when the shelling was getting worse, as the boche was supposed to come over at 4 p. m., we were right in the midst of the heavy barrage, but got back. That night the boche did come over and took that part of the trench we were in, but the next day our infantry pushed them back.

"The night after that I was ordered to take a position in the infantry trench on the other flank. I was there early in the afternoon, and adjusted batteries on a church tower in a town occupied by a German division. After that I was ordered to stay out there all night to see what I could see.

"It was quiet, except at 11 o'clock there was a gas alarm, and everybody turned out and we had our gas masks on only for about 10 minutes. I went back to bed, which was a wall in a trench, and all the cover I had was my trench coat. I had a good night's sleep and was awakened about 3:30, which was daylight, by a tremendous barrage by our artillery.

Went from There.

"From then on we went. When I went back to my battery I had nothing to report but good news. The following day we were ordered to move our position. As we went ahead in the territory which had been occupied by the Germans we saw how much they were forced to leave. Hundreds of machine guns, thousands of rifles, clothing and all sorts of equipment. There were hundreds of dead."

Congress Tightens Rule of Wilson Over Metals

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—House and senate conferees on the bill for government control over production and distribution of certain minerals needed in connection with the prosecution of the war reached an agreement today, accepting virtually in full the senate provision under which the president would be authorised to requisition and take over undeveloped deposits or mines, smelters, or plants. The bill as agreed upon creates a revolving fund of $50,000,000 to be used in carrying out its provisions and gives the president authority to create one or more corporations, the purpose of which would be to increase production and facilitate distribution.

Sixty Per Cent. of Physical Unfitness Due to Preventable Causes

A NATION at war learns its weakness and its strength. There is strength in knowing weakness.

After 56 years we have had a physical try-out of the young men of this Nation.

We know our strength—millions of splendid stalwart fighting men, many of them too big for the clothes we planned for them.

We know our weakness—thirty-eight per cent. of our men between 21 and 31 physically unfit for war.

Does that mean that those accepted are 100% fine? Unfortunately, no! Many are really unfit and will fall out—many are now unfit but will measure up and make good.

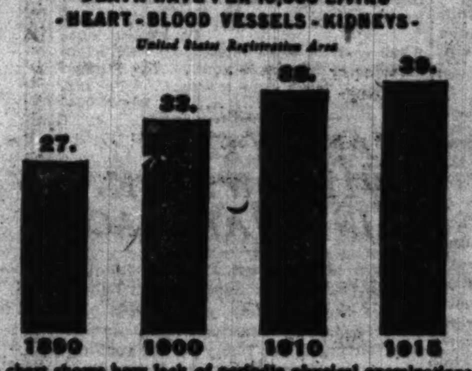
We have reason to believe that 60% of the unfitness is due to preventable causes.

When we enter the age group 31 to 45, what then? Not as good a record as in the ages 21 to 31, of course. Perhaps 50% to 60% of unfitness.

Why do we wait 56 years to discover these conditions?

Why do we not examine all citizens every year, instead of only one or two groups on the occasion of a great war, or when illness or pain is present?

Some day the Government may do this work at shorter intervals than half a century. Until then, the Life Extension Institute stands ready to do it for you—no matter what your age or business.



This chart shows how lack of periodic physical examinations and failure to detect the early signs of chronic organic disease have permitted these diseases of the heart, blood vessels and kidneys to increase. Neglect of personal hygiene is another cause.

Things the Institute Stands for

- Periodic physical examination yearly;
- Early detection of bodily impairment or disease;
- Early detection of sound health (some people are sound without knowing it);
- Practice of personal hygiene, or how to live;
- The utilization of tested scientific knowledge;
- Better child hygiene;
- Better adult hygiene;
- Better public hygiene;
- Longer life;
- Better life;
- Fearless life;
- Happier life.

Things the Institute Opposes

- Quackery;
- The use of patent medicines or other ignorant forms of self treatment;
- Magic cures, systems, and universal panaceas for diseases that ought never to happen;
- Self-indulgent neglect of the body;
- Waiting until disease is manifest before calling the doctor;
- Fear of disease and self-coddling;
- Premature breakdown;
- Premature death.

Just Plain Common Sense

The Institute believes in exercise for you—but the kind of exercise that you need.

The Institute believes in regulation of diet, but diet regulated according to your individual condition.

The Institute does not believe that you can "eat yourself out of rheumatism" when you have a septic tonsil or a root abscess in your jaw.

The Institute does not believe in regulating a misbehaving stomach when the cause is bad mental habit or a neglect of physical training.

The Institute does not believe that physical training will do you any good so long as there is a focus of infection in your body that is responsible for your trouble.

In a word, the Institute does believe in exercise, diet, mental and physical hygiene all along the line and it appeals to the intelligence and common sense of the public to follow the lead of science and reject the half-baked pseudo-scientific cults that appeal to the unwary.

Preceding most serious illnesses there is usually a long period of impairment or of progressive changes that gradually reduce the value of the individual to himself and to society. These changes are frequently so slow and insidious that you do not realize them until they are well advanced, but from the very beginning they leave signs that science can detect.

Safety in Periodic Examinations

The Life Extension Institute believes in the periodic examination, not only of the body, but of the whole life, and in this it has the co-operation and endorsement of the forward-looking members of the medical profession, who believe that the mission of medical science is to keep people healthy—nay, more, to increase their total health as well as to relieve suffering and cure disease.

These are the broad general principles that have led men like ex-President Taft, Alexander Graham Bell, Prof. Irving Fisher, of Yale, Charles H. Sabin, Robert W. deForest, and one hundred other eminent authorities in this country and abroad, to give their services to the work without compensation—other than the satisfaction of seeing its results. The Life Extension Institute has a staff of more than 5000 physicians in all parts of the country. Its work is national.

Over 80,000 men and women in all parts of the United States have taken the health services of the Institute and have received its physical examinations, its guidance and instructions.

The Life Extension Institute is not a profit making institution in the usual sense of the word, but a public welfare organization on a self-supporting basis. Two-thirds of the profits are set aside in a trust fund to be used solely for public health work of a national scope.

Guidance in individual hygiene is given by the Institute, but no medical or surgical treatment is furnished. Those in need of such treatment are counselled as to the proper form of treatment to be sought and are urged to seek relief through scientific, medical and surgical sources, and are warned against quacks, charlatans and self-treatment.

The cost of membership in the Life Extension Institute is low, because of the Institute's humanitarian character and national ideals.

Examinations of subscribers who live in Chicago or vicinity are made at the Chicago office of the Institute, 5 N. Wabash Avenue—on appointment by telephone or letter—between the hours of 9 A. M. and 5 P. M.

Visitors are always welcome at the office of the Institute. An opportunity is thus afforded to learn of the work of the Institute and what membership means to you personally.

Convenient appointments can also be arranged with the Institute's examiners in the member's home district or city. A coupon is printed below for the convenience of those desiring further information. A postal or letter, however, will do just as well.

The Life Extension Institute has a Hygiene Reference Board of 100 leading scientific men, including the Surgeon-Generals of the Army and Navy, and U. S. Public Health Service; several ex-Presidents of the American Medical Association; Commissioners of Public Health, and others interested in the public welfare. Matters of scientific policy and educational material used in the Institute's service are submitted to this Board for opinion. A complete list will be furnished on application.

IMPORTANT

The Life Extension Institute was founded for the public good. It would not be fulfilling its highest obligations if it said to you selfishly that you cannot get a thorough physical examination anywhere else but at the Institute. That is not true.

There are thousands of physicians who are fitted by experience and training—and who have the time and inclination to do this work and do it well.

The Life Extension Institute is just a central organization to which one hundred of the leading medical men of the country have dedicated their advice that the value of periodic health examinations may be impressed upon thousands and hundreds of thousands of men and women instead of just a few.

Go to your physician or come to the Life Extension Institute—it makes no difference. But get that health examination before it is too late—that's the big thing.

Among the many prominent business houses that have asked the Life Extension Institute to examine their vital, important employees are the Guaranty Trust Company, Franklin Motor Car Company, Solvay Process Company and the Barrett Manufacturing Company. The Standard Oil Company of New York has chosen the Institute to examine the men they have selected for important work abroad. Foreign representatives of the American Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A., the Knights of Columbus and the Salvation Army have also been examined by the Institute before going abroad.

AMERICA'S RUSH OF NEW SHIPS BEATING U-BOAT

Two Million Tons Delivered; Two Million More by January.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—In the building of ships to beat the submarine, transport and supply the American armies abroad, and feed and otherwise supply our allies, Uncle Sam is beginning to get into his stride.

New ships of more than 2,000,000 dead weight tonnage had been delivered to the shipping board up to Sept. 1, according to a report made public by Chairman Hurley today. Although President Wilson's expectation that 6,000,000 tons will be turned out in 1918 cannot be fulfilled, it now is certain that the estimate of 3,000,000 tons made by critics of the program will be exceeded and possible that 4,000,000 tons will be achieved.

335 Ships Ready.

Eighty-nine ships of 465,435 dead weight tonnage, contracted for by the shipping board, have been delivered. Of these fifty-six are steel ships of 347,936 tons in the aggregate and thirty-three are wooden ships totaling 117,500 tons. In addition there have been delivered 238 ships, aggregating 1,386,599 tons, contracted for by individuals and corporations, which were requisitioned during the process of construction and completed by the shipping board. Then there are eight ships of 66,357 tons, built under shipping board contract in Japan. Altogether 335 vessels, aggregating 2,019,032 tons, have been delivered.

Submarine Beaten.

In addition to the tonnage delivered 137 wooden, thirteen composite, seventy-four steel, and thirty-two requisitioned ships, aggregating 1,008,206 tons, have been launched and are approaching completion.

German submarines have destroyed more than 21,000,000 tons of shipping during the war, and, despite replacements by allied and neutral construction of ships in that time, there is a net loss due to submarine destruction of more than 3,000,000 tons. Allied construction, however, now exceeds the rate of German destruction. Chairman Hurley portrays the contest between the construction and the destruction in the following table:

Table Shows Contest.

Status of world tonnage Sept. 1, 1918 [Germany and Austria excluded]:

Total construction [allied and neutral], August, 1914-Sept. 1, '18	14,247,825
Total enemy tonnage captured [to end of 1917]	3,795,000
Excess of losses over gains	3,362,088
Estimated normal increase in world's tonnage if war had not occurred [based on rate of increase, 1904-1914]	14,700,000
Net deficit due to war	18,062,088

Exceeds Destruction.

In August, deliveries to the shipping board and other seagoing construction in the United States for private parties passed allied and neutral destruction for that month. The figures:

Deliveries to the shipping board	244,121
Other construction over 1,000 gross	16,918
Total	261,039
Losses [allied and neutral]	259,400

NOTE—World's merchant tonnage, as of June 30, 1914, totaled 49,089,552 gross tons, or, roughly, 73,634,328 dead weight tons (Lloyd's register).

Here Is Program.

The full program of ship construction comprises 2,693 vessels aggregating 16,305,005 tons, distributed as follows:

2,249 contract ships totaling	13,212,712
42 concrete ships totaling	301,500
402 requisitioned ships totaling	2,790,792
2,693 ships	16,305,004

STANLEY GETS WILSON'S O. K. IN SENATE RACE

Mayfield, Ky., Sept. 21.—The opening of the Democratic campaign in behalf of Gov. A. O. Stanley as a candidate to succeed the late Senator Ollie L. James was featured here today by the reading of a letter from President Wilson addressed to Senator Beckham in which the president voiced a hope for the success of Senator Beckham's efforts in support of Gov. Stanley. The president's letter read:

"White House, Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—The Hon. J. C. W. Beckham, Washington, D. C.—I understand you are leaving today to join Gov. Stanley in opening his campaign in Kentucky. May I not say that my cordial best wishes go with you? It is of the utmost consequence that the administration should have the direct and unflagging assistance of its real friends at this time, and I wish you Godspeed.

"WOODROW WILSON."

Franklin D. Roosevelt Improving, Report Says

New York, Sept. 21.—The condition of Franklin D. Roosevelt, assistant secretary of war, who is at the home of his mother here suffering from a slight attack of pneumonia, continues to improve, it was announced today. He spent a comfortable night.

REGULARS GAIN IN FIGHT OVER STATE CHAIRMAN

A gain of a seat on the Republican state committee was made yesterday by the Brundage-Galpin neutrals, when the canvass of the vote in the Eighth district indicated that Lee A. Dunne had been defeated by William J. Anderson by about 500 votes. The official totals have not been struck, but watchers for the regulars kept tab by precincts.

Two other contested seats, that held up the reorganization of the state committee at Springfield were likewise claimed by the regulars. In the Sixth Leland S. Rapp, on the basis of the unofficial totals of the canvass, beat H. C. Patterson by almost 2,000, and in the Fifth Herman E. Miller, former alderman, beat Abram J. Harris, who had the support of City Sealer Morris Eller by an unofficial margin of some 525.

The gain of the seat in the Eighth puts fifteen names instead of fourteen on the list signed up at Springfield to back the "round robin" submitting four names for state chairman—Frank L. Smith, Garrett Kinney, L. H. Miner, and Adam C. Cliffe. Mr. Kinney has effaced himself and is working for the election of Col. Smith. It now lies between Smith and Cliffe, with the odds apparently favoring Smith.

Smoot Leads Republican Campaign Body in Senate

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—Senator Smoot of Utah today was selected by the senate Republicans as chairman of the senatorial Republican campaign committee, succeeding the late Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire. Senator Frelinghuysen of New Jersey was elected to the vacancy on the committee caused by Senator Gallinger's death.

PHILIPPINE JUDGE RESIGNS.

MANILA, P. I., Sept. 21.—Justice Frederick Charles Fisher of the Philippines Supreme court has resigned to enter private practice. He was appointed in 1917 by President Wilson.

A stiff paste made with some powdered Delatone and water and spread on a hairy surface about 2 minutes will, when removed, take every trace of hair with it. The Future Value of Lands Near Chicago Knows No Limit

FARMING LANDS are soaring in value. Mankind demands food and that demand has made the farmer immensely wealthy today. But, furthermore, America's cities are growing richer daily and consequently property values are rising and reflecting that increase in the farm lands surrounding them. Chicago's wartime industrial activities are creating demands for more homes and for small farms near Chicago to supply her workers with food and a place to live.

FUEL OFFICIALS CHIDE M'LADY FOR AIRY GARB

All Parties Censured in Statement on Demand for Early Heat.

Disputes between janitors and tenants of apartment buildings regarding whether or not the heat should be turned on, have been so frequent recently that the fuel administration yesterday took official notice of the annual fall drive of the flat dwellers against the forces intrenched in the basements.

In the statement issued by Harold Almert, chairman of the conservation division of the fuel administration, blame for the trouble is distributed between the tenants, the janitors, and the "improper dress of women." Some suggestions and criticisms from Mr. Almert follow:

"The conservation department of the United States fuel administration has been flooded with telephone calls from tenants, owners, and agents inquiring what the official date is for starting heating.

No Official Date.

"There is no official date set by the fuel administration and no arbitrary date can be set which would be equitable, as the uncertainty of the weather is a prime factor in determining when there should or should not be artificial heat.

"Many of the unreasonable demands by tenants are due to the improper dress of women, who, if properly clothed with full length undergarments, with full length sleeves and buttoning up to the neck, would not require heat when temperature is as high as 68 to 70 degrees in the morning and evening and 70 degrees or over in the middle of the day.

"The only equitable ruling that can be made is that in cases where there are small children, feeble persons, or illness if the temperature in rooms occupied by such people is below 68 degrees they should have heat. With the present weather a little heat in the morning and evening to take off the chill is all that is necessary. For this purpose the burning of refuse, a little wood, or soft coal, morning and evening, is all that is necessary.

Humidity Big Factor.

"Humidity is an important factor. A liberal sized water receptable should be kept on each radiator. A living room is more comfortable at from 65 to 68 degrees with moisture in the air than rooms heated to a temperature of 72 to 75 degrees without moisture.

"Fuel administrators and committees are the local representatives of the United States fuel administration. It is impossible for them to be in all the homes all the time. Will you, therefore, be a representative of the United States fuel administration in your own home and do this work cheerfully as part of your war work?"

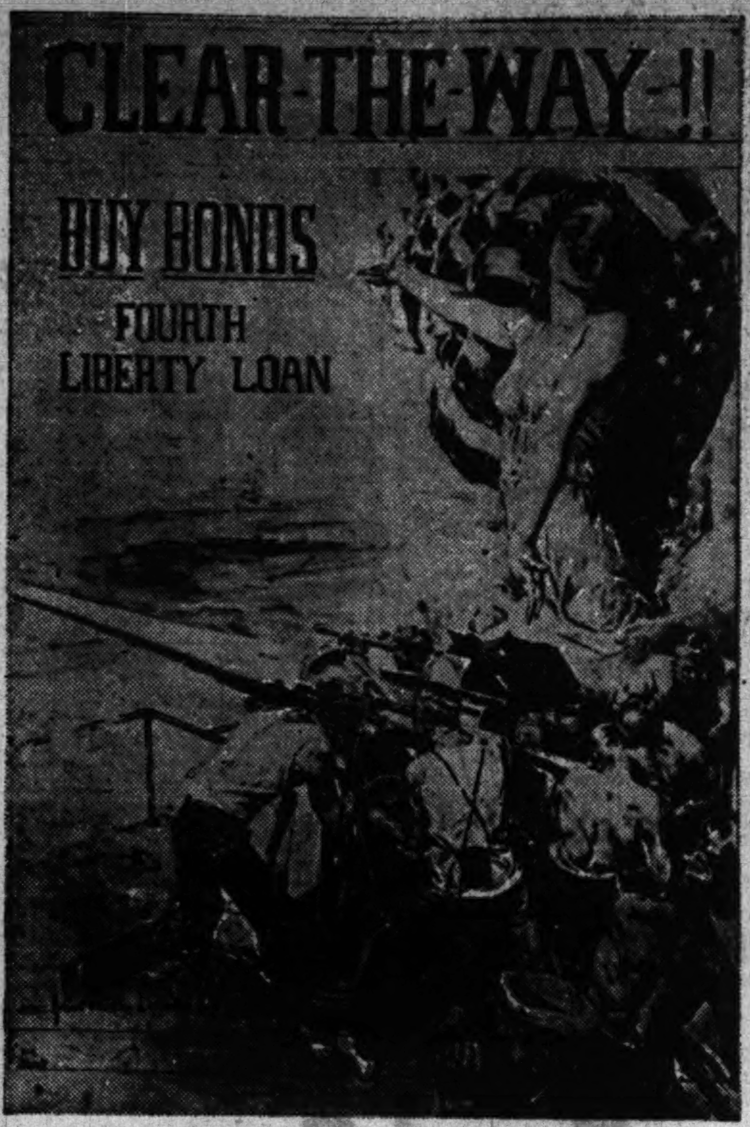
CALL TO ACTION

One of Ten Posters, Contributed by Famous Artists, to Be Distributed in Fourth Liberty Loan Campaign.



A vivid bit of fighting action from the Atlantic fleet is portrayed in one of the ten posters now being distributed by the treasury department for the fourth Liberty loan drive, which opens next Saturday. The poster is the work of Howard Chandler Christy and shows a gun's crew in action against a submarine. Urging the men on is a modern conception of Victory, who rises from the folds of the American flag and points to the caption: "Clear the Way! Buy bonds, Fourth Liberty Loan." The gun's crew is portrayed down to the smallest detail, Mr. Christy having based his drawing on a photograph taken by a naval officer during action. One million copies of the poster, which is 20x30 inches in size, will be distributed. The poster is lithographed in eight colors.

SHOOP MEMORIAL AT EVERY SCHOOL, SAYS MORTENSON

Every school in Chicago will hold some memorial service this week in honor of John D. Shoop, deceased superintendent of schools. This was the request and announcement of Superintendent Mortenson, his successor, yesterday in addressing principals and superintendents of districts at a memorial service to Mr. Shoop at Fullerton hall.

"John Shoop was a friend of the children," he said, "and we want to call their attention to their loss."

Francis G. Blair, state superintendent of public instruction, was the principal speaker at the memorial. Of Mr. Shoop he said: "During his life he built an enduring monument in the memory of all who knew him."

Orville T. Bright, a district superintendent, paid tribute to him because of the good fight he made, telling how he worked his way up from a poor orphan boy on an Ohio farm to one of the greatest educators of the country.

Among others who spoke were Mrs. F. E. Thornton, member of the school board, and Ernest E. Cole, assistant superintendent.

LIBERTY DAY TO BE MADE WHOLE WEEK IN CHICAGO

Roosevelt and Daniels Invited to Join Loan Celebrations.

Centennial-Liberty week in Chicago, Oct. 7-13, will be memorable.

Let all the countryside prepare to come to town to see the pageant of the Illinois Centennial at the Auditorium, or a parade with Col. Roosevelt and Secretary Daniels in the front carriages, or one of the great massmeetings planned for theaters and circus tents, or even one of the red fire ward celebrations that are being planned by the Liberty loan committee.

Chicago's patriotism will be emblazoned across the sky in a thousand celebrations if all the plans of the various coöperating organizations materialize.

Oct. 12, as every one knows, is Liberty day, by proclamation of the president. This is the day when Chicago will jot down the item of $250,000,000 or more as its contribution to the fourth Liberty loan and the everlasting defeat of the Huns.

Roosevelt and Daniels Invited.

Col. Roosevelt and Secretary Daniels have been asked to appear on Oct. 9.

Twenty-six thousand members of the Liberty loan ward organizations are busy thinking up stunts to arouse their neighbors.

There will be sixty soldiers of the famous Foreign Legion of France here next Wednesday to stir up enthusiasm.

The Knights of Columbus, who have observed Oct. 12 as Columbus day for many years, will coördinate their program with Liberty day.

The pageant depicting Illinois history will begin the next day and there will be something doing every minute from that time until taps.

Prepare Plans This Week.

H. H. Merrick, president of the National Security league, has asked the executive and general committee to meet at the Union League club next Wednesday to prepare plans for the week in coöperation with the Liberty loan headquarters people who will be in general charge of the celebration.

Lucius Teter, president of the Association of Commerce, has promised the participation of that body.

The presidents' committee of twenty-eight organizations will meet early in the week to get each one of the twenty-eight bodies in line for work and fun.

Oak Park and River Forest will open their drive for the loan this afternoon with a rally at the Oak Park theater.

M'ADOO HOISTS LOAN FLAG AS POILUS CHEER

U. S. Offers Blood and Treasure, Secretary Says.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—While 100 French veterans stood at salute, the fourth Liberty loan honor flag was raised today to the top of the treasury, where it will fly throughout the loan campaign, which starts next Saturday.

It was the first public display of the banner, which is similar to the emblem of the third loan except that it bears four instead of three blue bars on the interior field of white.

McAdoo Hoists Banner.

Secretary McAdoo from the south steps of the treasury hoisted the banner while a throng of government employés and representatives of allied nations cheered repeatedly for Gen. Pershing, France, England, Italy, and the other allies.

Moving picture cameras ground out yards of films which will be displayed soon in theaters over the entire country. The soldiers who took a prominent part in the ceremony include members of the Foreign Legion, who are to tour the country during the campaign, and will be in Chicago Wednesday, Sept. 25.

Will Pour Out Blood.

Referring to the fourth loan, Secretary McAdoo said:

"We are prepared to make any expenditure of blood that may be required to do this great job for civilization and humanity, and because we are willing to shed our blood, we are willing to expend what is of far less consequence, every dollar of American treasure we now have or that we may hope to have from now until eternity.

"We are resolved to liberate France, Belgium, and the other oppressed peoples of the earth. We are resolved that democracy and freedom and civilization shall not perish from the face of the earth, and that no German kaiser or any other kind of despot shall ever again be permitted to menace the peace of civilization or the immortal principles of righteousness, of justice, of law and order in the world."

Every Child a Soldier.

Secretary McAdoo today appointed every child of school age in the United States a "soldier of the Liberty loan." In a statement issued to school children, through the National Woman's Liberty Loan committee, Mr. McAdoo said:

"The Liberty loan is a service in which every man, woman, and child in the country may take part. Children may carry the creed of patriotism even into their own homes. Because of this influence a child may help sell Liberty bonds. I hereby appoint every child of school age in the United States a soldier of the Liberty loan."

How I make my dollars Work for Me

To save money is not enough. You work to save. Then your savings should work for you. This is to tell in simple terms how not only one but thousands of people have found it possible to make their money work for them and be as safely secure as tho held in their savings bank.

The man or woman of little or large savings should read these facts. To them they will be of greater interest than to any other investor. As a customer, you will personally learn. As an investigator, thousands of pleased people—some possibly in your own neighborhood—will tell you the same things we promise here.

I am YOU. I am one of thousands that have worked to save. Saving, I found that my savings were of no extra value except as savings. Money withdrawn for comforts was money deducted from my savings. My savings were not working for me as I had worked for them. But content that what I had worked for was safe and secure, I continued to save.

Quite by accident—which will not be your case—I learned it was within my power to make my money work for me exactly as do the great trust companies—the insurance companies—and as shrewd financiers make their money accumulate for them. I, an ordinary hard working mortal, could have their means of making dollars earn dollars.

I wanted a large paying investment—something that could immediately be turned into cash if needs be. So I learned of the Mortgage Plan. Then I quickly learned of the special feature of that plan that makes it possible for you—your friends and all of us with small savings to have the guaranteed security of land investment plus the larger interest earning power and negotiable quality that we all want.

The Plan is the FIRST FARM MORTGAGE BOND Plan. It is offered especially for the man or woman who has anywhere from $50.00 to $1,000.00 to invest. It is based on the needs of the borrower as compared with the desires of the investor.

There is none of the element of speculation. It is as though you were our next door neighbors—and we deal with you in that fashion. A great $2,000,000.00 banking corporation—we have attained gigantic size thru the simple policy that "Pleased Customers Make Pleased Customers."

The Supreme Test of Chicago's Patriotism

SOME time in the life of every man comes a day when he must make a vital decision—a declaration that means everything to his future.

The same kind of a crisis-day comes in the lifetime of a great city.

On next Saturday and on the days thereafter, Chicago will declare herself to the nation and to the world.

The occasion is the launching of the Fourth Liberty Loan Campaign, September 28th.

During this campaign, Chicago will cast her vote in the big national referendum on world decency. Chicago will declare herself for, or against, the cause of world righteousness—the same cause for which thousands of her sons are fighting and dying today in France.

It is a time, indeed, for solemn thought.

Chicago will want to face the facts frankly. For upon each individual's decision, rests the greater decision of his city.

This is a huge loan—the largest the country ever faced—the largest because the need today is more urgent than ever before.

Chicago's quota will be far greater than it was in the last loan.

Let this fact sink home. This means that every individual must shoulder his share of the responsibility to the very utmost. It means that every individual must feel the personal responsibility that rests upon him as he never did before.

Thirty thousand citizen patriots—each of whom has first of all done his or her part to the utmost—have enlisted as salesmen in this campaign.

These salesmen will call upon every resident of Chicago and its suburbs. They will explain the detailed features of the loan. They will take your subscription—at your home or at your place of business.

Treat these patriot-solicitors with courtesy; treat them with respect; conserve their time by buying promptly when you are asked. And remember that one patriot need not urge another.

By conserving the solicitor's time—time which he gives voluntarily from his own business duties—you are also saving time for your Government.

Make your personal investment a matter of conscience. Think it over very seriously.

The task which now confronts Chicago is gigantic.

But it is not too big for Chicago.

This loan will be the supreme test of Chicago's patriotism.

Loyalty Row Looms for Tuesday, When Chapter Takes Up Issue.

Tuesday is likely to be a stormy day for Oak Park Daughters of the American Revolution. The retention or elimination of German in the curriculum of the Oak Park-River Forest Township High school is the question that is dividing members of the George Rogers Clark chapter.

Mrs. C. G. Bird, retiring regent, is the leader of the movement to oust the tongue of kultur. Miss Elizabeth Bacon, regent elect, believes it should be retained. The members, it appeared from opinions expressed last night, are about equally divided. The question will be thrashed out Tuesday afternoon at the first meeting of the chapter year at the residence of Mrs. J. Fletcher [illegible].

Refused to Stop Study.

That the township high school board has considered the subject of dropping German from the course became known yesterday, when resolutions adopted by the D. A. R. chapter and mailed to the board last May were made public. Mrs. Bird stated, and Miss Bacon admitted, that two letters were subsequently received from the school board.

The first letter, dated May 16, was a mere acknowledgment and expressed the hope the D. A. R. resolutions were "the result of mature deliberation." The second letter, signed by Mrs. Lillian McNutt Douglass, secretary of the board, stated that the matter had been considered and that the board had "decided not to discontinue the teaching of German."

In connection with this correspondence, the remark a month ago of J. K. Ingalls, president of the township high school board, was recalled, to the effect that the subject had "never been discussed by the board."

Miss Bacon Has Letters.

Miss Bacon admitted that the correspondence between the chapter and the board was in her possession, having been turned over to her as regent-elect by Mrs. Bird, the retiring regent.

"I do not believe, however, that it would be right for me to give it out," said Miss Bacon last night. "And I am not sure that I want it published. You see, I agree with Mr. Ingalls and the board."

"I shall demand that the correspondence be produced at Tuesday's meeting," said Mrs. Bird. "And then I shall move that the matter be taken up with the school board once more—this time in a somewhat more insistent manner."

"And I shall support Mrs. Bird," said Mrs. Daniel G. Trench.

Promises Stormy Session.

"Tuesday's session will doubtless be a stormy one," laughed Miss Bacon. "I have told the chairman of the program committee that it would be unnecessary for her to provide any special entertainment, as I thought the business of the meeting would be quite entertaining enough in itself.

"This whole movement," she continued, "appears to me to be based upon a spirit of fanaticism. Doubtless I shall be called a pro-German for saying that, but I believe it is true, nevertheless. I think German should be retained in our schools, not merely because it is likely to prove useful in many ways but for another reason. The whole psychology underlying the attempt to oust it is unsound. One should know as much about one's enemy as possible, and how is one to do this if one does not speak his language?

"I am not a pacifist, but I do not believe in deliberately encouraging a spirit of hate. I cannot hate any one. It is foreign to my nature. Even when the Americans shall have conquered the Germans I think they should treat them humanely."

That the controversy is in part the result of chapter politics was hinted by Miss Bacon.

"Blot on the Escutcheon."

That the elimination of the German language from the high school curriculum of the suburb is a grave necessity is the belief of Mrs. Bird and her supporters.

"This 'blot on the 'scutcheon,'" said Mrs. Bird, "is most regrettable. Surely Oak Park, with its eighteen hundred men in service, will see that it is removed. The Daughters of the American Revolution can only request. The community must command.

"It would seem that the old rivalry between Evanston and Oak Park is at an end. Certainly the statistics—Evanston with but sixteen registering for the study of German, compared with Oak Park's 125 desiring kultur—attest the fact. It would seem that Oak Park is superlatively qualified for the position of 'leading suburb of the first German city.'"

Thinks Suburb Half Pro-Hun.

"The school board and Fire Chief [illegible] between them," said Mrs. Trench, "have certainly succeded in giving Oak Park a black eye. It would seem that our population is about 50 per cent pro-German."

Among the other women supporting Mrs. Bird in her fight for the suppression of the Hun tongue are Mrs. G. W. [illegible], Mrs. A. B. Chadwick, and Mrs. Roy C. Pearce. Mrs. William [illegible], secretary of the chapter, declined to commit herself.

DAVIS SLATED FOR BENNETT'S CITY HALL JOB

Severinghaus as School Head, Program of Thompson.

It was reported yesterday that recent conferences between Mayor Thompson and his advisers have resulted in slating Edwin S. Davis, president of the board of education, for appointment as commissioner of public works to succeed Frank I. Bennett.

Mr. Bennett has resigned to accept the post of state director of public works at the hands of Gov. Frank O. Lowden, and the task of filling his place in the city hall has been the subject of several worried councils with no definite results, it is said, until the name of President Davis was suggested.

It is expected he will be named by the mayor unless a complexity of difficulties that has been discovered develops an acute obstacle before the plan can be put into effect.

Severinghaus for School Head.

The makeup of the school board as affected by Mr. Davis' removal is perhaps the biggest problem taken up by now the conferees. Here it has been proposed that Albert H. Severinghaus, now vice president of the board, be named president to succeed Mr. Davis.

But in order to bring this about two things of importance must happen. In the October term the Supreme court is to pass on a motion for a rehearing on its decision that the most recent group of Thompson appointees are holding their memberships illegally. The city hall must win this battle.

In addition, it is said, the Thompson forces must obtain council concurrence in a number of appointments in order to retain the control of board affairs after the expiration of Mayor Thompson's term next spring.

To meet this situation the city hall conferees have considered favorably a project of asking the council to concur in the reappointment of a successor of President Davis and a successor to Trustee Charles S. Peterson, a rebel against Mayor Thompson, whose term expired on July 1.

Insures New "Solid Six."

Success in such a move, it is figured, would insure the election of Trustee Severinghaus as president and leave the Thompson appointees in control—by a vote of 6 to 5—after Mayor Thompson's term expires. The lineup would include Trustees Severinghaus, Dr. Sadie Bay Adair, Mrs. Edward G. Snodgrass, Mrs. F. E. Thornton, and the two new appointees.

The second feat that is considered difficult of accomplishment, especially in the near future, is the installation of Mr. Davis as commissioner of public works. City council concurrence in the appointment is required by the statutes, and until it could be had an appointee could not exercise the authority or draw the salary of the office.

Even if the council were in session, the city hall conferees feel, obtaining aldermanic approval for Mr. Davis' appointment might be an exceedingly difficult matter. Regardless of that phase of the situation, the council has adjourned until Nov. 18.

Special Sessions Necessary.

Mayor Thompson could call a special session of the council but the appointment could not be ratified at that meeting except by the four-fifths vote required to suspend the rules providing that action on appointments by the mayor must be deferred for one meeting. In other words, in order to put through an appointment before the latter part of November Mayor Thompson would have to call two special meetings, and some doubt has been expressed whether he could bring about the presence of a quorum for such a purpose.

Thus, although President Davis has the confidence of the city hall because of his faithfulness in school affairs, no attempt may be made to name him for almost two months.

Mother and Girl Hurt in Auto-Fire Engine Crash

JURY SHATTERS DREAM OF ARDENT SERBIAN ROMEO

"Trolley Cashier" Rival of Aviator for Beautiful Heiress in Blues.

When one side of a perfectly contented right angle wears the uniform of an aviation lieutenant and the other side is ravishingly pretty, 18, and an heiress, what would be your guess as to the fate of a cashier on a street car who would aspire to transforming the contented right angle into an unwilling triangle?

You're right—he (the cashier) would be apt to age rapidly. And that is just what happened to Marko Markovitch, who describes himself as a "street car cashier." When Marko first fell in love eighteen months ago with pretty Anne Leoni, he said he was 31. In court yesterday he said he was 36. No wonder.

Maybe Marko, late of Serbia, could have got away with it in the Balkans, but in Chicago—well, it isn't done.

Persistent in His Ardor.

But if you had gone to the allied bazaar and there had met John A. Leoni, a wealthy photographer living at 5445 West Monroe street, and if you had learned that he had a pretty, dark eyed daughter who was an heiress in her own right, and you remembered that in Serbia parents sometimes made the matches, and then, without seeing Anne, you had called up Anne's mother and said: "Say, I want to marry your daughter."

And the beauty's mother gasped and had said: "My good man, do you think you are in Serbia?"

And then you saw Anne and discovered with your own eyes that what you had heard about her beauty was only half the story—

Removes Shoes in Parlor.

"Aha!" Marko rose to his full 6 feet and shook his raven locks in fury. "I cannot sleep, I cannot eat, I cannot work for thinking of your daughter. You will not give her to me? Well—then give me money. I hear you are worth $100,000."

And then supposing you were finally admitted to the home of your inamorata in the hope that you might be reasoned with. And suppose you had on new shoes and they hurt and you took them off in the beauty's parlor right under her papa's and mamma's nose, so to speak; and suppose that your inamorata protested outright that she didn't like your looks your ways, nor the color of your socks, and, in fact, didn't even want to make your acquaintance——

Wouldn't that make you mad? It made Marko Markovitch awfully mad. Chicago was never at all like Serbia.

And Lawsuit Falls Down.

Then, supposing you were mad as Marko Markovitch when he found that the beauty didn't even want to know him, and that her parents were not at all inclined to mend your shattered heart strings with threads of gold; and supposing you uttered careless remarks, and got pinched, wouldn't that make you mad, too? It made Marko Markovitch so mad that he sued John A. Leoni for $20,000 for false imprisonment.

And then if somebody got up in Judge David's court and told how you took off your shoes in the beauty's parlor, and the jury snickered and looked at you as if you weren't "all there"; and decided you weren't entitled to even 1 penny of the $20,000 you thought would soothe your madness, what would you think then?

"That Person"—Nothing More.

And supposing Miss Anne, when asked what she thought of you, merely tossed her pretty black locks and contented herself with remarking:

"That person!"

What would you think then? There's no telling what Marko Markovitch thinks, but if he could have seen the uniformed young American aviator, whose picture adorns the top of Miss Anne's piano, maybe he would have agreed with the jury.

But there's not telling about Marko Markovitch, late of Serbia. For he said, or so it is alleged: "I'm going to get that girl, and not let any American bum have her."

BLOSS SHOOTING CASE HINGES ON OWNER OF PISTOL

Pistol and poems, red roses and rings, a "Wanted a Wife" romance, and other cavortings of a "gentleman, 42," and a lovelorn lady, all figured yesterday in the case of Miss Marion Drummond, of Detroit and Seattle.

The pistol, an automatic, caused the postponement of the hearing before Judge Haas in the Hyde Park police court. Sidney M. Bloss, banker, lumberman, clubman, and married, charged Miss Drummond tried to shoot him in the entrance of his apartments Friday night.

"It's not my pistol. I never had one and never shot one." Miss Drummond said. "I met him by appointment. It is a frameup."

The case was continued to investigate the ownership of the weapon. Miss Drummond says she met Banker Bloss through this advertisement:

"Wanted, by American gentleman, 42, neat, refined lady, fond of theaters and amusements. Would marry if suited."

She says she lived with him six years before she found he had a wife in Chicago. Then a suit for $50,000 followed. He even bought her a wedding ring so she'd look married, she said.

JAIL IS CLIMAX TO THIS STORY OF TWO GRACES

One Miss Richards Is Nailed Seeking Cash on Other's Name.

Miss Grace C. Richards of Santa Barbara, Cal., was locked up by detectives last night after being arrested at the Y. W. C. A., 830 South Michigan avenue. It happened this way:

The other night Frank Richards of East Tawas, Mich., got a telegram reading something like this:

"I have a severe attack of the Spanish influenza. Please send $100, or more if you can spare it. Love to mother. Waive identification.

"GRACE."

Turning to his daughter, Grace C. Richards, who sat in the easy chair beside him, he asked:

"You got Spanish influenza in Chicago?"

Michigan Grace Perfectly Well.

"No-o-o-o," she replied. Then he tossed her the telegram. Grace of East Tawas often comes to Chicago and puts up at the Y. W. C. A. at times, the address given for the sending of the $100.

Well, they talked it over with Andrew Ngell, the village marshal at East Tawas, and 'twas he who got the scheme.

Mr. Richards wired to Grace C. Richards, Y. W. C. A., 830 South Michigan avenue, as directed. He advised Grace to have patience, as a letter with the $100 would come hot on the trail of the telegram. When Grace—yes, there are two Grace C. Richards—got the letter yesterday Detective Sergeants Tully and Kelly and Policewoman Alice Clements were there.

Just a Foolish Notion.

Grace C. Richards then told them she didn't know how on earth she got the hunch to do such a thing, unless it was because when she registered at the Y. W. C. A. there were two letters there in her name. She read them, she said, and realized there was another Grace C. Richards, home in East Tawas, and—well, she just got the foolish notion in her head.

"And now the wedding is probably ruined," said the Grace C. Richards from the west as she flicked a tear with a white lace handkerchief. "I was on my way east to become the wife of Proctor Smith of Boston. After this disgrace—O, I wouldn't blame him if he——"

Here the tears came in floods.

At first the police insisted she must be some sort of "con" woman, but by many letters in her trunks she convinced them her name is really Grace C. Richards. She said she is 24 years old and a graduate of Santa Barbara High school and Leland Stanford university. The girl was well dressed, wore a brown traveling suit, a fresh, stylish green coat, and a wide picture hat.

Carries Jewelry and Cash.

She was adorned with a diamond sunburst, a pearl ring, and a gold wrist watch, and in her purse was $30. Pending an investigation of the affair, a checking up of her story, and a decision as to what action will be taken, she is being held.

Also, the police are looking for Mr. Proctor Smith of Boston, the bridegroom who was to have been, to see what he thinks about it.

Slippery Bank Robber Now Safe in Joliet

Abe Schaffner, convicted of complicity in the robbery of the Stockmen's Trust and Savings bank at Fifty-fourth and South Halsted streets about six months ago, was taken to the penitentiary at Joliet yesterday. About a month ago Schaffner made a spectacular escape from the Criminal court building by knocking a bailiff down, but was recaptured.

TO PARENTS

FROM

RING W. LARDNER

Home, Sept. 20, 1918.

Ladies and Gents:—

Well, ladies' and gents, I suppose they's a few of you that never even heard of my son John and I could fill a seed catalogue with the funny ones he has pulled like 1 day he said "Daddy (he calls me daddy on acct. of I being his daddy) they's a bee in Niles, Michigan, that lays currant jelly." But I suppose you don't think that's as funny as some of the ones your John has pulled, so they's no use repeating a whole lot more of them. But any way we named him John on acct. of my name inciteing people to make up puns about it and many's the time I have pretty near strangled to death trying to laugh at the gags people pulled about my name and they probably didn't figure that I had heard them all as often as the one about the 2d. liput. or somebody that made the private salute him a 100 times or something and etc.

But any way John is 6 yrs. old and you wouldn't never believe it to look at him on acct. of being so big and smart and you would guess him at 8 or something and in that respects he takes after his father because they's lots of people that's just met me and they are trying to make up conversations or something and they generally always ask me if I felt nervous at Chickamauga, where as the facts is that when Good-bye Dolly Gray came out I was still singing soprano yet.

Well, on acct. of the merchants trying to start up a correspondence with me the 1 of every mo., I half to work and I can't do it home because they're so many places to lay down, so I leave home about once per day and come back home pretty near as often, and when I open up the front door or however I come into the house, John comes running to meet me and for a wile I figured it was on acct. of he being crazy about me, but I finely realised that he didn't never offer no caresses or honey words, but all as he ever said was "Daddy what did you bring me?"

Well, when I didn't have nothing for him his face would fall and somebody would half to pick it up but I couldn't bring him something every time I come home because even if it wasn't only a transfer the wear and tear of remembering it every night was bound to get a man in time and if I just offered him the evening paper it meant I would half to turn to the comical pictures and explain them all out and without knocking no cartoonists, the man that tries to explain some of them to a 6 yr. old has got a bigger job of explaining on their hands than the poor bird that has to write the official German communicates.

Well, they wasn't nothing that would do for a every day diet you might say, so finely I kind of established the custom of getting him something pretty nice once in a wile and then telling to not expect nothing more for a long time and that worked pretty good, only the something nice was generally always Simon poor wreckage after a few days treatment or if it was a book, he had to have it read to him every evening till he got another and it didn't seem to make no difference to him how often you read him the same story over and over again, but it did make a difference to the dear reader and many's the time I wished this here Thornton Burgess was a truck driver or something.

Well, along this summer I left the house 1 morning like usual and when I and John parted he says "Daddy you haven't broughten me anything for a long time and you have got to bring me something nice today." So I said "All right" and then I went down town and got a haircut and afterwards I couldn't remember nothing only a few extracts from the barber's monologue so I forgot all about John but I happened to be looking through my desk for the typewriter and I come acrost a card that had layed there since May and it said on it that I could present the card at the bank and get a $100 Liberty bond for it, because here is how it happened.

This day in May it seems like I had just got paid and I was eating lunch and I had $20 dollars in my close outside of my pay envelope and wile I was eating a bird come up that I hadn't saw him for a couple yrs. and the last time I seen him I was in a dose and lent him $20, and any way he come up and says here is that $20 and you could of knocked me over with a coupling pin, but any way there I set with a $100 on me besides some chickens feed and they was a beautiful gal in the place that must be suspected as much and 1st thing I knew she was standing there by the table asking me would I like to subscribe to a Liberty Bond.

Well, if that gal asked you to subscribe for the palsy they wasn't no way of saying no, so I says yes and she says how much and I says a $100 and she says how did I want to pay for it and they was some waiters in hearing an I says Cash and she swooned amidst the debris but she come to before I left and the papers was signed.

Well, as I say, I layed the card in the desk and this day along in the summer I come acrost it and I took it down to the bank and sure enough they give me a brand new $100 bond. And when the proper time come, I started homewards bound and John met me at the door with his Well daddy and etc. and it was a desperate case where 1 false move meant panic. But always at my best in a crisis, I dipped into that pocket and brought out that Liberty Bond and said "This". And you can believe it or not, but it went over bigger than anything I had ever broughten him.

Well, you don't usually half to whip him to the supper table, but this night all the men and women in the ward under 10 yrs. old had to be showed that bond before he would eat. And when he went to bed, so did Mr. Bond, with a pillow over it to keep it warm.

Well, to make a short story out of it, the bond is living in Mr. John's desk, but it comes out at least once a day for an airing. And Mr. John has promised to let me take it and put it away for him—as soon as I get him another to look at in his idle moments. So I've got to buy him another in the Fourth Liberty Loan. As for interest day, he's looking forward to it like it was Xmas or something and his int. is going for thrift stamps to stick on his card.

So all and all, it looks to me like other parents that was up vs. it like I was wouldn't make no mistake if they done what I done. And it ain't throwing the dough away, you know, because when the principal of these here bonds comes due; our 6 yr. olds won't be 6 yr. olds no more, but they will be where they can use a $100 or 2 and if they ain't got it themself, they are comeing to their old man for it. But if they have got it, so much less wear and tear on the old man.

And you ought to see the way he loves that bond, I wished I was it.

Respy.

WOMEN 'CLEAN UP' RESTAURANT IN ROW OVER CHECK

Sacre! A perfectly slapping time was had by all, and a black eye suit may sprout from the mess.

William Heras, host of the Victor Italian restaurant, 9 East Grand avenue, avers with much gesticulation that when he refused to cash a check for Mrs. G. L. Blackford and Mrs. G. B. Armstrong, both of 4640 Kenmore avenue, in payment of their table d'hôte, they rose up in their wrath and "slappa me, my wife, the poor waiter, and the cop. They's what you call, [illegible]," he growled. "Awful language—I never hear it from a [illegible]."

ARMY NOW TAKES HAND IN INQUIRY INTO CITY'S VICE

War Department's Expert Reaches Chicago on Morals Mission.

The war department yesterday joined the navy in the investigation of vice and liquor conditions in Chicago and their effect on soldiers and sailors.

Capt. George J. Anderson, representing the department in this matter, arrived in Chicago last night. He is director of the section on vice and liquor control of the commission on training camp activities and is known as the man who "cleaned up" a bad situation on the Mexican border.

He was silent as to his plans and there was no announcement as to whether the war department inquiry will or will not be made independently of the investigation already under way by a board of naval officers under orders from Secretary Daniels. Capt. Anderson was absent from his hotel a part of last evening, and it was suspected that he was looking over Saturday night conditions.

Had Eye on Chicago.

At Washington Maj. Bascom Johnson, chief of the law enforcement division of the Fosdick commission, said that active inquiry into the Chicago problem had been contemplated for some time, and that it will be carried out in conjunction with studies made of several other cities.

At the capital it was also said that Secretary Daniels has received a mass of information relating to conditions affecting the welfare of jackies from the Great Lakes Naval Training station and other navy men stationed in Chicago or visiting it frequently. The secretary announced that this data will be turned over to Lieut. Col. Charles B. Hatch of the marine corps at Philadelphia tomorrow and that Col. Hatch will leave immediately for Chicago.

His instructions, it was said, were not only to investigate, but also to "aid in bringing about measures to improve the situation." It is understood that he is authorized to proceed vigorously if he considers it necessary.

Will Attack Social Evil.

Speaking upon the medical side of the social problem in reference to the army and navy, Maj. John O. Cobb, in command of the Marine hospital, told the American Association for Physical Research that the government is prepared to wage an unceasing war against the social evil.

He said it would cost no more to wipe out the worst features of the social evil than it costs to "run the war" for one day. He estimated that two-thirds of the immoral women of the country are of the moron type—having the mental development of the normal mind of less than fourteen years. He said that most of them are the offspring of feeble minded parents and said that the prevention of marriage among the mentally deficient would eliminate prostitution.

Auto Stolen, Another Recovered, Boy Injured

L. W. Hathaway, 1504 Cullom avenue, president of the Budlong Pickle company, 1801 West North avenue, left his automobile in front of the Presbyterian hospital last night while he visited a friend. When he came down again the car was gone.

Motorcycle Policeman A. Payne of the west park squad saw two boys driving a high powered car west in Washington boulevard. He gave chase and the boys shut off the gasoline and leaped out of the car. Payne captured Earl Maguire, 17 years old, 4000 West Adams street. The other boy escaped.

MAYOR REVOKES NO BAR LICENSE; ALIBI IN EDICT

"Proclaims" Against Future Selling to Soldiers, but Doesn't Act.

Mayor Thompson yesterday refused to sign the orders revoking the licenses of fifteen saloons brought to his attention by federal authorities because of violations of laws intended to protect the nation's soldiers and sailors.

Instead of closing the offending saloons, as had been recommended to him, he issued a formal typewritten statement warning all saloonkeepers that hereafter he will act promptly at the request of the federal authorities.

This statement was taken as corroborating to some extent the report that the real purpose of a visit to the federal building by Chester E. Cleveland, acting head of the city law department, and James W. Breen, an assistant corporation counsel, on Friday was either to persuade Hinton G. Clabaugh of the bureau of investigation to withdraw his complaint against the fifteen saloons, or to "explain," in advance why Mr. Thompson refused to close those saloons.

Struck Close to Home.

Mayor Thompson's attitude also was understood as lending weight to a report at the federal building that Mr. Clabaugh's complaint hit too close to home for the city administration.

The statement issued from the mayor's office was headed "Proclamation by the Mayor," and was as follows:

"Hinton G. Clabaugh chief of the United States bureau of investigation at Chicago, and John H. Alcock, acting general superintendent of police, have informed me that while little, if any, intoxicating liquor is sold by liquor dealers in Chicago to soldiers and sailors, yet the practice prevails to a considerable extent by which civilians procure such liquor in bottles or other receptacles and turn over the same to soldiers and sailors.

Promises to Help Country.

"The United States government has determined that this practice must stop and the federal authorities have recommended that those guilty shall have their licenses revoked by the mayor, and pursuant to my policy, as chief executive of the city, to coöperate with the federal authorities to the extent of the power vested in me in all matters relating to the conduct of the war, and especially the protection of the soldiers and sailors, I shall do whatever I can, even to the extent of revoking the licenses of liquor dealers, to aid the federal government in stamping out such objectionable practice.

"The United States and city authorities have agreed as a war measure that no intoxicating liquors should be sold in bottles except to such persons as the liquor dealer knows absolutely will not furnish the same to any soldier or sailor. The liquor dealer cannot shift this responsibility by taking affidavits or by any other device. He must assume the entire responsibility of knowing that the person to whom he sells intoxicating liquor in bottles will not allow any soldier or sailor to use the same or any part thereof, and any liquor dealer who violates this requirement will be considered to be guilty of immoral and unpatriotic conduct, and his license will be subject to revocation.

Makes an Important Point.

"Let me point out that the United States government has the power to close all places where liquor is sold or given away during the period of the war.

"As mayor of the city of Chicago I am giving this warning so that no liquor dealer can say that he has been taken by surprise or treated unfairly, and to warn each and all liquor dealers that no further notice will be given, but that in case of any violation of the regulation above mentioned as to the sale of intoxicating liquor in bottles or other receptacles, I shall act promptly at the request of the federal authorities.

"This proclamation is issued pursuant to a policy agreed upon at a conference between representatives of the federal and city governments."

Thirty-seven Dry Cabarets.

The total of "dry cabaret" licenses issued with Chief Alcock's approval was raised to thirty-seven by the granting of nine more permits during the day. Among the more widely known places are the following:

DeLuxe cafe, 604 South Wabash avenue.

Old Style Inn, 1303 West Division street.

Produces More Violations.

Mr. Clabaugh, shortly after the mayor's "proclamation" appeared, indicated that he would give the city hall another problem in reference to law violating saloons.

After receiving from Richmond Dean, president of the Citizens' league, documents containing affidavits in support of complaints that bottled liquor was sold in six saloons in violation of the regulation requiring that the dealer must know his customer personally, Mr. Clabaugh announced that the material will be sent to Chief Alcock "for his action."

Rail Employes Happy; Back Pay Pouring In

War is helping some 10,000 or more railroad workers in and around Chicago to beat the band these days. Back pay envelopes containing the hitherto unpaid increase ordered on Aug. 1 by William G. McAdoo, director general of railroads, have begun to pour in. Many of the healthier ones hold from $400 to $500 back pay. War is helpful to some folk.

THOMPSON SEEN IN MAYORAL RACE AS CAR BILL FOE

Opens Campaign by Calling Meeting to Fight Merger.

Politicians who have been predicting that Mayor Thompson will seek renomination next spring chanted "I told you so" when the mayor formally announced that he will lead a movement to combat the traction ordinances.

It was a call for opponents of the measure which the council ordered submitted to the voters on Nov. 5 to gather in the city council chamber and plan a systematic campaign for its defeat.

"I invite," read the mayor's appeal, "representatives from labor and civic organizations and citizens who are opposed to the proposed ordinance to meet me in the council chamber in the city hall at 2 o'clock on Monday, Oct. 7, 1918, to consider ways and means for informing our people of the vicious character of the ordinance in order that they may vote intelligently upon it."

Control of Streets at Issue.

His formal statement continues:

"At the approaching November election the people of Chicago will determine by their ballots whether they will turn the streets of Chicago for all time to come over to the traction interests and beyond their own control, or whether they will retain that control in the hands of the people, where it belongs.

"On Aug. 14 the Chicago city council passed an ordinance the terms of which place absolute and perpetual control of our street car and elevated railroads in the hands of a board of nine trustees or bosses appointed by the traction interests. That ordinance I have deliberately characterized as the most reprehensible piece of municipal legislation ever enacted.

Pledged to Fight Bill.

"At the meeting of the city council following the passage of the malodorous ordinance I took occasion to veto it and pledged myself as follows:

"'I want to serve notice here and now upon the members of your honorable body, upon the traction interests and upon the newspapers concerned, that if this ordinance is adopted over my veto I shall go before the people in every ward in Chicago, discuss its provisions in detail, and tell the people the truth about this ordinance, what it seeks to accomplish, and the interests it serves.'

"Fifty-one aldermen voted for the passage of the ordinance over the mayor's veto; and some of these did so, as they explained, because it was provided in the ordinance that it should not become effective until approved by the people in accordance with the law in such cases made and provided, and those aldermen assumed an attitude of indifference toward the ordinance because they said it was a matter for the people themselves to determine.

"Powerful Forces Behind Steal."

"The forces which favor this ordinance are powerful and well organized behind this proposed steal. They include the traction barons and all the representatives of special privilege, including all the big dailies in Chicago except the Chicago Daily Journal.

"With this formidable array in control of the usual avenues of information, it will be a big undertaking to arouse the people of Chicago to their peril, and to let them know that a vote for the ordinance means a vote to authorize the trustees to increase the rate of fare on the surface and elevated lines of Chicago whenever needed to meet their own increased expenditures.

"Under these circumstances, I deem it my duty to use every means at my disposal to inform the people as to the gravity of the situation confronting them."

WAR WORK PLANS UP AT DOCTORS' MEETING TODAY

Enlargement of Volunteer Corps One of Subjects to Be Discussed.

War work of physicians of Illinois and other states and plans for enlisting the services of additional members of the profession will be discussed this morning at a meeting at the Congress hotel, to be presided over by Dr. Franklin Martin, chairman of the general medical board of the Council of National Defense.

There will be in attendance members of the Illinois state committee of the Council of National Defense, the Illinois executive committee of the volunteer medical service corps, and county representatives of the corps from ninety-six counties of this state.

30,000 Doctors in Service.

The corps, authorized by the Council of National Defense and approved by President Wilson, has for its object the enrollment of every qualified physician not already in government service.

Thirty thousand physicians of the country are now in uniform, either with the army or navy. Of the 6,000 physicians of Illinois not already in service, 4,000 have signed application blanks for the volunteer medical service corps and have forwarded them to Washington.

One of the chief aims of the corps is to classify physicians as to their individual preference for service, so that when an emergency arises they may do extra work in caring for home, army, navy, and public health needs. Each will be authorized a special insignia signifying his connection with the service.

Duties of Volunteers.

Among the specific lines of work for which they may be called are: Aid in caring for workers in munitions plants; to teach in medical schools that must be speeded up in order to turn out additional doctors; to serve in reconstruction hospitals; to serve on local and district medical advisory boards.

In connection with the meeting this morning, Dr. Martin has issued a special notice to physicians that the corps is purely a volunteer organization

PLEA FOR MORE RED TRIANGLE WORKERS MADE

Y. C. M. A. Reports Shortage of Aids at Annual Dinner.

Achievements of the Y. M. C. A. in France and America as an auxiliary of the nation's fighting machine and plans for future war work were discussed last night at the annual dinner and conference of the association held at the Chicago Beach hotel. Two hundred men, leaders in the city's professional, business, and religious life, were guests.

A tribute to American women and a plea for more Red Triangle workers for overseas service featured the address of William F. Hypes, president of the Chicago Y. M. C. A., who presided at the banquet.

Tells of Growth.

Reviewing the accomplishments of the last year, he said:

"The American Y. M. C. A. has mobilized its forces to help the United States and her allies win the war. It has grown from a tiny tent on a dock at a French port in 1917 to 1,500 centers in France today. The Y. M. C. A. has become an arm of the American army and represents to the boys the American home, the church, the school, and college, and the best of club and stage life. In the 'Y' huts for the Americans and the foyers du soldat for the French the men find their home life. In the Italian army also this American organization maintains hundreds of case del soldat.

"With its khaki college the 'Y' teaches the foreign born men of the army English and the Americans French. American women of social gifts and graces, of sound health, established Christian character, and boundless enthusiasm, who are actuated solely by the desire to serve, are also selected by the Y. M. C. A. for canteen work overseas. They represent to the boys American womanhood and none save the finest types may go.

Workers Are Needed.

"We are advertising for Red Triangle workers, but the response is not up to the demand by any means. Chicago has not shown its best in this regard, and our hope tonight is that the city will forge ahead and add largely to the army of 5,000 Y. M. C. A. men and women workers already in the war zone."

L. Wilbur Messer, general secretary of the Chicago association, said it must "continue to contribute the maximum of its resources for the winning of the war. The association has done a great deal in the last six months in housing, entertaining and in countless ways serving the soldiers and sailors on leave in this city. During the coming year I feel that these endeavors must be intensified and that they will be."

Other speakers were George M. Martin, who discussed "Local War Activities," and Dr F. H. Burt, who talked on "The Personal and Spiritual Element in War Time."

CHICAGOANS ON WAY ACROSS.

A number of prominent men from Chicago and the middle west are on their way to Europe as American Red Cross volunteers. George F. Getz, president of several coal companies goes to France to take command of one of the six Red Cross zones.

Other Chicago men are members of the Red Cross commission for Greece, just appointed, which is headed by Prof. Edward Capps of Princeton university.

AGED MAN COMMITS SUICIDE.

AIR ROUTE COUNT BY BIRCH DOWNS ALL-STAR SQUAD

Rooters Encouraged by Result to Hope for Another Title Eleven.

BY PREP.

The formidable array of former stars and present college freshmen who represented alumni of Hyde Park High school was not quite strong enough to undo the finesse of Earl Birch's unerring right toe, and the sturdy little Hyde Park High half back booted a drop kick that started the Blue and White eleven on its season victoriously yesterday. The drop kick defeated the stars of yesteryear, 3 to 0, on Stagg field.

Six of the eleven alumni players were gleaned from the University of Chicago football lists, most of them being on the peppery freshman varsity squad at the Midway. Even with this strong nucleus of Neff, Holloday, Miller, Eubank, and Maguire of the Maroon freshies and Blocki of former Maroon varsity competition the alumni were unable to win. This fact brought intense satisfaction to Hyde Park rooters, who see visions of repeating the undefeated record of the Cook county champions of 1917.

Lone Score in Opening Quarter.

After the kickoff the school eleven tried by tapping the lines and working the ends to get the ball within scoring distance. This was an uphill job, and it took until the end of the opening quarter to get the pigskin to the thirty-five yard mark. Once there Birch seized the chance and curved a pretty drop kick between the bars. The nearest the team ever got after that was within twenty yards of the alumni goal in the third quarter.

The grads threatened at various times, but in the second and fourth quarters lost the ball on downs inside the ten yard zone before the school team's goal. Harry Schwimmer shared the limelight with Birch. Lineup:

HARRISON, 7; OAK PARK, 7.

Harrison heavies tied Oak Park, 7 to 7, on the suburbanites' field, but the tech. lightweights suffered a drubbing, 28 to 0. The major battle was an even one. Harrison was heavier in the line, but Oak Park had weight and superior mobility in the backfield.

This speed nearly won the game in the first quarter, when the home team charged up the field, with Herb Steger edging around ends for substantial gains. With the ball in striking distance, two minutes after the game started, Capt. Timme bucked through Harrison's line for touchdown. He kicked his own goal.

Harrison was undismayed and kept bumping the line. In the second quarter, after his teammates had executed a Foch offensive on the Oak Park line, Pertl wormed his way through for a touchdown. He also kicked his own goal, making the score even, and the individual honors also even between Timme and him. The second half went scoreless, each team standing stanchly when threatened.

The light weight game gave Oak Park's fast backs the chance to show their speed. Six minutes after the start, Caruso intercepted a pass and sped through the field ninety yards for the opening score. He got through on a cross buck for a sixty yard sprint in the second period. Open passes gained ground consistently. Lineups:

ALUMNI, 14; SENN, 0.

Lightweights of Senn High lost to the school alumni team, 14 to 0, on the green and white's field. The alumni included most of the men who, though outweighed, tied the school heavyweight eleven last week, 6—6. Many of them were on Senn's championship minor weight eleven of 1917. The game was marked by good play, and tight until the fourth period, when the break came through the fleetness of the alumni wing players.

Abele shot a fine forward pass to Right End Noelle, who raced sixty yards for the grads' first score. A little later, Healey, Noelle's mate at end, scooped a fumble and trotted thirty yards for another score. Abele booted both goals. Lineup:

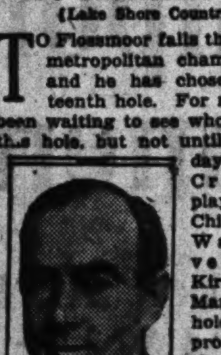
FLOOSMOOR ON O'NEIL LIST

Metropolitan Champion Picks Seventeenth at Chicago.

BY GEORGE A. O'NEIL.
[Lake Shore Country Club.]

TO Flossmoor falls the honor of the metropolitan champion's choice, and he has chosen the seventeenth hole. For months I have been waiting to see who would choose this hole, but not until noon of the day of the Red Cross match played in July by Chick Evans and Warren Wood versus Oswald Kirkby and Max Marston did this hole receive its proper consideration. In making his selection Mr. Kirkby said he thought about the best hole he had seen was the seventeenth, but he wondered whether it could be considered a two shot hole. Obviously he thought it might be a trifle too long, and this consideration may have prevented others from choosing and naming it earlier. But the afternoon game showed it to be an ideal two shot hole—especially for the eastern cracks, as they both reached the plateau. Kirkby was hole high, with Chick beyond the green in the rough.

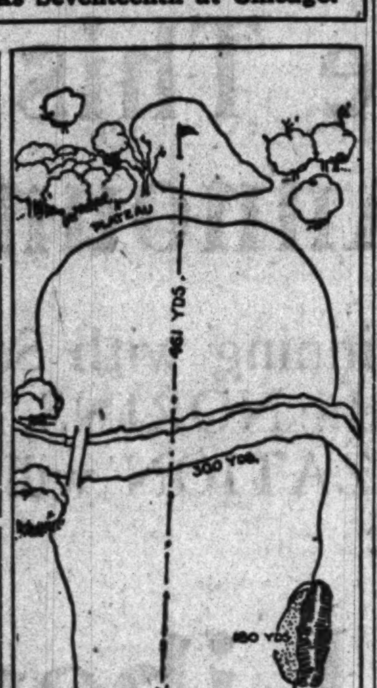


GEORGE A. O'NEIL

It was here that our boys finished second, as they were unable to tie the four made by the eastern expert. Little did Mr. Kirkby think when he selected this hole that fate was to be so kind to him and allow his team to win and finish the match upon the hole he had picked as his ideal.

The tee is located upon a hill shaded by a few trees. There is nothing in front of the tee to terrorize the player; the shots call principally for distance and plenty of it. The green lies 460 yards away, situated on a plateau, the edge of which is about 390 yards from the tee.

A long straight drive down the center makes far an easier second shot than a drive to either side of the fairway—especially one to the left. From this side the player must play at the plateau diagonally—a condition which makes it almost impossible to hold the green.



A creek running across the course adds to the beauty of the hole and, although not a formidable hazard, catches a topped second. Trees on either side of the green tighten it up considerably.

Harry Collis has many real golf holes at Flossmoor, but Oswald Kirkby has undoubtedly chosen his best.

MYSTICS DEFEAT K. OF C. GOLFERS FOR SECOND YEAR

Led by Judge Joseph Sabath with a score of 84, the Mystic Golf association team for the second year in succession won its annual match against the Knights of Columbus Golf club. The match was played at Harlem, the men of the square and compass getting a margain of 5 points, giving them a second leg on the Thomas E. Wilson trophy, emblematic of the fraternal championship of Cook county.

Judge Sabath, who is president of the Mystics, was to have played President Michael Fagin of the knights for a trophy donated by Jones, Linick & Schaefer, but as Mr. Fagin was ill Judge Sabath consented to meet him at a later date.

Matt Kelly, a Garfield park star, led the knights with 82, Frank J. Douglass of Bob O'Link having 88 and A. J. Kasper of Edgewater 91. E. C. Tubbs and Peter J. Schaefer had 85 for the Masons. Summary:

Spanish "Flu" in Camps Defers C. A. A. U. Boxing

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 21.—The Central Association A. A. U. championship boxing bouts, which had been scheduled here Sept. 27 and 28, have been postponed until the middle of October, because of the epidemic of Spanish influenza at service training camps, some of which have been quarantined. A number of entries had been received from the Great Lakes Naval Training station and army camps.

Brady, former Boston professional golfer, and Jesse Guilford, Massachusetts amateur champion, defeated Charles Evans Jr. of Chicago and Bobby Jones of Atlanta, 3 and 2, in an eighteen hole exhibition Red Cross match at Brae Burn Country club today. Brady broke the record for the outward nine holes with a 33. He finished in 73. Evans took 75. Jones and Guilford had approximated 80s. The Brady-Guilford best ball was 68, and the Evans-Jones best ball 72.

Cornell Stops Sports; Cancels Football Games

Ithaca, N. Y., Sept. 21.—Intercollegiate athletics at Cornell university have been suspended for the duration of the war. The football schedule will be cancelled at once, according to an announcement tonight by the athletic association. The step, it was said, was taken because it was feared intercollegiate sports would interfere with the program of military training at the university planned by the government.

LONG RUN BY ZIEBELL UPSETS THORNTON; PROVISO WINS, 30-0

Fullback Ziebell darted through a broken field for a fifty-five yard run to touchdown in the first four minutes, and thereafter the clash of Thornton High against Proviso Township High at Maywood grew more one-sided. Proviso won, 30 to 0. It was the first game of the season for both teams, and a prelim to the Suburban league season for the winners. Thornton will not have a berth in the football circuit this autumn.

Proviso's team is light, but showed plenty of pepper in yesterday's clash. The Proviso lightweights, who compose a goodly squad, did not play yesterday.

Negro Player Does Well.

Brady, Thornton's Negro halfback, played well in that team's effort to break the whitewash. In addition to Ziebell, Minteer and Bullard, regulars of former years at Proviso, were factors in outplaying the visitors. Lineup:

EVANSTON ALUMNI WINS.

Outclassing the school team from the start Evanston High alumni romped off with a 45 to 0 victory in the annual joust at Northwestern field. The old timers had the weight advantage, and led, 14 to 0 at the half. They checked the high schoolers from any approach nearer the goal than 10 yards and the 10 yard mark was neared only once in each half. The old Evanston High combination of Carney and Turner was most conspicuous for the alumni. Big Carney scored six touchdowns and stopped both sallies of the school team. Lineup:

Billy Miske Batters Greb in Furious Mill

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—Billy Miske of St. Paul, with fifteen pounds weight advantage, had a shade the better of Harry Greb of Pittsburgh in a ten round bout at Forbes field this afternoon.

Both men fought viciously, Greb as usual using a deadly left to the stomach, while Miske's best work was in the clinches with his short arm jolts that rocked Greb's head several times.

It was the local boy's fight by a shade until the eighth inning, when his right eye was split and the blood handicapped him so that he was helpless in the last two rounds, in which Miske did his best work.

Elyria Bouts Net $60,000; Absent Champs Not Missed

Elyria, O., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—Neither Benny Leonard, nor Johnny Kilbane, nor Charlie White showed up today at Elyria's big benefit boxing show, but Richie Mitchell, Milwaukee's pride and Great Lakes favorite, went four rounds against Teddy Hayes, another Milwaukee boy. Other Great Lakes boxers also competed. Pal Moore, Memphis, and Willie Devore put up a rattling four round exhibition, and Cal Delaney gave Mase Donnelly a trimming in four rounds.

Instead of a set price for the seats, the spectators purchased their tickets in war stamps. There were no tickets sold for less than $10, it was said. The receipts totaled $60,000.

SPORTSMEN IN WARTIMES.

NO CLASS of men answered the challenge of the Hun more quickly or more willingly than did the sportsmen of America, Canada and Great Britain, and certainly no class of men were better fitted for the job. It was to be expected, and it is neither necessary nor desirable to make much ado about it here. One of the objects of outdoor sport is to fit a man for fighting. Hunting, fishing, canoeing, camping and such outdoor activities produce men who relish, rather than fear, hardships, and they entail too much solitary thinking to induce shipyard or swivel chair proclivities.

The saddest part of the whole thing is the fact many outdoor men want to go to war and can't—Teddy Roosevelt is a representative American sportsman, and there are several regiments of men just like him in this country. All they suffer from is anno domini or dependents, and we reckon that they would be some regiments if they ever could get into action, but alas, their chances of seeing service are slim. They have to reconcile themselves to the hard fact that somebody must stay at home while the young bucks go out and fight.

* *

There's a lot to be done, however, besides merely holding up one's end as an American citizen. For example, your Uncle Samuel wants some black walnut timber. In fact, he needs it badly, lots of it and quickly. Keep this in mind, you hunters, while browsing around the woods this fall. Any black walnut tree over 12 inches in diameter will be useful for making gun stocks and airplane propellers.

If you run across any walnut timber find out who owns it and induce him to get in touch with the government by writing Capt. R. L. Oakley, Production Division, Small Arms Section, Ordnance Department, Sixth and B Streets, Washington, D. C. Put that address in your memo book or in the case of your watch or compass now while you think of it.

Selling one's walnut timber is like buying Liberty bonds—some will do it voluntarily, but many require salesmanship. It is up to the hunters, Boy Scouts, and other outdoor folks to furnish this salesmanship.

It takes a long time to grow walnut trees, but other days are coming when we will need this wood. C. G. Delo, a friendly reader, suggests that sportsmen plant walnuts and incloses a letter from J. M. Phillips of the Pennsylvania game commissioners on this subject. Says Phillips:

"The Boy Scouts are going to plant black walnuts in Pennsylvania. I have also taken it up with the sportsmen who will travel through our fields and woods this fall when walnuts are ripe, suggesting that each man fill the pockets of his hunting coat with walnuts and plant at least a hundred of them. The same with shellbark hickories, etc.

"Inasmuch as we have 315,000 licensed hunters in Pennsylvania, without counting farmers and their tenants, who are allowed to hunt without licenses, this would help the good work along wonderfully. I also have taken this up with the state highway department and there is a move on foot now to plant nut trees along our highways."

* *

If every sportsman, Boy Scout, and game warden in the middle west would follow these hints we would never be caught again with an embarrassing shortage of hardwood, for which there is no real substitute.

Another wartime duty of the stay at home sportsman is not to break faith with the millions of brothers of the trails and waters who are over there. Hundreds of evil influences are now busy trying to undo the work of many years of conservation; raising a hue and cry to let down the bars of protection on our fish and game resources in the name of patriotism and scarcity of food.

* *

We do not want this to sound like preaching, but once more we want to warn the outdoor clans about the temptations that may be dangled before our eyes in the way of more "liberal" game laws. Concerning this movement Col. Roosevelt, a great sportsman long before he became president, in a message to the American Game Protective association, says: "To the profiteering proposal of the pseudo patriots, the patriots for revenue only, that the protection of wild life in war time be relaxed, the united hosts of conservation reply: 'YOU SHALL NOT PASS.' Let this be the slogan of every farmer, all who love nature and who wish to see our natural resources preserved for the perpetual use of our people, and not destroyed for all time to gratify the greed of a moment."

GLENVIEW.

Players in the class handicaps gave the board of arbitration a few problems in casuistry. For instance, W. S. Mason, 85—10—75, and J. E. Blunt Jr., 87—12—75, deadlocked in the first division; C. R. Latham, 88—15—73, won in class B., while G. P. Merrick, 96—23—73, and T. W. Robinson, 97—24—73, tied in the third brigade. Further to involve things, Latham, Merrick, and Robinson disputed possession of the thrift stamps with their 73s.

RIDGE.

George W. Critchell, who has been a leader at Ridge for a number of years, won the club championship by a 2 and 1 victory over H. W. Davis, in the thirty-six hole final. R. J. CALUMET.

Carl L. Overaker, the human dynamo, who tips the beam at 250 pounds on his home scales at Armour & Co.'s, won the club championship at Calumet yesterday. Taking into account the proximity of the Burnside shops of the Illinois Central R. R., his title is of the "smoked" variety. In the thirty-six hole final he was opposed by J. D. Wild, who at the twenty-seventh hole, lead, 4 up. Overaker uncorked several birdie and par holes coming down the homestretch, and won 3 and 1. It was a tough match for Wild to lose, as he went into the finals after having played three extra hole matches, one of twenty-one holes and two of twenty.

In the second flight T. F. Barrett won from F. Koller, 5 and 4, and in the third W. S. Waiteside defeated T. Reid, 5 and 4.

In the semi-finals for the club championship, E. F. Olsen disposed of C. E. Foust, 8 and 7, but E. I. Stephen found George S. Patterson an obdurate opponent and went to the twentieth green before winning.

EDGEWATER.

From the number of 75s turned in, it looked as if Lawyer Marks had been spreading his propaganda at Edgewater. L. E. Ernst, 84—9—75; G. F. Douaire, 91—16—75, and A. G. Wegener, 89—14—75, made strong bids in the handicap.

Dial disposed of N. Hamilton, 8 and 6. In the grounds committee trophy E. T. Franklin defeated O. F. Scudder, 8 and 7, while C. M. Denise eliminated B. N. Anderson, 3 and 2.

FLOSSMOOR.

Warren K. Wood was given a grueling fight by I. W. Lincoln in the second round of the club championship. With respective medal scores of 76 and 77, they finished eighteen holes all even, and the battle progressed until the twenty-fourth green was reached, where Lincoln made a poor recovery from a sliced tee shot and lost. Lincoln registered 30 over the last six holes against Wood's 29. Other matches in the championship flight resulted: W. R. Gwinn defeated A. G. Erwin, 3 and 1; R. J. Daly defeated R. T. Rolfe, 4 and 3; R. B. Sullivan versus W. H. Rockwood, postponed.

As a result of their semi-final matches, W. J. Evans Jr. and T. J. Watkins will meet in the deciding contest for the Sports and Pastimes cup. Evans defeated A. B. Cody, 2 and 1, while Watkins triumphed over M. T. Jones, 5 and 4.

TALES of A TEE-BOX TOURIST

WILLIAM BEEK is a member of the Olympia Fields Country club. He has not appeared in many competitive events and so is not familiar with the strict rules of the game, his play being generally of the friendly four-ball variety. In a recent club event he was paired against Tom McGill, who has played golf long enough to be a member of the G. A. R.

At the first water hole Beek's ball did a Clarendon beach and he had to cross a bridge to retrieve it. Returning, he dropped it on the fairway, but McGill notified him that under the rules he must drop it behind the point in which it entered the water, which was in the rough. It was a new ruling for Beek, but he made no kick.

Going to the third hole he sliced to the rough, and continued search failed to find the ball. Tom assisted him, but after about fifteen minutes had elapsed he pointed out that only five minutes were allowed to look for a lost ball.

"Not that I wish to take advantage of the rule," said Tom, "but why not play another ball? If you haven't another with you, I will lend you one."

BOUT HE LOST ON COAST A LESSON FOR J. DEMPSEY

Four Round Decision to Jackie Willie Meehan Leads to Discussion.

BY RAY PEARSON.

In these days of world wars and other extraordinary events, strange things are not unusual, as witness the pugilistic happening of a few days ago on the Pacific slope when the meteoric young heavyweight, Jack Dempsey, the man who knocked out Fred Fulton in something like 23 seconds, was called the loser in a four round bout with Willie Meehan. It's hard for one possessed of boxing knowledge to understand how this could happen when the respective caliber of the two scrappers is taken into consideration.

But things of this sort will occur and it will be interesting to listen to the way "Submarine Jack" explains his defeat when he returns to this section of the country. His manager, Jack Kearns, didn't waste any time in wiring us, after Referee Graney had given the decision to Meehan, that the referee had slipped Dempsey a bad deal. He compared the decision to the one that Referee Wyatt Earp handed out years ago when Bob Fitzsimmons and Tom Sharkey battled in a short bout on the coast.

Old Alibi Stuff.

However, as managers always swear the stuff that their man was robbed, even when they are beaten by numerous city blocks, there isn't much need of dwelling to any great length on the manager's explosion. It is far more interesting to discuss the Dempsey end than the Kearns end.

To read the report of the bout from the coast would lead one to believe that the verdict favoring Meehan, who is in the navy, was out of line by a big margin, and that Dempsey, not the jackie, should have been given the decision. That is based on the fact that Dempsey in the second round scored a clean knockdown. Meehan didn't take a count, but even if he didn't, that did not take from Dempsey the margin for which a knockdown generally counts in any ring battle.

Meehan a Tapper.

Dempsey was credited with doing the punching, while Meehan did the clever stuff—tapping—by which route he was enabled to accumulate points. But it is hard to see how he earned the decision on points in a four round bout when he had a knockdown to overcome in the scale of points.

There is another point in connection with this "defeat" of Dempsey that Jack will do well to heed in the future. Jack knows himself pretty well by this time after his recent successes in the game, but perhaps he has only himself to blame for the reverse at the hands of Meehan or the referee. When he left Chicago to go west for this bout—a patriotic show—he knew that Meehan was to be his opponent. But he did not believe that the jackie would prove of any great annoyance.

Figures Bout Easy.

Undoubtedly Jack figured he could step four rounds fast enough to defeat Meehan, but there is where he erred. In fact, he made a natural error, one that wouldn't be made in normal times. Perhaps he figured that because he was appearing at a war fund show and "doing his bit" it wouldn't be a real fight. But there is where he made a huge mistake, if he did think that, for the boxer of today who enters such a bout is taking the same chances as when fighting for the kale and glory that goes with it in times of peace.

Government "Going After" Drug Users

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—"A Drastic Anti-Narcotic Law Must be passed at this session of Congress," is the statement of a Special Treasury Investigation Committee to prevent an increase in the "Estimate of 1,500,000 Drug Users in U. S."

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Scoring points in thirteen of the nineteen events, the well balanced team of the Chicago Athletic association won the highest athletic honors in America by taking first place in the National A. A. U. senior outdoor track and field championships held yesterday at Great Lakes Naval Training station under the auspices of the Cherry Circle club. The C. A. A. scored 49 points, Great Lakes was second with 31, and the Illinois A. C. third with 25.

Yesterday's victory, which followed the winning of the junior title on Friday, stamps the C. A. A. athletic team as supreme on the track and field for the season of 1918. Added to this glory, the team won the Central A. A. U. indoor championships, but did not compete in the Central outdoor games.

Meet to Be Remembered.

The two championships decided this year will go down in history as the greatest set of games ever held in this country. Athletes came to Chicago from all sections of the country to compete in their specialties. No expense was spared to induce the champions to be on hand to defend their titles, and in this work the officials of the C. A. A. should be congratulated.

Some of the champions are in the service, and although they did not have the proper amount of time to train, they came on and did their best to retain their titles. In some cases they were beaten, but only after putting forth their best efforts. As in former years, new champions were unearthed, but it will be a long time before such a galaxy of stars will perform again in the same set of games.

One Record Broken.

As the records for these games are so high, it was not expected that any new marks would be established because of the cold weather. Several athletes were given chances to shatter the marks, but only one was broken. Another was established. Several were missed by fractions of a second.

To Charley Pores of Pelham Bay Naval Training station, who formerly ran under colors of the Millrose A. A. of New York, went the individual glory of setting the new record. He ran away from the field in the five mile run, footing the distance in 24:26 4-5, which broke the former mark of 25:23 3-5 held by himself. Pores' new record is only three and two-fifths seconds slower than the world's record held by Shrubb of England.

Long Stride Eats Up Distance.

The bluejacket is by far the best long distance runner ever seen in the west. He runs in a mechanical sort of way, with long, powerful strides. He uses little effort to cover the ground and is an excellent judge of pace. Had he known a few laps before the gun was fired that he was close to Shrubb's world's record he undoubtedly could have broken it, as he finished strong and fresh.

Matt McGrath, now a lieutenant of police in New York, set a new national record for throwing the sixteen pound ball hammer. Matt, who is not a stranger in Chicago by any means, threw the ball 173 feet 11¼ inches. This is the first time such a hammer has been used in a national meet, and the record will stand, according to officials of the championship committee.

McGrath Individual Star.

McGrath was individual star of the meet. Matt, who competed unattached because of the action of New York clubs to stay out of competitive athletics during the period of the war, scored ten points by winning the hammer throw and fifty-six pound weight for distance.

Five of the athletes who won first places in the junior title games last Friday repeated yesterday, while others who competed in the junior events won points yesterday. The ability of these athletes to come back on the next day and win their specialties certainly shows they are performers of the first rank.

Shaughnessy Repeats in 440.

The first star to repeat his performance of the previous day was C. C. Shaughnessy of the Federal Rendezvous, Brooklyn. He won the 440 yard run on Friday in :49, and just to show his consistency he won the senior quarter mile in exactly the same time.

Arthur Henke, the little flyer of Great Lakes, who sprung a surprise by winning the century in the junior games, sprung an even greater one yesterday when he won the 100 yard dash and defeated Lieut. Jo Loomis of Camp Custer, who competed for the C. A. A. Henke won by such a close margin that it took several minutes for the judges to determine the winner. Henke won on both days in even time of :10.

Carl Price of Camp Taylor, who won the running high jump in the junior games with a leap of 6 feet ¼ inch, came right back yesterday and won the event at 6 feet 1 inch. Eddie Beeson of Camp Fremont, Cal., holder of the world's record at 6 feet 7 5-16 inches, was on hand, but because of a sprained ankle was unable to compete.

Other Double Winners.

R. Hume of Great Lakes duplicated his performance by winning the 440 yard high hurdles, and D. Politzer of the Mohawk A. C. of New York took the running broad jump on both days. Hoskins and Overbee of the C. A. A., Anderson of Pelham Bay, and Allman of the Great Lakes were among other athletes who won points in both sets of games.

Joie Ray of the Illinois A. C. won eight points by capturing the mile run and finishing second in the half mile. Frank Loomis of the C. A. A. annexed eight markers by capturing the 220 yard low hurdles and winning second place in the 120 yard high barriers. Dan Ahearn of the I. A. C., the war horse of American athletics, also won eight points. He captured first place in his specialty, the running hop, step, and jump, and was second in the running broad jump.

Brundage Takes Four Places.

In this connection Avery Brundage of the C. A. A., former all around champion, should be mentioned. Because of his all around ability he won seven points for the C. A. A. in four different events. He won second place in the shotput, was third in the hammer throw, and finished fourth in each the discus throw and fifty-six pound weight.

As a result of the games two champions retained their titles. Two were dethroned in the competition. New champions were made in the other events because the title holders failed to defend their championships. Frank Loomis of the C. A. A. retained his title in the 220 yard low hurdles and Pores held his title in the five mile run.

Knourek Loses Title.

Clinton Larsen of Kelly field lost his running high jump title to Lieut. Rice, the former University of Kansas jumper, now at Camp Zachary Taylor. Eddie Knourek of Great Lakes, who won the pole vault title while competing under the colors of the I. A. C., was beaten by Lieut. Carl Buck of Kelly field, who competed for the C. A. A. Andy Ward of Great Lakes, national sprints champion, was on hand to defend his title, but was kept out of the competition by a pulled tendon.

There were a number of close and interesting races, but one of the most exciting was the half mile run, which was won by Tom Campbell, the fleet runner of the University High school, in the fast time of 1:56 4-5. Campbell ran a heady race, and defeated his rival, Joie Ray of the I. A. C., and Lieut. E. Balestier of the royal air force, Toronto, Canada.

Wins in Last 150 Yards.

Lieut. Balestier went into the lead at the report of the pistol, and led until 150 yards from the tape. Campbell, who had been running in second place, turned loose all his strength and passed the Canadian fifty yards from the tape. Campbell raced on to the tape, but was challenged by Ray, who failed by five yards, after great effort to overtake the high school wonder.

Other races, especially the 100 yard dash, which was won by Henke by the narrowest of margins over Lieut. Loomis, were close and hard fought. The competition in the field events, except in which McGrath competed, was fairly even.

Meet Ends Tomorrow.

The national relay championships and the all around title will be determined tomorrow. Ten events will be held in the all around, while five relay races, ranging in distance from 440 yards to two miles, will be held. The first event will start at 1:30 o'clock.

The championship committee will hold a meeting today at the Blackstone hotel to decide matters of importance to the Amateur Athletic union.

NOTES OF THE MEET

Everett C. Brown, who has been American commissioner to Olympic games held in Greece, London, and Stockholm, said the two days' meet compared very favorably with the world's games. Mr. Brown said the only difference was the size of the crowd, which was kept away because of the epidemic of Spanish influenza which has fallen over the station.

Jimmy Callahan, former manager of the White Sox, was an interested spectator. Cal comes from the same town as Martin Delaney.

Mrs. Bartow Weeks, wife of Justice Weeks, who acted as referee of the games, occupied a seat in the infield. Mrs. Weeks took a keen interest in the contests.

Frank Wentworth, who acted as judge of walking, and Irving Peters, who was clerk of the course, covered plenty of ground in the performance of their duties.

Doc Darwent, according to members of the C. A. A. team, deserves a lot of credit for the double victories. Darwent has acted as coach because Delaney has been busy arranging details of the meet.

Capt. W. A. Moffett, commandant of the station, was too ill to be on hand, although he was reported in much better condition than on Friday.

The meet was delayed five minutes at the start because some one had mislaid the finish yarn. Bluejackets were ordered to pick up the pieces used on the day before, with the result some of the track events were held before the original ball was replaced.

Lieut. Harwood, who flew from Scott field, Belleville, Ill., to compete in the games, was rewarded. He won fourth place in the pole vault and will fly back today satisfied with his trip.

The bluejackets were liberal with their skyrocket yell. They gave it every time some athlete registered a good performance, no matter whether or not he is in the service.

In the Wake of the News

By RING W. LARDNER

THE EPISTLES OF EDNA.

Chicago, Sept. 19.

Dear Lionel:

Your letter just came and will answer it at once. So you are really going and you say you are "tickled to death" and ask me if I am not glad to hear of your good luck. Ask me anything else, dear, only do not ask me to be glad. One may laugh when their heart is breaking, but their laughter may be a mask that hides their true feelings which they would rather die than show in the presence of one whom the relations between them has never gone beyond the stage of friendship. And yet is that true in our case? Sometimes I have thought—— But even on an occasion like this, a girl may not reveal what is in her heart until the man has spoken out what is in his heart for how would the girl feel was she mistaken in her surmises? And yet I cannot believe it has been all make believe on your part, Lionel, and I cannot believe you are not all I thought you. Sometimes there are things that speak plainer than words and even in letters one may read between the lines and see there feelings which the writer has not the courage to come out and say them.

You say you don't know just when you are going but "maybe" you will "get a chance" to see me before you go. Did I not understand you so well, your saying that would break my heart, but I know how hard it is for a man like you to reveal all that is in their heart and the round about ways they have of saying things, so I forgive you. But I know you will see me unless you have been playing all this time and if I am any judge of a person's character, I know you are not that kind. So I will expect to hear from you as soon as you know when you are to leave and when you will be home to say good-bye to your parents.

I had a terrible experience last night. A girl friend of mine has been engaged to a lieutenant at Camp Custer ever since last winter and last week he was ordered to France and it seems like he didn't think it right to be married before he went as something might happen to him and perhaps spoil her life so he went away without them being married and last night I was over to her house to dinner and after dinner she broke down and cried like her heart would break and she said it wouldn't be half so hard for her had they been married because then she would of been sure of his love, but now she can't help from feeling like if he had really loved her he couldn't of stood it to go away without them being married. It was really terrible to see how bad she felt and I do think it's a mistake for men to act that way and if they knew how girls felt about it I am sure they would not hesitate about having the ceremony and I know they would if they really cared for the girl.

Well, must close and do some work which I ought to of done an hour ago, but I couldn't do anything till I had answered your letter.

You will tell me as soon as you know anything definite won't you and tell me the minute you know when you are coming to

Your(?)

OELSNER AND WILEY WIN DOUBLES TITLE AFTER HARD BATTLE

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Edward Oelsner and Don F. Wiley, representing Chicago Tennis club, won the city closed doubles championship in the final rounds yesterday afternoon at South Side Tennis club. They had to play the limit to secure the title, defeating Arthur P. Hubbell and T. H. Cochrane of South Side, 6—3, 3—6, 6—7, 6—4, 6—2.

Hubbell and Cochrane showed a sturdy defense in back court against the drives of the north side pair, and were quick to take advantage of opportunities, twice getting the lead in sets. Oelsner and Wiley, however, mastered the home club men by continued aggressive driving. Oelsner now holds the city closed singles and doubles titles. Summary of the deciding rounds:

The first of a series of gridiron lectures will be given tomorrow to aid the young players at the game.

Inquisitive Fans

Chicago.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Batter hits ball between second and first. First baseman gets ball and slides into bag. Also runner slides into bag, but baseman drops ball. Is runner out? F. E. WARD.

Answer—Not unless, in the umpire's opinion, the runner deliberately knocked the ball out of the baseman's hands.

* *

Chicago.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Kindly tell me if the players—Vaughn, McInnis, Schalk, etc.—are still under reserve to their respective teams or is everything off with the contracts? E. D. SIMMONS.

Answer—When major league baseball is resumed the club owners will have first claim to the players who were under contract to them when the war stopped professional baseball. In the meantime the players are free to play with semi-pro or shipyards teams.

* *

W. T. M., Haines City, Fla.—The first game of a double header is regarded as the game scheduled for that date by the officials of the major leagues.

G. A. A., Chicago—Yes.

Peru, Ill.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Ed Roush of the Cincinnati Nationals is a boy friend of mine and I am interested to know how he came out with the stick this year. I was following him in "The Tribune" this year and Mr. Wheat of Brooklyn and Friend Roush were running close for high honors. Please advise me as to his standing and record, as well as that of Wheat. D. V. GUDGEL.

Answer—The leadership of the National league in batting will not be known absolutely until the official batting averages, now being compiled at National league headquarters, are issued. When ready they will appear in The Tribune.

* *

Murray, Ia.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—If when batter hits fair ground ball to pitcher and does not run toward first base, but turns back past home plate toward his bench, and pitcher does not throw ball to first, umpire calls base runner out and the fielders come in, as this is the tihrd out, can base runner then run around the bases and score a run? H. C. TORRENCE.

Answer—As the batsman never was legally put out the umpire can use his own judgment, but in the major league a pitcher who failed to make the necessary play to first base would be fined heavily by his manager.

College Football Elevens Seek Rental of Cub Park

Several midwestern universities are negotiating with Business Manager Craighead of the Cubs for the use of the north side baseball park for football games this fall with a view to conserving railroad transportation and obeying the edict of the government regarding football trips. Chicago can be reached overnight from any of the college towns in the middle west, whereas longer journeys would be required for one team to travel to the habitat of the other. It is the purpose of the negotiations to retain on the college schedules games which could not be played otherwise without violating, in spirit, at least, the recent ruling from Washington relative to the gridiron sport.

MAROON ELEVEN ENDS FIRST WEEK'S WORK WITH STAGG PLEASED

BY MAROON.

Maroon football candidates put the finishing touches on their first week of gridiron work yesterday. While the bunch of athletes is individually much sorer than at the start of the week, Coach Stagg expressed a feeling of satisfaction. The men had run through all the signals and formations given out by the Old Man in the course of yesterday's practice session, with a success that was the contrary of disheartening.

The grid warriors assembled at 9 o'clock in the morning and devoted their drill to signal formations until they almost were ready to run them through blindfolded.

Freshman Coach Pat Page called off afternoon practice for his charges, because a considerable number of his prominent yearlings were slated to play in the afternoon game at Stagg field between Hyde Park High and Hyde Park alumni. The Maroon freshman team contains a high percentage of Hyde Park's Cook county high school eleven of 1917.

Taking stock of the first week of grid work, which included twelve strenuous practice sessions, the Midway is a bit proud of things accomplished. The list of injured includes only one name—Lineman Gale Moulton, who was kicked in the head—and this player will be back tomorrow. The rest of the men are in good shape and have absorbed considerable football lore.

More Vim This Week.

The players expect to go at it with redoubled vim this week, because the close of the practice season under Coach Stagg's immediate control will come with the opening of the university as a S. A. T. C. cantonment a week from Tuesday.

PURPLE FOOTBALL GETS O. K. FROM ARMY OFFICER

BY EVAN STONE.

Those interested in football at Northwestern breathed a sigh of relief yesterday. Lieut. L. Williams, commandant when the military takes over the university, announced approval of the Purple's football schedule for the season, including the three interstate trips in which the Evanston eleven will figure during the season.

The decision came after a session in which Trustee William A. Dyche of the university, Prof. W. V. Pooley, faculty conference member; Coach Fred Murphy; Prof. O. T. Wilson, who assumed oversight of all athletics on the leaving of Director Lewis Omer for Camp Grant last year, and Trainer William McGill were closeted with Lieut. Williams. In addition to formal O. K. for the schedule the announcement was made that the hours from 4:30 to 6 o'clock daily will be allowed for football drill under Coach Murphy.

Means Big Boom for Sport.

The announcement stabilizes the football situation at Evanston. A further advantage to the football men comes from the announcement that the departmental students, including men in law, dentistry, medicine, and commerce at Chicago, also will be allowed to practice for football if it is possible for them individually to arrange the daily trip.

Northwestern had been understood to be wavering over whether to carry out all three of its long football trips. The first is scheduled to Iowa City, to meet Iowa, Oct. 12. The next trip is to play Michigan at Ann Arbor Nov. 2, and the last and longest to Lincoln, to tackle Nebraska in a game of which all net proceeds go to the Red Cross, Nov. 23.

Squad in Brief Practice.

The Purple athletes cavorted through simple formations in their morning practice session, but did not have a workout in the afternoon, as high school teams were using the varsity field for a game.

Oak Park Soccer Eleven Bumps Elmhurst College

Oak Park High school soccer team, last year high school champion of Cook county, defeated Elmhurst college team, 2 to 0, at Elmhurst yesterday, showing better team work than the older men. Wareman shot the first goal in 10:00, and Forkel got the other two minutes before the first half closed. Elmhurst forced several openings in the second half but could not score, fine work by Goalkeeper Bruce preventing some likely scores. Line-up:

Willard STORAGE BATTERY SERVICE STATION

Why Batteries Wear Out

There are two reasons; the natural wear that goes on slowly, and the rapid wear that's due to abuse, as when you—

Spin-spin-spin—a cold motor
Let the plates starve for want of charge
Forget to add distilled water.

You expect natural wear in batteries as much as you do in tires—but if your tire was flat you wouldn't keep running on it.

Drive around this way, and we'll tell you how you've been treating that battery, and how you can postpone its old age.

Willard Storage Battery Company
2524-34 Wabash Avenue

We carry a full stock of Bone Dry Batteries—every one brand new. You don't take any risk—either of delay, or of getting a battery not in every sense as new as the day it left the factory.

BREAK IN CORN AS LONGS RUSH TO LIQUIDATE

Close Comes with Prices Near the Lowest Mark.

BY CHARLES D. MICHAELS.

Realizing sales of corn, with poor buying support, carried prices off yesterday and closing trades were at almost the lowest, with losses of 2@2⅜c. Oats held well, September closing only ⅛c lower, the strength being due to a large cash business here. Southwestern corn markets lost ½@2⅝c, with October leading. Oats were ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher. In the northwest oats were ⅝c lower and in Winnipeg ⅛c higher, the latter having only 4 cars.

Provisions were firmer early, but closed easier, with November pork up 5c and September lard 10c higher, while distant futures of lard were 10@17½c lower and short ribs were off 2½@5c for the day.

Closing trades, compared with a week ago, show losses on corn of 4⅛@4¼c, while oats were up 1¼@1⅜c. Pork is 55@60c higher, lard off 17½@62½c, the latter on November, and short ribs 10@30c lower.

Corn at Season's Low.

Liquidation was on in corn, and with buying support limited and sentiment radically bearish, prices declined rapidly to new low levels for the season on the current deliveries. The finish was at the inside figure, with October $1.48¼ and November $1.45¾.

Frost over the belt had no effect, as the general belief is that the crop is safe. Weekly forecast was for generally fair, with nearly normal temperatures. At the inside figure prices were off 2⅛@2½c. The most effective buying came from shorts and holders of bids, but there was some pressure from sellers of the latter.

Cash news was of a bearish character. Interior offers of corn were liberal, and the bulk of the requests for permits have been on this grain. Sample values were weak and 5c lower at the last, with receipts 415 cars. Domestic shipping sales 60,000 bu, and deliveries were 5,000 bu.

Big Cash Oats Sales.

Removal of hedges on around 1,000,000 bu cash oats sold to exporters and to the government gave that market a stronger undertone early, and prices advanced ¼@½c in the face of the break in corn. Toward the last week-end evening up and local pressure made a reaction, but the finish was rather firm, with September 72¾c, October 73½c, and November 74⅜c.

Included in the cash sales were 700,000 bu to Georgian Bay ports at 77¼c, delivered there, and charters were made for 2,000,000 bu. The government secured 300,000 bu at outside points. Domestic sales were 90,000 bu.

Country offerings to arrive were light and receipts 127 cars. Primary receipts and shipments for the week were smaller than last year. Sample values were unchanged to ¼c lower, but everything offered was readily taken.

Rye Market Weakens.

Rye was in liberal supply and rather slow demand with prices ½c lower. No. 2 sold at $1.61 and good No. 3 at $1.60. Receipts, 70 cars. Minneapolis was unchanged to ½c lower, and Milwaukee easy. The northwest had 125 cars.

Barley here sold at unchanged prices with a fair demand, while outside markets were easy. Spot sales were at 93c@$1.04. Receipts, 25 cars. Cash and commission houses were good buyers of futures. At Kansas City spot sales were $1.08@1.09. The northwest had 51 cars.

Flax seed at Duluth closed unchanged to 2c higher; September, $4.13; October, $4.00; Winnipeg, unchanged to 2½c lower; October, $3.85; November, $3.75; December, $3.70. The three markets had 9 cars.

Timothy seed unchanged. October, $11.25 asked, and March, $11.00 bid. Toledo, 5@12½c lower; September, $5.40; October and March, $5.30; December, $5.35 per bu of 45 lbs. Clover seed, no market; Toledo, 10@37½c lower; October, $22.50; December, $22.90; March, $22.80 per bu of 60 lbs.

Provisions Closed Easy.

Selling pressure was enlarged in provisions early and at the last, the close being at the inside figure in most instances. There was more interest in lard than in short ribs most of the day, with pressure from the brokers who usually trade for packers. Weakness in corn and hogs, especially the latter, which were off 35@50c, were depressing factors, but net losses were small when all things are considered. Cash trade was said to be better than a week ago and shipments for the week were larger than the previous week, but of meats showed a decrease from last year, while lard increased. Prices follow:

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

The sentiment of the corn trade is decidedly in favor of lower prices. It is said that many of the local shorts did little buying on yesterday's break, looking for lower prices, and more liquidating on the part of Omaha interests and southwestern and western longs, who have bought on crop damage in that section. Small shorts took profits. There was a great deal of talk about weakness in the cash market, but leading industries called the market unchanged to 5c lower, with the close weak. No. 3 mixed corn was not wanted by shippers. Bids to the country for ten days' shipment were reduced 8c to $1.42 for No. 4 mixed.

For the present corn traders expect the buying power will be limited to covering by shorts, as a result of the decision on September corn. The action of the directors in giving the sellers until the close of trading Sept. 24 to announce their intentions in regard to delivery or settling is explained by a Board of Trade official, who says it is a seller's privilege and it was necessary for the commission men who had September corn sold for the country to have ample time to communicate with their customers and find out what their intentions were. They may have had corn in transit, or in country elevators which they wished to ship in to deliver.

Specialists in oats attributed the stubbornness of their market to absorption of offerings early by houses with seaboard connections which was presumed to represent export business. They were liberal buyers early, as were also a number of the leading cash houses, while the selling pressure was not heavy. It was noticeable that Omaha houses who were the largest sellers in the two previous days were liberal buyers. One of the large cash houses bought early, but returned to the selling side later.

The past two days fully 1,000 permits have been applied for to the grain control committee for shipment of grain, which in the aggregate means the movement of between 3,000 and 4,000 cars. The permits range from one car up to twenty-five and thirty cars. A permit can cover shipment of any number of cars.

"There is some anxiety in the trade regarding the marketing of lightweight hogs in districts where food is scarce and prices high," says W. L. Gregson, "but we understand measures are being taken to stop immediately marketing of hogs prematurely. The southern trade should show further improvement and export needs before the new hog crop arrives are expected to be large. Lard trade should be very heavy during the last three months of this year and the first two months of next."

It is expected that Julius Barnes and John J. Stream of the food administration will be in Chicago the first few days of this week.

The National Grain Dealers' association is to meet in Milwaukee the first part of this week. The Chicago Board of Trade will be represented by a committee of six.

Chicago grain control committee representing the railroads in the Chicago district is composed of J. H. Brinkerhoff, chairman; Fred Zimmerman, railroad traffic assistant, and J. H. Cherry of the food administration.

The food administration will receive bids at its New York office Thursday until noon from flour mills and sellers of cereal products for rye flour, barley flour, corn flour, and cornmeal for export. Purchase for shipment to Pacific coast terminals will be made at Portland and San Francisco.

Country shippers should not load bulkhead cars of grain even on permits. The elevator situation is such that every effort must be made to prevent congestion, and bulkhead cars seriously cut down the efficiency of the elevators. Some receivers express the view that eventually bulkhead cars will be almost unsalable except when a bonus of $50 to $100 is paid the buyer.

New corn promises to move rather early this season, weather permitting. An elevator in southeastern Iowa reported receiving its first wagon load from the 1918 crop on Sept. 19. It was of the white variety and of excellent quality.

Trading in September corn at St. Louis has been restricted to settlements only.

Maltsters are permitted to purchase grain to cover the malting demand for the manufacture of yeast, vinegar, cereal, breakfast foods, malt extract, and other legitimate purposes. No grain shall be malted, however, until sales have actually been made. No malting of grain for the purpose of making beer or near-beer is permitted. This order, issued by the food administration, went into effect yesterday.

All members of the Board of Trade who are employers should make out at once a list of their employés between the ages of 18 and 45, inclusive, and turn it into the secretary's office as soon as possible. The list should contain information as to whether such men have wives or other dependents solely dependent on them for support, a statement of the kind of work said employé is performing, and whether employer considers deferred classification should be asked for. A committee has been appointed who will make recommendations to the Cook county exemption board in the case of employés for whom it seems right to make a claim for deferred classification.

It is said that the food administration is bringing 4,000,000 bu of intermountain wheat into Chicago.

CASH GRAIN NEWS

Bulk of the cash wheat at Chicago sold at the basic prices to the government, with the exception of some No. 1 northern, which was taken by mills at ¼@½c premium. St. Louis was quoted ½c lower, and Milwaukee 1@2c lower. Receipts here were light at 378 cars.

A slow demand prevailed for cash corn, and with large receipts prices declined after being unchanged early and closed 5c lower. Industries were the best buyers, paying $1.05@1.20 for sample grades. St. Louis and Peoria were unchanged to 5c lower and Omaha 2@10c lower.

Cash oats here sold at practically unchanged prices, although quoted ¼c lower at one time. Offerings were small and demand active. St. Louis declined 1@1½c, but reported market as cleaned up at the last. Peoria was ½c lower, Omaha ½@¾c lower, and Milwaukee 1¼c lower. Cash grain prices in leading markets follow:

PRODUCE TRADE

Butter met a good demand, both for fresh and storage lots, and prices are irregular, particularly on storage goods, which are selling at 10@11c under the fresh makes, due to government regulations limiting profits as prices have advanced so rapidly that butter put in two months ago has to be sold at a big discount under the present market, some going at 45@47c. The market yesterday was called ½@1c higher in Chicago, while fresh lots were 59@60c.

The cheese market was strong, with prices tending higher. Storage eggs are being used more extensively and stocks are decreasing. The market here yesterday was rather easy, with fresh up to 48c and refrigerator lots 41@42c. Live fowls declined ½c to 23@24c, with the heavy fat up to 27c. Spring chickens were 1c lower at 26c, roosters were ½c lower at 21½c.

Receipts of potatoes for the week were 408 cars, against 326 cars the previous week and 270 cars last year. The market was easy with a decidedly weak tone, and sales at $2.40@2.60 for northwestern in car lots.

HAY AND STRAW

Loadings of timothy hay at country points are said to be larger with supplies at terminal markets small and below requirements. There is also a large shipping demand, mainly from the government, which absorbs the offerings, and the market is strong. Receipts were 26 cars of timothy, two cars state prairie, one car packing, and one car wheat straw. No. 1 timothy was $34.00 to $37.00 and standard $32.00@35.00; No. 1 light clover mixed, $32.00 to $35.00. Prairie hay is scarce with southwestern $31.00 to $33.00, and western and northwestern, $29.00 to $30.00. LARGE RECEIPTS OF HOGS FORCE PRICES WAY DOWN

Packers Take Advantage of Conditions in Making Purchases.

Receipts of hogs for the week at 102,300 proved the second largest since July, while shipments of less than 4,000 proved smallest in over three years, enabling packers to force prices to the lowest level in nearly two weeks.

Hogs averaged around 75c lower than the high day of the week, when values were highest on record, although top at $20.40 was only 55c off, the spread in prices being wider, with common packing grades weakest.

Steers slightly removed from top grade were hit badly the last week, and many of those closing at $16.50@17.50 were 50@75c lower, despite an advance by best heavy lots to a new record level.

While receipts of hogs are increasing, the average weight is decreasing, the estimated average last week at 246 lbs being five pounds lighter than previous week, yet eight pounds heavier than a year ago.

Average Price of Hogs.

Average price of hogs at Chicago was $19.65, against $19.85 Friday, $20.40 last Monday, $20.30 previous Saturday, $18.40 a year ago, $10.80 two years ago, and $7.56 three years ago.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 30,000 cattle, 30,000 hogs, and 35,000 sheep, against 42,377 cattle, 18,933 hogs, and 22,475 sheep corresponding Monday a year ago. Next week's estimated receipts 85,000 cattle, 100,000 hogs, and 140,000 sheep.

BEST STEERS HIGHER.

Practically all of the 4,000 were direct to packers from other markets and cattle trade was nominal. Best steers closed 25c higher, with top a record at $19.50. Other grades were steady to 75c lower. Butcher stock declined 25@40c, with canners off 25c. Bulls held steady. Stockers and feeders sold steady to 25c higher. Veal calves strong to 25c higher, with top at $19.50, but heavies and grassy lots were unevenly lower.

HOGS AGAIN SELL LOWER.

There was a break of 20c in the general average price of hogs, forcing the lowest range in about two weeks. Best 170@232 lb averages sold at $20.40, with 400 lb packers to the Anglo-American at a cost of $18.85. The Wilson packers, averaging over 300 lbs, cost $19.08, or 85c less than last Monday. Eleven markets had 20,000, or 3,000 less than a week ago and 7,000 more than a year ago.

SHEEP AND LAMBS UP.

Although 9,000 sheep and lambs arrived, practically nothing was on sale. Sheep and yearlings were steady to 25c higher than a week ago, while fat lambs gained 25@50c. Feeding lambs were up 15@25c, with feeding breeding sheep steady to strong. Range lambs topped at $18.30 and natives reached $17.75, with feeders up to $17.00. Ewes topped at $12.00 and wethers made $12.75, while yearlings scored $14.25. One load of ewe lambs to breeders made $19.00, while feeding yearlings made $12.70 and ewes $10.75.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Announcement of the determination to fix cotton prices in the near future added today to the uncertainty of future cotton goods trading subsequent to Oct. 1, when new prices are expected to be announced. Yarns were firm and quiet. Wool goods markets were dominated by uncertainty of wool supplies. Large textile orders from the government continued to come forward.

Realty Men to Spend $5,000 to Advertise Liberty Loan

A fund of $5,000 is to be raised by real estate men of the city for the purpose of advertising the fourth Liberty loan. The appointment of a committee of seven to obtain subscriptions for this purpose was authorized at the monthly meeting of the Chicago real estate board last Wednesday. The matter was brought to the attention of the board by Paul Steinbrecher, who spoke of the need of the widest and fullest coöperation in order to make the loan the success it should be.

NON-BUILDING ORDER MAY AID CHICAGO REALTY

War Measure Will Help Existing Improvements, Experts Believe.

Real Estate Transfers

Real estate transfers filed for record yesterday totaled 173, including 15 Torrens, comprising 125 in the city and 48 in the outlying townships. In all, $311,997 was involved. Transfers were as follows:

Rogers Park	1	Maine	1
Lake View	9	New Trier	3
Jefferson	24	Proviso	4
North Town	3	Thornton	4
South Town	9
Hyde Park	25	Calumet [outside]	1

West Town	23	Leyden	1
Bloom	4	Northfield	1
Bremen	3	Palatine	2
Cicero	12
Lyons	8	Stickney [outside]	5

It seems to be "just one old thing after another" with the real estate market so far as concerns the disturbing factors with which it has had to contend because of the war. On the eve of another big Liberty loan campaign comes the new order of the State Council of Defense putting the lid on all kinds of building.

The order, although sweeping in its provisions, does not, as a matter of fact, add much to the drastic conditions which have prevailed for a considerable time in the building field, where practically all building projects, unless in some way connected with war requirements, have been stopped. It means drawing the lines a little closer with reference to nonessential building.

Control Building Operations.

It is announced that hereafter no construction work in the state, except in certain specified instances, can be undertaken without the approval of the nonwar construction bureau, created early in the week by the State Council of Defense. The office of the bureau is at 120 West Adams street, where all applications for permits must be made.

All the exceptions pertain to government work of various kinds, including projects undertaken directly by or under contract with the war department or the navy department, the Shipping board, Emergency Fleet corporation, the bureau of industrial housing and transportation of the department of labor, or the United States Housing corporation. All of these must first be cleared and approved by the war industries board.

Repairs May Be Made.

Exception is also made in connection with repairs and extensions on existing buildings to cost not to exceed $2,500; roadways and buildings undertaken by or under contract with the government railroad administration; those connected with mines; public highway improvements and street improvements, when approved in writing by the United States highways council.

The rule applies to corporations and municipalities as well as individuals. Each application, which must be a sworn statement, will be considered on its merits.

This looks almost air tight so far as general building operations are concerned, but on the theory, "It's an ill wind that blows nobody good," it is certain to work to the advantage of owners of anything like desirable buildings of a residential or business character, for with the stoppage in building operations and because of the inevitable deterioration in existing buildings—some of which is of an exceedingly rapid character—together with the excessive cost of building materials, these good buildings are almost certain to become much more valuable. In fact, as is the case with warehouse and factory buildings with switch track connection, almost anything with four walls and a roof promises to be benefited.

Building Essential Structures.

However, the fact that there is going to be considerable building in addition to factory and warehouse construction for the government's needs is shown by a contract recently awarded the Wells Bros. Construction company for the erection of 174 houses to be built by the government in Hammond. They are expected to cost between $500,000 and $600,000, and they will be used to house employés of the Standard Steel Car company.

There can be little doubt, too, that there is certain to be a steady increase in this class of building around Chicago, coincident with the growth of the government's war activities, which latter fact bears a more encouraging outlook, as the result of the labors of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, the Association of Commerce, and other organizations.

The Chicago real estate board is also going to give its aid in this work, and at its monthly meeting last week appointed a committee of three to coöperate with the other organizations. It is time that some concerted movement was made to secure for Chicago its proper share of the work, which eastern cities seem to have largely monopolized. In this event there can be no doubt as to the benefit which will accrue to the real estate market. That this has been the case with the eastern cities is a well recognized fact.

Forest Preserve to Buy 442 Acres in 9 Parcels

The forest preserve district has authorized the purchase of three large tracts, comprising altogether nine parcels, with an aggregate of 442 acres, for which it will pay $301,400. The most important is 225 acres, including streets, comprising practically all of the town of Edgebrook, on the Milwaukee and St. Paul road, just south of the north city limits, which has been offered to the district by the Dixon Land association for $200,000. The railroad station, the site of the Edgebrook Country club, and a small number of subdivided lots are excepted. Seven parcels on the east of the Indiana state line, containing 137.5 acres, have been offered for $89,400.

$73,000 TRADE LEADER OF WEEK IN APARTMENTS

Market Fairly Brisk; Most Action in High Grade Apartments.

There was a fair amount of activity in apartment property during the week, the aggregate movement comparing well with that of several preceding weeks. There was, however, a scarcity of deals in medium and cheap properties.

The thirty apartment building, with gross annual rental of $10,300, on a lot 105x125 feet, south front, in Berteau avenue, 165 feet east of Leavitt street, has been conveyed by Laura Simmons to Louis Heinemann for an indicated consideration of $73,000, subject to an incumbrance of $53,000. In part payment the purchaser conveyed the property at the southeast corner of Fullerton and Spaulding avenues, improved with a building containing two stores and three flats, at a reported valuation of $25,000, clear.

New Apartment Building Sold.

John A. Carlson, the builder, has sold to Adolph H. Weigle the fifteen flat building completed May last at the southeast corner of Greenview avenue and Jonquil terrace, on a lot 42½@178 feet, for a reported consideration of $67,000, subject to an incumbrance of $42,000. In part payment the purchaser conveyed the thirteen room residence at 5446 Kenmore avenue, lot 100x150 feet, at a valuation of $2,000, subject to 7,000. The flat building has an annual rental of about $9,400. Herbert H. Schoeniank of H. E. Henderson & Co. was the broker.

The apartment property on Kenwood avenue, 131 feet south of Marquette road, has been sold by H. Nelson Maher to Charles H. Rathmann. There is an incumbrance of $61,250. The lot is west front, 182 feet, and runs to the Illinois Central railroad, with the exception of the east ten feet. Revenue stamps indicate a valuation of $20,000 for the equity.

Sheridan Road Deal.

An apartment building on Sheridan road, 100 feet north of Lawrence avenue, west front, 60x143 feet, has been conveyed by Albert McEwan to Ferdinand J. Frett, subject to an incumbrance of $30,000. There is an incumbrance of $6,000.

An apartment building at the northwest corner of Lincoln street and Sunnyside avenue has been purchased by August Stoltze from Jacob Rabinowitz. The lot is 92x98 feet. The incumbrance amounts to $30,000, revenue stamps indicating the payment of $22,500 for the equity.

Cuyler Avenue Deal.

William V. Frey has acquired the apartment building at the northeast corner of Cuyler avenue and Pleasant street from J. Soffel. The lot is 57x171 feet. Revenue stamps indicate a payment of $19,000, an incumbrance of $29,000 being also assumed.

There also was filed for record the transfer by Charles W Bush to May H Winnett of an undivided half interest in the apartment property in Delaware place, 217 feet west of Lake Shore drive. It is a nine story high grade building, erected by Axel H. Johnson, is on a lot 55x109 feet and contains seven apartments of nine to ten rooms, which rent around $300 a month. The revenue stamps indicate that $34,000 was paid for the equity, the property bearing an incumbrance of $183,000.

SALES BUILDING IN AUTO DISTRICT CHANGES HANDS

An interesting transaction in the Michigan avenue automobile district was the sale by Oliver & Co. for Charles V. Trumbull to Elmer E. Beach of the property at No. 2241, lot 25x162 feet, west front, improved with a one story building used as an automobile salesroom. The price paid was $40,000, the purchaser conveying in part payment a residence at 1312 Lunt avenue. The Michigan avenue building is under lease to the Bethlehem Truck company.

The same brokers have leased for E. V. Johnson to the Triangle Motors, Inc. the store at 1636 Wabash avenue, at an annual rental of $3,000.

Realty Associations' Merger in Complicated Situation

The action taken at the monthly meeting of the Cook county real estate board last Tuesday on the proposed merger of that organization, the Chicago board, and the Chicago Renting Agents' association is thought to have rather complicated the situation. The amalgamation committee of the board was instructed to draw up a plan which should involve the dissolution of present organizations, a new charter with a name to indicate an amalgamation of the three, and not the absorption of two by one, amalgamation to be based on membership strength and not on size of sinking funds, new constitution based on majority rule by members and not by rule of directors and executive committees on matters of policy and broad finance, initiation fees such as to make possible permanent membership of all brokers in city and county, the new organization to be committed in advance to the support of the Torrens system and municipal ownership of utilities.

HALSTED STREET BANK OBTAINS NEW QUARTERS

Lease of Sixty-third St. Property Is Feature of the Week.

The feature of the week in a leasing way was the lease by the Sixty-third and Halsted Street Savings bank from Robert A. Schoenfeld of Peoria of the store and basement at the northwest corner of Sixty-third and Halsted streets from May 1, 1919, to April 30, 1934, at a term rental of $120,000. It is payable at the rate of $600 a month for the first two years, $650 for the following two, $675 for the next two, and $700 for the remainder of the term.

The bank is at present located on Sixty-third street, adjoining the leased premises on the west, and under the terms of the lease may take possession before May 1 next. The premises will be fitted up as modern banking quarters, the bank to occupy the first floor, while the second floor will be used for safety deposit purposes.

The three upper floors of the Stewart building, at the northeast corner of Wells street and the Chicago river, have been leased by the American Tobacco company from the estate of John K. Stewart for a term at an annual rental of about $17,500.

Lunch Company Gets Lease.

E. F. Keebler & Co. have leased for Carl Metterhausen to the Delco Lunch company the two stores at 1045-47 Wilson avenue, for ten years from May 1 next at a term rental of $51,000. They are north front, between Broadway and Kenmore avenue, and the lessee company, which is owned by B. J. Efting and John F. Darling, will expend about $25,000 in remodeling the premises. It will give the company ten stores besides a commissary in Chicago.

Keebler & Co. recently negotiated a lease to the Delco company of the entire store floor at 18-20 North Clark street, for ten years from May 1 next, at a term rental of $150,000. It is interesting to note that Mr. Metterhausen purchased the Wilson avenue lot, 50x150 feet, about twelve years ago for $7,200 cash. The property now is earning about 5 per cent on $180,000.

Jewelry Firm Takes Quarters.

The same brokers also have leased for C. and A. H. Peponis to the Sandack Jewelry company the store, 7x21 feet, at 18 North Clark street, for a term at annual rent of $1,800; also for John P. Hooker to H. W. Thurston the store at 532 South State street, for a term at annual rental of $4,800.

Robert White & Co. have leased for George A. McKinlock and the Fort Dearborn Trust and Savings bank to the Fireman's Insurance company, the seventeenth floor and part of the eighteenth floor in the Fort Dearborn National Bank building; rental terms not disclosed.

Robert White & Co. have resigned the management of the new State-Lake building being erected at the southwest corner of State and Lake streets, and the Hool Realty company has been appointed manager.

TALKING DEVICE COMPANY BUYS $42,500 PLANT

Transactions in manufacturing property constituted probably the most noteworthy feature of the week's market, one transaction involving the erection of a plant to cost in the neighborhood of $250,000, as soon as conditions will permit. It was the purchase by the Vitanola Talking Machine company of the plant of the Lincoln Sash and Door company on Fifty-second avenue, north of Twenty-second street, for a reported consideration of $42,500.

The property, which comprises about three acres in the Grant Land association district, is improved with a two story factory building, with dry kilns and storage sheds, and is served by a switch track. The plant originally was owned by the Prestolite company, whose buildings were destroyed by fire several years ago. Alexander Kwist of Hodge & Chandler was the broker.

The company has a plant at Thirty-fifth street and Normal avenue, where its executive offices and assembly plant are located. It also has a plant at Saginaw, Mich. As soon as conditions will permit, it will add to its capacity by the erection of a plant on the property just acquired to cost about $250,000.

Charles F. Beck has leased two tracts having a total area of 19,672 acres. The tracts are at Crawford avenue and Diversey boulevard and will be divided up for industrial purposes after switch tracks have been put in. The leases are for ten years and contain options to purchase, the transaction being practically a sale. J. H. Van Vlissingen & Co. were the brokers.

A tract of 10.296 acres on Crawford avenue, 333 feet north of Diversey boulevard, running through to the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway tracks, 333x1,407.87 feet, was leased by Mr. Beck from John Lang. The purchase price is $50,000. The sum of $5,000 is to be paid when the lease is signed.

Investors' Taxes Heaviest.

If the war revenue bill is enacted in its present form, investors will find themselves loaded down with the heaviest part of the burden of financing the war, just as they did under the previous law. This bill is intended to produce more than twice as much revenue as the last one, and the main part of the increase is in the taxes on corporations.

The general idea appears to be to tax every corporation up to, or a little beyond, the utmost limit of its ability to pay, and to raise as much as possible of the balance by the income tax on individuals. To carry out this plan, corporations are taxed, first, on the same system as heretofore, but at higher rates. Then, to prevent any possible escape, a "war profits" tax of 80 per cent is provided as an alternative to the "excess profits" tax. Whichever plan exacts the most money is to be applied to each corporation.

The theory of the framers of the bill is that the corporations are rich, and, therefore, able to pay over nearly all of their incomes. This theory is plausible at first sight, but does not bear examination. The greatest and richest corporations are owned partly by persons of wealth and partly by hundreds of thousands of small investors. Corporation taxes laid on a corporation are thus borne in large part by comparatively poor people. These also must pay the income tax; no escape from that if the income is of any size.

Globe Oil.

P. V. K. and W. B., Davenport, Ia.—The Globe Oil company reported recently 1,400 barrels of daily production, with a large acreage yet to be drilled. Gross earnings in the six months ended June 30 were $311,067. There is $[illegible] stock outstanding and dividends of [illegible] per cent a month and some extras are paid. Evidently after allowance for depreciation most of the earnings are paid out in dividends, putting the stock in a highly speculative position. Its future depends principally on the results of future drilling operations.

Brief Answers.

R. M. G.—The Southwestern Gas and Electric company supplies natural gas and electricity to Texarkana and Shreveport. Its earnings have been increasing steadily. In 1917 net was $301,[illegible], which covered the interest on the mortgage bonds nearly three times. The refunding issue, being junior to only a relatively small amount of first mortgage bonds, is in a strong position.

W. H., Indianapolis, Ind.—The Caledonia mine is supposed to be almost worked out. Few more dividends are expected.

GAIN IN SURPLUS RELIEVES DOUBT ON MONEY MART

New York Statement Reflects Satisfactory Changes.

With an increase of $40,580,950 in the surplus reserve of the New York banks, that item is brought up to $65,-335,170, restoring it to a level relieving any apprehension over the immediate money situation. As noted last week, the fluctuations in the surplus are now usually so wide that the decline the previous week around $25,-000,000, admittedly too low, was without effect on banking sentiment.

Meanwhile the government increased its deposits with the New York banks by $73,863,000, against withdrawals the previous week of $56,931,000. These deposits require no reserve.

Net demand deposits increased $72,-262,000, while loans expanded over $72,-000,000.

PRICE FIXING REPORTS AGAIN TUMBLE COTTON

New York, Sept. 21.—Washington dispatches saying that the government had decided to fix cotton prices and to assume control of distribution caused consternation in the cotton market today and, as a result, prices broke sharply under a wave of selling. At the lowest point October was $7.50 a bale below yesterday's close.

The trade was prepared for government action of some sort with reference to cotton, but it had been anticipated that an actual decision to fix prices would depend upon an investigation which might not be completed until final estimates of the crop were available.

No official intimation was given as to the price likely to be named, but the news that price fixing had been determined upon evidently surprised the remaining long interest. Futures:

STOCK MARKET IS MORE ACTIVE; PRICES ADVANCE

[New York Times Financial Review.]

New York, Sept. 21.—[Special.]—With a greater degree of activity for a short session than might have been expected from the behavior of the market earlier in the week, prices on the stock exchange advanced easily today. Numerous issues showed gains of a point or more. The recovery appeared to be discounting the favorable bank statement which was made public at noon. It has been freely stated that the money committee's restrictions on call loans will be less burdensome when the fourth Liberty loan campaign gets under way, and the widespread feeling in Wall street that a rising stock market must precede or accompany the successful flotation of a big security offering may find substantiating evidence. The experience of previous campaigns has proved contradictory in this respect, but it is obviously beyond the power of the loan managers to control all of the factors on which markets build.

INSURANCE NEWS IN ALL BRANCHES EAST AND WEST

BY THOMAS R. WEDDELL.

At the annual meeting of the National Association of Insurance Agents, held last week at Cleveland, plans were made for more effective organization of the state associations, and a fund of over $25,000 was raised for this work and to oppose socialistic tendencies and unnecessary encroachments by the government on the business.

One of the principal addresses was by Lawrence Y. Sherman, United States senator from Illinois, who took a strong position against government insurance, holding that the private companies are furnishing adequate protection at reasonable rates and that government operation inevitably meant a loss of efficiency and service. Similar views were expressed by C. W. Fairchild, chairman of the convention of insurance commissioners; John T. Stone, president of the Maryland Casualty; and others. Strong declarations were made in favor of increased fire prevention activity.

A telegram was sent President Wilson declaring the willingness of insurance agents to give up their business if it was necessary to win the war, but protesting that such necessity had not yet appeared, the business declaring its readiness to appear at Washington and to defend its position against the efforts of Socialists who are using the war emergency to further their state insurance fad.

E. M. Allen of Arkansas was reelected president, with C. S. S. Miller of New York as secretary and treasurer and Fred J. Cox of Perth Amboy, N. J., as chairman of the executive committee. The western vice presidents are E. B. Walsh of Davenport, Ia., for the middle west; James E. Wallace of Kansas City for the Mississippi valley, and E. J. Main of Denver for the mountain states.

WHO ARE ESSENTIAL.

At the request of the Chicago Association of Commerce the Chicago board of underwriters has appointed a special committee of five to pass upon the problems of the selective draft as they apply to the fire insurance business. It will seek to formulate rules for determining how many and what employes are regarded to be essential to the industry. The committee is made up of A. G. Dugan of the Hartford, C. H. Gosses of the National Liberty, H. W. Carlisle of Marsh & McLennan, Donald M. Wood of Childs, Young & Wood, and W. E. Moorhouse of Cory, Moorhouse & Co. It will hold its first meeting Monday afternoon.

INSURANCE NOTES.

The receiver for the American Union Fire of Philadelphia, which has been liquidated by the Pennsylvania insurance department, is preparing to pay another dividend of 10 per cent on allowed claims, making a total of 70 per cent. It is believed that a final dividend of from 5 to 10 per cent will follow.

The insurance convention season is nearing its end. The International Association of Industrial Accident Boards and Commissions will hold its annual meeting at Madison, Wis., on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, and the Illinois Association of Insurance Agents will hold its annual meeting at Quincy on Thursday.

The proposed oil pool will not restrict its operations to crude oil in tanks, but will write refineries, warehouses, and all other oil risks deemed desirable by the governing committee. It will also operate wherever oil risks are located, its purpose being to meet the competition of nonassociated companies.

The annual meeting of the Missouri Fire Prevention association and the Kansas Fire Prevention association will be held on Tuesday at the Baltimore hotel in Kansas City.

The wife of Frederick Richardson, United States manager of the General Accident, died suddenly last week at Concord, Mass., while on an automobile tour.

FINANCIAL NOTES

The St. Louis and San Francisco will pay on Oct. 1 the semi-annual installment of 3 per cent interest on the adjustment mortgage 6 per cent gold bonds and the annual installment of 6 per cent to holders of income mortgage 6 per cent gold bonds.

The Missouri and North Arkansas railroad, running from Joplin, Mo., to Helena, Ark., on which traffic has been suspended as a result of a strike, has been taken over by the railroad administration. Traffic on the road probably will be resumed as soon as the necessary orders can be given.

Houston Oil has brought in its No. 6 well with an initial flow of 3,000 brls oil a day. This well is located on the same 800 acre tract in Hull district of Texas where other producing wells are located.

Provision has been made for paying the $1,000,000 of 6 per cent notes of the Electric Storage Battery company, due Oct. 1. Payment will be made on presentation of the notes to the Fidelity Trust company of Philadelphia.

A summary of revenues and expenses of sixty-one of the largest telephone companies for May shows a decrease in net operating income of $398,740, or 6.3 per cent as compared with May, 1917. In the same month there was an increase in total operating revenues of $1,458,013, or 5.4 per cent over May of last year. A summary for April recently showed a substantial increase in net operating income over the same month last year.

For the five months ended May 30 net operating income decreased $1,596,520, or 4.6 per cent, as compared with the same period in 1917.

J. Clarke Dean of S. B. Chapin & Co. has returned to his home from a hospital and is recovering rapidly after a difficult operation.

NATIONAL AND STATE BANKERS IN OPEN CLASH

Old Guard Endeavors to Force the Election of President.

The convention of the American Bankers' association opening in Chicago Monday is expected to develop an open clash between state and national banks for the first time in the history of the association. The old guard of national bank heads who have dominated the affairs of the association for years insist on following precedent and advancing Robert F. Maddox, a national banker of Atlanta, from vice presidency to the president's chair and will attempt to name a national banker for vice president.

State Bankers Active.

A strong coterie of state bankers are arriving in Chicago determined to take the convention by storm and elect a state banker president as well as vice president. E. D. Hulbert, president of the Merchants Loan and Trust company, has refused to consider election as vice president in line for promotion, but the state bankers still insist that he can be induced to change his mind even if it be necessary to elect him to the presidency direct.

Richard S. Hawes, vice president of the Third National bank of St. Louis, is the state candidate for the vice presidency to succeed Mr. Maddox.

Daniels to Speak.

The convention will be held at the Congress hotel. The principal speaker of the week will be Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels, who will come on from Washington to deliver an address.

Others, prominent in their fields of activity, who will address either the convention or the various sections into which it is divided, are Eugene Lyman Fisk and Samuel Untermeyer of New York, David Friday, Samuel Insull, chairman of the Illinois State Council of Defense; Congressman C. Frank Reavis of Nebraska, William A. Law of Philadelphia, and A. E. Bester.

BOND MARKET'S FOLLOWERS ARE LEFT IN DOUBT

Those who live by the bond market are growing nervous over the continued advance in foreign securities, particularly French issues. They reason either that there is more foreign buying, based on diplomatic information, than is admitted or that an attempt is being made at window trimming. In the one case the market would be a purchase and in the other a sale; between the two the trader wavers.

Paris 6s advanced another point and closed at 96½, a new high mark since the period immediately following their flotation. French tri-city issues closed at 98, also a high record, and French Republic 5½s have crossed the point where there is a profit in settlement at the fixed rate of 5.75 francs to the dollar.

United Kingdom and Anglo-French issues were but slightly changed quotation-wise, but the market was bare of offerings. Our own war bonds were irregular, with little strength in any issue.

—Stop your profit leaks

If your NET profit on each sale is say 5% and your turn-over is $100,000 of merchandise on an average four times a year, your annual volume is $400,000 and you will make net $20,000.

If by selling us your Accounts you can handle an ADDITIONAL $200,000 annual volume, you should thus make $10,000 more money than you do now—in addition to reducing the percentage of your over-head expense.

Should your Accounts average paid in 30 days, it will cost you only $2,166.67 total to sell us $200,000 more of them in order to make several times over that much more money. Certainly you cannot make anything like such profits on your merchandise.

Failure to make a profit is to make a loss. Let us show you how to make more money without increasing your capital and WITHOUT DISTURBING YOUR BUSINESS ORGANIZATION, OR YOUR CUSTOMERS.

Would you give us $2,166.67 to make $10,000 additional profits in your own business? Can you make that much on an equal cost of anything else?

"There Goes Another Load of Coal for Jones"

Science is speaking. "That's what unscientific construction in a boiler does.

"An unscientific boiler throws heat to the dogs. It sacrifices comfort. It disturbs peace of mind. It is a huge expense."

In the Weil-McLain Scientific Combustion Boiler, Science and mechanical skill have joined forces. The result is a complete boiler in which scientific combustion is assured.

Its remarkable heating efficiency does not depend on any one single and exaggerated feature, but every part has been perfected and co-ordinated to attain scientific results.

The use of the Weil-McLain Scientific Combustion Boiler means lowered fuel costs, greater comfort and better service. It marks a new era in the Science of heating. With these modern boilers is attained, for the first time, scientific combustion of fuel. This means great economy and even temperature that makes a cozy, healthful home when the weather blusters.

The Weil-McLain Scientific Combustion Boiler means a reliable source for your heating supply—a dependable servant for the family. It means freedom from boiler worries and relief from unnecessary labor. It means that the coal pile will not disappear as snow does before a melting sun.

A brief examination of this scientific boiler for either steam or hot water will show clearly how you can protect your family's health and welfare and reduce living costs.

"I have found Cutex the quickest, easiest and most effective way of taking care of my nails."

Alice Brady

To make your cuticle smooth and firm, use Cutex

A little Cutex Nail White underneath nails makes them snowy white

The harmfulness of cutting the cuticle

WHEN you cut the cuticle, you ruin the appearance of your whole nail. It was to meet the need for a harmless cuticle remover that the formula for Cutex was prepared. Cutex completely does away with all need for cutting or trimming, and gives a smooth, shapely outline to the nail.

How to manicure with Cutex

In the Cutex package you will find an orange stick and some absorbent cotton. Wrap some of the cotton around the end of the stick, dip it into the bottle and work around the base of the nail, gently pushing back the cuticle. Then carefully rinse the fingers with clear water, taking care to push back the softened cuticle when drying the hands.

If the skin around the base of your nail dries easily at certain seasons of the year, as that of many women does, apply a little Cutex Cuticle Comfort. This cream will help to keep your cuticle always soft and pliant.

After your first Cutex manicure, examine your nails! You will be amazed at the improvement just one application makes.

You can secure Cutex in any drug and department store. The Cuticle Remover comes in 30c, 60c and $1.25 bottles. Cutex Nail White is 30c. Cutex Nail Polish in cake, paste, powder, liquid or stick form is 30c. Cutex Cuticle Comfort is also 30c.

George Mason Old England's sauce wizard says.

"Better Sauce Can Be Made in America"

"America is supreme in tomato culture. And in Iowa I found a certain tomato which in exquisite flavor excelled all others. Then I knew better sauce could be made in America than elsewhere.

These flavory tomatoes were grown by a man who knew the innermost secrets of tomato culture—the soil needed—selections of seed—the planting and culture—the ripening and picking. And now on our own farms under the care of this genius in tomato culture, these red-ripe, luscious tomatoes are grown; giving to Mason's Universal Sauce the distinctive, delightful and indescribable flavor which I guarantee you will enjoy."

THREE HITS from Song Headquarters

SONGS win wars! Kaiser Bill—Beware! America is singing! We sing in camp—we sing on ships—we sing at home—"community" sings—morning, noon and night. Keep it up, America—it's the road to Berlin.

Here are three new hits singers and jazz bands call the greatest melodies in years. Learn 'em, play 'em, sing 'em! Get the cheero, fun-loving, full-of-pep Yankee spirit woven into every note and every word.

"K-K-K-Katy"—Stammering Song

Fun is the doughboy's pal—that's why he wrote and sings "K-K-K-Katy"—the song of songs, with a zippy, catchy melody and those beautifully simple words stammered by Katy's tongue-tied beau. "K-K-K-Katy" is the song of the boys—why shouldn't it make a tremendous hit in every theatre, eat-palace and home in Yankeeland! Try it out now!

"If He Can Fight Like He Can Love, Good-Night, Germany!"

A rollicking, happy Yankee melody and clever, honest-to-goodness words—no wonder it's sweeping the land! Only a deaf man could keep his feet and lips quiet when the band plays and the singer sings this great hit. Words by Grant Clarke and Howard E. Rogers. Music by Geo. W. Meyer. You can't get away from it. It's a wonder.

"Everything Is Peaches Down in Georgia"

Like a snappy, unusual melody? Like novel words that are different? Brother, here's your song! "Everything Is Peaches Down in Georgia" is a winner. If you've heard it you know that! If you haven't heard it you're missing something. Words by Grant Clarke. Music by Milton Ager and Geo. W. Meyer. Join the millions who are singing it now.

You Can't Go Wrong With a Feist Song

Get them today at any music or department store or at any Woolworth, Kresge, Kress, McCrory, Kraft, Grant, or Metropolitan Store.

La=may Face Powder Stays On Better Than Any Other

Now you can use a pure face powder that beautifies your complexion wonderfully and is guaranteed not to injure the most delicate baby skin. And it really stays on better than any other face powder. It does not contain white lead or starchy rice powder (Poudre de Riz) to make it stick. White lead poisons the skin and rice powder turns into a gluey paste that encourages enlarged pores, blackheads and unsightly complexions. Five thousand dollars is offered any chemist who analyzes it and finds it contains any white lead or rice powder. The specialist who makes this improved powder uses a medicinal ingredient that doctors use to heal the skin. In fact, this new powder helps to prevent and reduce enlarged pores and irritations. It is also astringent, discouraging flabbiness, crows' feet and wrinkles. Because it is pure and because it stays on so well this La-may powder (French, Poudre L'Ame) is now used by over a million American women. And it is sold by prominent dealers everywhere. The large size is only fifty cents and the trial size twenty-five cents. Remember, La-may is guaranteed. If you do not find La-may much better than any you have ever used, your dealer is authorized to return your money without question. Refuse substitutes. Your common sense will tell you that when you are offered a substitute it is sure to be a demonstrator trying to sell an inferior powder that pays a big commission. When you use this absolutely pure La-may and see how splendidly it beautifies your complexion, you will understand why it so quickly became the most popular beauty powder sold in New York.

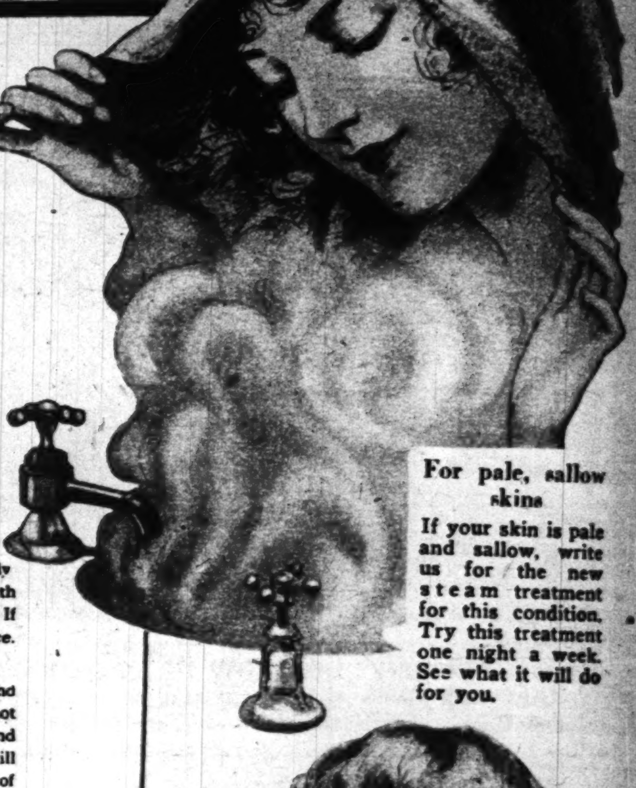
Blackheads

If your skin is marred by blackheads, try the famous treatment given on this page—see how successfully you can get rid of this embarrassing trouble.



For pale, sallow skins

If your skin is pale and sallow, write us for the new steam treatment for this condition. Try this treatment one night a week. See what it will do for you.

What causes skin blemishes

Every girl ought to have a clear, attractive skin . . . The way to remove blemishes and to remove their cause

EVERYONE is immediately attracted by a clear skin—soft, free from blemishes and unsightly spots. Every girl longs for it.

If your skin is not as clear and colorful as you would love to have it—if it is disfigured by blackheads, or by conspicuous pores on nose and chin—find out just what it is that keeps you from having this charm which everyone feels the moment they see a clear, lovely skin.

Then start at once to remove not only the blemishes, but their cause.

Take your hand-mirror to the clear daylight and examine your skin closely. Decide just what is the matter with it, then begin at once to see what the right method of cleansing will do for it, and the proper treatment with a soap specially prepared to meet the needs of the skin.

If you find that blackheads are your chief difficulty, don't be discouraged. You can rid your skin of this disfiguring condition.

Try this famous treatment for blackheads

Blackheads are a confession that you are using the wrong method of cleansing for the type of skin that is subject to this trouble. Start tonight to see how much this treatment will do for you.

Apply hot cloths to the face until the skin is reddened. Then with a rough washcloth work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap and rub it into the pores thoroughly always with an upward and outward motion. Rinse with clear hot water, then with cold—the colder the better. If possible, rub your face for thirty seconds with a piece of ice. Dry the skin carefully.

This treatment will cleanse your skin thoroughly and keep it free from blackheads. Use it persistently. Do not expect to get the desired results by using it for a time and then neglecting it. But make it a daily habit and it will give you the clear, attractive skin that the steady use of Woodbury's always brings.

To remove blackheads already formed, substitute a flesh brush for the wash-cloth in the treatment above. Then protect the fingers with a handkerchief and press out the blackheads. Thereafter use Woodbury's Facial Soap in your daily toilet.

How to get the other treatments

If your particular trouble is some other one—conspicuous nose pores, oily skin, or tender skin—see the booklet wrapped around every cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap. In it you will find the famous treatments for all the common troubles of the skin.

Get your cake of Woodbury's today and begin tonight the treatment your skin needs. A 25c cake is sufficient for a month or six weeks of any Woodbury Facial treatment and for general cleansing use for that time. Woodbury's is on sale at drug stores and toilet goods counters throughout the United States and Canada.

For oily skin and shiny nose

A special treatment for an oily skin and shiny nose is among the famous treatments given in the Woodbury booklet you get with the soap. Secure a cake today and the booklet that goes with it.

Send for sample cake of soap with booklet of famous treatments and sample of Woodbury's Facial Powder.

Send 6c for a trial size cake (enough for a week or ten days of any Woodbury Facial Treatment) together with the booklet of treatments, "A Skin You Love to Touch." Or for 12c we will send you the treatment booklet and samples of Woodbury's Facial Soap and Facial Powder. Address The Andrew Jergens Co., 26 Spring Grove Avenue, Cincinnati, Ohio.

If you live in Canada, address The Andrew Jergens Co., Limited, 26 Sherbrooke St., Perth, Ontario.

RUTH of the U.S.A.

SYNOPSIS.

Ruth Alden, a stenographer, wants to go to France to work, but her mother and younger sisters are dependent on her, so she cannot. She is much interested in the arrival in Chicago of Gerry Hull, a famous young aviator, and happens to see him one afternoon as his motor is halted in the crowd. She asks him what she ought to do, and he tells her she may be trusted to find that out. Later she buys a box of pencils from a beggar, and on opening it, finds money and a passport. She decides to take advantage of the opportunity and go to France.

To be, one day, a stenographer leading a more or less humdrum life, and, on the next, to be precipitated as an important cog into one of the most amazing spy plots ever hatched by German scheming—that is the situation in which Ruth Alden finds herself at the outset of "RUTH OF THE U. S. A.," the gripping new war novel which begins in this section today. Combining high adventure with romance and realism, it is distinctly the war novel of the year, and was written by Edwin Balmer. He is the author of "1917," "A Wild Geese Chase," and "The Indian Drum,," with William B. MacHarg as co-author. Acknowledged the master of the romantic adventure story, Edwin Balmer has done his best work in "RUTH OF THE U. S. A." Ruth is a real girl and what she goes through to help her country will thrill and hold you to the end. Don't miss this gripping ultra war novel

SECOND INSTALLMENT.

A BOLD BEGINNING.

WHEN the cab stopped and the hotel doorman came out she gave him money to pay the driver and she went at once into the hotel, passing many people who were sitting about or standing.

The room clerk at the desk looked up at her, as a room clerk gazes at a good looking and well dressed girl who is a guest.

"Key, please," she said quietly. She had to risk her voice without knowing how Cynthia Gail had spoken. That was one thing which the Germans had forgotten to ascertain—or had been unable to discover—for her. But the clerk noticed nothing strange.

"Yes, Miss Gail," he recognized her, and he turned to take the key out of box 347. "Mail, too, Miss Gail?"

"Please."

He handed Ruth three letters, two postmarked Decatur and one Rockford, and also the yellow envelope of a telegram. He turned back to the box and fumbled for a card.

"There was a gentleman here for you 'bout half an hour ago, Miss Gail," the clerk recollected. "He waited a while, but I guess now he's gone. He left this card for you."

Ruth was holding the letters and also the telegram unopened; she had not dared to inquire into their contents when in view of others. It was far safer to wait until she could be alone before investigating matters which might further confuse her. So she was very glad that the man who had been "here for her" was not present at that instant; certainly she required all the advantage of delay and of the further information which the mail and whatever might be in Cynthia Gail's room could give her before meeting any one.

She had thought, of course, of the possibility of some one awaiting her, and she had recognized three contingencies in that case. A man who called for her might be a friend or a relative of Cynthia Gail; this, though difficult enough, would be easiest and least dangerous of all. The man might be a United States agent aware that Cynthia Gail was dead, that her passport has fallen into hostile hands; he therefore would have come to take her as an enemy spy with a stolen passport. The man might be a German agent sent there to aid her or give her further orders or information, if the Germans still were satisfied that they had put the passport into proper hands; if they were not--that is, if they had learned that the beggar had made a mistake—then the man might be a German who had come to lure her away to recover the passport and punish her.

The man's card, with his name—Mr. Hubert Lennon, engraved in the middle—told absolutely nothing more about him.

"I will be in my room," Ruth said to the clerk, when she glanced up from the card. "If Mr. Lennon returns or any one else calls, telephone me."

She moved toward the elevator as quickly as possible, but the room clerk's eyes already were attracted toward a number of men coming in together from the street.

"He's not gone, Miss Gail! Here he is now!" the clerk called.

Ruth pretended not to hear, but no elevator happened to be waiting into which she could escape.

"Here's the gentleman for you!" a bellboy announced to Ruth, so that she had to turn and face then and there the gentleman who had been waiting for her.

The man who advanced from the group which had just entered the hotel appeared to be about 30 years old; he was tall and sparely built and stooped very slightly, as though in youth he had outgrown his strength and had never quite caught up. He had a prominent nose and a chin which, at first glance, seemed forceful; but that impression altered at once to a feeling that here was a man of whom something might have been made but had not. He was not at all dissolute or unpleasant looking; his mouth was sensitive, almost shy, with only lines of amiability about it; his eyes, which looked smaller than they really were because of the thick lenses of his glasses, were gray and good natured and observant. His hair was black and turning gray—prematurely beyond doubt. It was chiefly the grayness of his hair, indeed, which made Ruth suppose him as old as 30. He wore a dark overcoat and gray suit—good clothes, so good that one noticed them last—the kind of clothes which Sam Hilton always thought he was buying and never procured. He pulled off a heavy glove to offer a big, boyish hand.

"How do you do, Ci—Miss Gail?" he greeted her. He was quite sure of her, but doubtful as to use of her given name.

"Hubert Lennon!" Ruth exclaimed, giving her hand to his grasp—a nice, pleased friendly grasp. She had ventured that, whoever he was, he had known Cynthia Gail long ago, but had not seen her recently; not for several years, perhaps, when she was so young a girl that every one called her Cynthia. Her venture went well.

She was able to learn from him, without his suspecting that she had not known, that she had an engagement with him for the afternoon; they were to go somewhere—she could not well inquire where—for some event of distinct importance for which she was supposed to be "ready."

"I'm not ready, I'm sorry to say," Ruth seized swiftly the chance for fleeing to refuge in "her" room. "I've just come in, you know. But I'll dress as quickly as I can."

"I'll be right here," he agreed.

She stepped into a waiting elevator and drew back into the corner; two men, who talked together, followed her in and the car started upwards. If the Germans had sent some one to the hotel to observe her when she appeared to take the place of Cynthia Gail, that person pretty clearly was not Hubert Lennon, Ruth thought; but she could not be sure of these two men. They were usual looking, middle aged men of the successful type, who gazed at her more than casually; neither of them called a floor until after Ruth asked for the third; then the other said "fourth" sharply, while the man who remained silent left the elevator after Ruth. She was conscious that he came behind her while she followed the room numbers along the hallway until she found the door of 347; he passed her while she was opening it. She entered, and, putting the key on the inside, she locked herself in, pressing close to the panel to hear whether the man returned now. But she only heard a rapping at a door further on; the man's voice saying, "I, Adele"; then a woman's and a child's voices.

"Nerves!" Ruth reproached herself. "You have to begin better than this."

She was in a large and well furnished bedroom; the bed and bureau and dressing table were set in a sort of alcove, half partitioned off from the end of the room, where was a lounge with a lamp and a writing desk. These were hotel furniture, of course; the other articles—the pretty, dainty toilet things upon the dressing table, the dresses and the suit upon the hangers in the closet, the night dress and kimono upon the hooks, the boots on the rack, the waists, stockings, undergarments, and all the other girl's things laid in the drawers—were now, of necessity, Ruth's. There was a new steamer trunk upon a low stand beyond the bed; the trunk had been closed after being unpacked and the key left in it. A small, brown traveling bag—also new—stood on the floor beside it. Upon the table, beside a couple of books and magazines, was a pile of department store packages—evidently Cynthia Gail's purchases which she had listed in her letter to her mother. The articles, having been bought on Saturday, had been delivered on Monday, and, therefore, had merely been placed in the room.

Ruth could give these no concern now; she could waste no time upon examination of the clothes in the closet or in the drawers. She bent at once before the mirror of the dressing table where Cynthia Gail had stuck in two kodak pictures and two cards at the edge of the glass. The pictures were both of the same young man—a tall, straight, and strongly built boy in officer's uniform; probably Lieut. Byrne, Ruth thought; at least he was not Hubert Lennon; and the cards in the glass betrayed nothing about him, either; both, plainly, were "reminder" cards, one having "Sunday; 4:30!" written triumphantly across it; the other, "Mrs. Malcolm Corliss, Superior 9979."

Ruth knew—who in Chicago did not know?—of Mrs. Malcolm Corliss, particularly since America entered the war. Ruth knew that the Superior number was a telephone probably in Mrs. Corliss' big home on the Lake Shore drive. Ruth picked up the leather photograph portfolio lying upon the dressing table; opening it, she faced four portrait photographs, an alert, able, but kind looking man of about 50; a woman a few years younger, not very unlike Ruth's own mother, and with similarly sweet eyes and a similar abundance of beautiful hair. These photographs had been but recently taken. The third was several years old and was of a handsome, vigorous, defiant looking boy of 21 or 22; the fourth was of a cunning, bold little boy of 12 in boy scout uniform. Ruth had no doubt that these were Cynthia Gail's family; she was very glad to have that sight of them; yet they told her nothing of use in the immediate emergency. Her hand fell to the drawer of the dresser where, a moment ago, Ruth had seen a pile of letters; she recognized quite thoroughly that she must go through things like these; and, when one must, it is better to proceed at once without thinking. Yet it was easier for her to open first the letters which had never become quite Cynthia Gail's—the three letters and the dispatch which the clerk had given Ruth.

She opened the telegram first and found it was from her father. She was thinking of herself, you see, not as Ruth Alden, but as actually being Cynthia Gail now. That was a great advantage of being able to fancy and to dream; she was Cynthia Gail; she must be Cynthia now and henceforth, or she could not go on with what she was doing, even here alone by herself; and surely she could not keep on before others unless, in every relation, she thought of herself as that other girl.

"Letter received; it's like you, but by all means go ahead; I'll back you. Love, Father."

That told nothing except that she had, in some recent letter, suggested an evidently adventurous deviation from her first intention.

The first letter from Decatur which Cynthia Gail now opened was from her mother—a regular sweet, concerned, motherly letter of the sort which that girl, who had been Ruth Alden, well knew and which made her cry a little. It told absolutely nothing about any one whom Cynthia might meet in Chicago except the one line, "I'm very glad that Mrs. Malcolm Corliss has telephoned to you." The second letter from Decatur, written a day earlier than the other, was from her father; from this Cynthia gained chiefly the information—which the Germans had not supplied her—that her father had accompanied her to Chicago, established her at the hotel, and then been called back home by business. He had been "sorry to have to leave her alone," but, of course, that was a small risk compared to what she was to run. The letter from Rockford, which had arrived only that morning, was from George—that meant, of course, George Byrne. She had been engaged to him, it appeared; but they had quarreled on Sunday; he felt wholly to blame for it now; he was very, very sorry; he loved her and could not give her up. Would she not write him, please, as soon as she could bring herself to?

The letter was all about themselves—just of her and him. No one else at all was mentioned. The letters in the drawer—eight in number—were all from him; they mentioned, incidentally, many people, but all apparently of Decatur; there was no reference of any sort to any one named Hubert or Lennon. It was easiest when first reading through letters of such sort, to be able to concentrate intentness upon one purpose.

She returned the letters to their place in the drawer and laid with them those newly received. The mail, if it gave her small help, at least had failed to present any immediately difficult problem of its own. There was apparently no anxiety at home about her; she safely could delay responding until later in the afternoon; but she could not much longer delay rejoining Hubert Lennon or sending him some excuse; and offering excuse, when knowing nothing about the engagement to which she was committed, was perhaps more dangerous than boldly appearing where she was expected. The Germans had told her that they believed she had no close friends in Chicago; and, so far as she had added to that original information, it seemed confirmed.

The telephone bell rang and gave her a jump; it was not the suddenness of the sound, of course, but the sign that even there, when she was alone, a call might come at any instant which might make demand upon her which must betray her. She calmed herself with an effort before lifting the receiver and replying.

"Cynthia?" a woman's voice asked.

"Yes," she said.

"It's a large afternoon affair, dear," the voice said easily. "But quite wartime., I'd wear the yellow dress."

"Thank you, I will," Cynthia said, and the woman hung up.

That rather shocked Cynthia back to Ruth again; she stood in the center of the room, turning about slowly and with muscles pulling with queer, jerky little tugs and then relaxing. The message had appeared to be a friendly telephone call from some woman who knew her intimately and also all details of her wardrobe; but Ruth quickly estimated that that was merely what the message was meant to appear. For if the woman really were so intimate a friend of Cynthia Gail, she would not have made so short and casual a conversation with a girl whom she could not have seen or communicated with since Sunday. No; it was plain that the Germans again were aiding her; plain that they had learned—perhaps from Hubert Lennon waiting for her in the hotel lobby—about her afternoon engagement; plain, too, that they were ordering her to go.

A new and beautiful yellow dress, suitable for wear at an afternoon function, was among the garments in the closet; there was an underskirt and stockings and everything else. Ruth was Cynthia again as she slipped quickly out of her street dress, took off shoes and stockings, and redressed completely. She found a hat which evidently was to be worn with the yellow dress. So completely was she Cynthia now, as she bent for a final look in the glass, that she did not think that she looked better than Ruth Alden ever had; she wondered, instead, whether she looked as well as she should. She found no coat which seemed distinctively for the afternoon; so she put on the coat which she had bought. She carried her knitting bag with her as before—it was quite an advantage to have a receptacle as capacious as a knitting bag, which she could keep with her no matter where she went. Descending to the ground floor, she found about the same number and about the same sort of people passing back and forth or lounging in the lobby. Hubert Lennon was there, and he placed himself beside her as she surrendered her room key.

"All ready now, Hubert," she said; her use of his name greatly pleased him and he grasped her arm, unnecessarily, to guide her out.

"Just a minute," she hesitated as she approached the telegraph desk. "I've a wire to send to father."

The plan had popped out with the impulse which had formed it; she had had no idea the moment before of telegraphing then to Charles Gail. But now the ecstasy of the daring game—the game beginning here in small perils, perhaps, but also perhaps in great; the game which was swiftly to lead, if she could make it lead, across the sea and through France into Switzerland and then into the land of the enemy upon the

by Edwin Balmer

Rhine—had caught her; and she knew instinctively how to reply to that as yet uncomprehended telegram from her father.

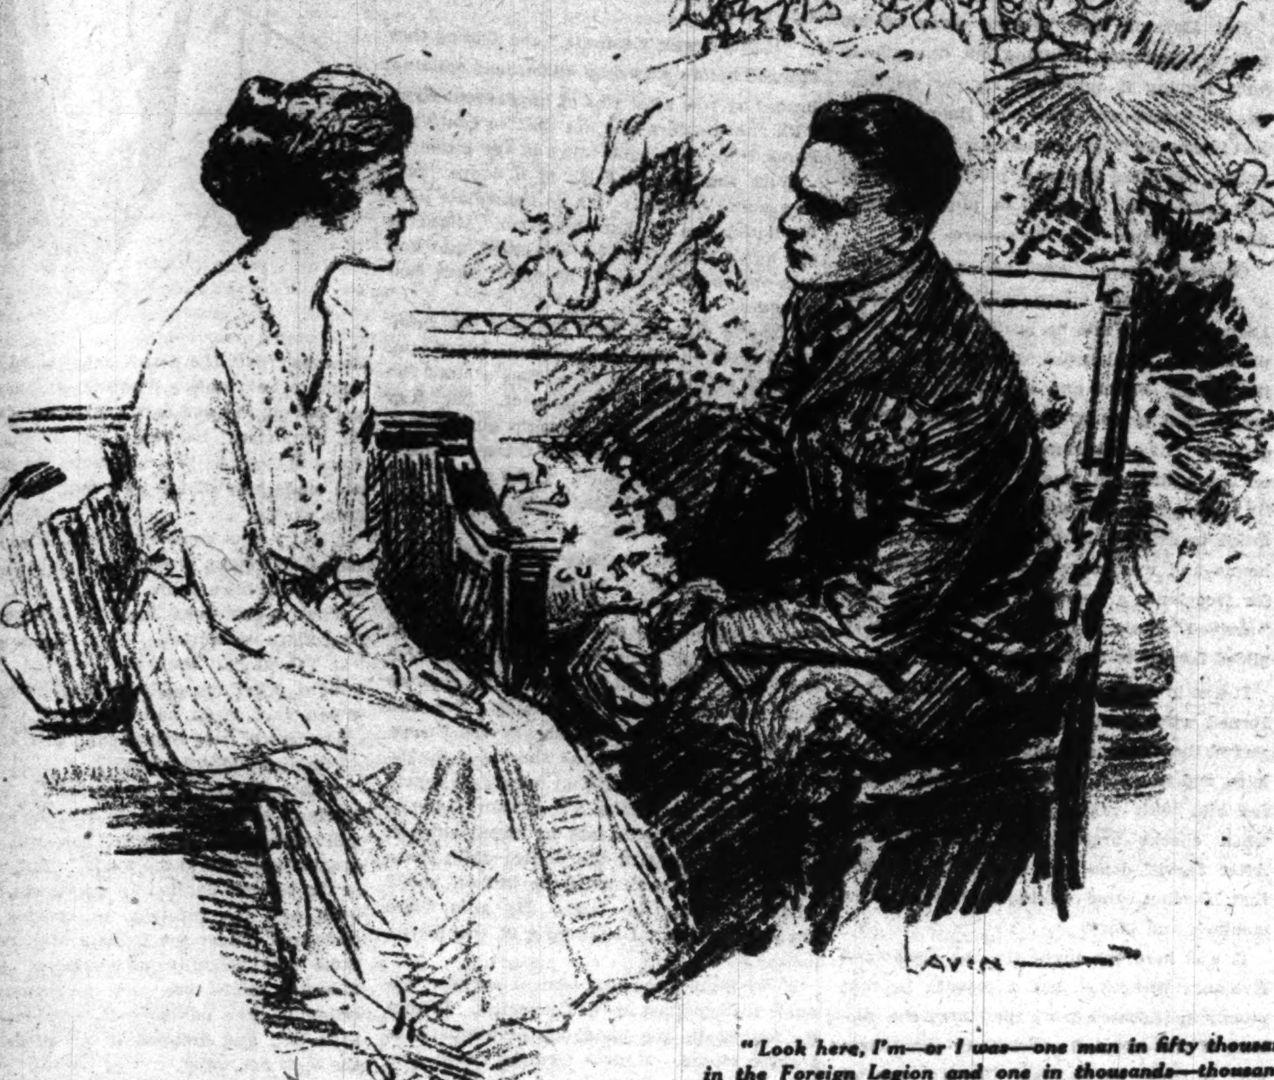
She reached for the dispatch blanks before she remembered that, though her handwriting would not be delivered in Decatur, still here she would be leaving a record in writing which was not like Cynthia Gail's. So she merely took up the pen in her gloved fingers and gave it to Hubert Lennon, who had not yet put his gloves on.

"You write for me, please," she requested. "Mr. Charles F. Gail," she directed, and gave the home street number in Decatur. "Thanks for your wire telling me to go ahead. I knew you'd back me. Love. Thia."

"What?" Lennon said at the last word.

"Just sign it 'Thia.'"

He did so; she charged the dispatch to her room and they went out. The color was still warm in her face. If one of the men in the lobby who had been gazing at her was a German there to observe how she did and if he had seen her start the mistake of writing the telegram he had seen also an instant recovery, she thought.



"Look here, I'm—or I was—one man in fifty thousand in the Foreign Legion and one in thousands—thousands more who've been in the air a bit."

A large, luxurious limousine, driven by a chauffeur in private livery, moved up as they came to the curb. When they settled side by side on the soft cushions the driver started away to the north without requiring instructions.

"You were 15 years old when I last had a ride with you," Hubert obligingly informed her.

That was nine years ago, in 1909, Cynthia made the mental note; she had become 24 years old instead of 22 since the morning.

"But I knew you right away," he went on. "Aunt Emilie would have come for you but you see when she telephoned and found you weren't in at half past 1 she knew she couldn't call for you and get to Mrs. Corliss' on time. And she's a sticker for being on time."

So it was to Mrs. Corliss' they were going—to her great home on the drive. The car was keeping on northward along the snow banked boulevard with the white and arctic lake away to the right and, on the left, the great grounds of Mrs. Potter Palmer's home.

"She'd have sent a maid for you," Hubert explained, "but I said it was stupid silly to send a maid after a girl who's going into the war zone."

"I'm glad you came instead for another ride with me," Cynthia said.

He reddened confusedly with pleasure. In whatever circles he moved it was plain he received no great attention from girls.

"I tried to get into army and navy both, Cynthia," he blurted, apropos of nothing except that he seemed to feel that he owed explanation to her now as to why he was not in uniform. "But they turned me down—eyes. Even the Canadians turned me down. But Aunt Emilie's giving an ambulance, and they're going to let me drive it. They get under fire sometimes, I hear. On the French front."

"They're often under fire," Cynthia assured. "A lot of ambulance men have been killed and wounded; so that's no slacker service."

"Not if you can't get in anything better," he said, "but mighty little beside what Gerry Hull's been doing."

She startled a little. He had spoken Gerry Hull's name with far less familiarity than Sam Hilton had uttered it that morning, but Hubert Lennon's was with the familiarity of one who knows another personally.

"You've seen him since he's back?" Cynthia asked. It came to her suddenly that they—he and she—were arriving at Mrs. Corliss' to meet Gerry Hull! The car was slowing before the turn in the driveway for Mrs. Corliss' city home; a number of cars were ahead and others took line behind for the porte cochere where guests were entering the house.

"Yes; I know him pretty well," Hubert said with a sort of pitiful pride. He was sensitive to the fact that, when he had spoken of Hull, her interest in him had so quickened, but he was quite unresentful of it. "I'll see that he knows you, Cynthia," he promised.

She sat quiet trying to think what to say to Hubert Lennon after this, but he did not want the talk brought back to himself. He spoke only of his friend until the man opened the door of the car; the house door was open at the same moment; and Cynthia, gathering her coat about her and clutching close to her knitting bag, stepped out of the car and into the hall, warm and scented with hot house flowers, murmurous with the voices and movement of many people in the big rooms beyond. A man servant directed her to a room where maids were in attendance and where she laid off her coat. She had never in her life before been at any affair larger than a wedding or a reception to a congressman at Onarga; so it was a good deal all at once to find one's self a guest of Mrs. Corliss, for it was plain that this reception was by no means a public affair, but that the guests all had been carefully selected; it was more to be present carrying a knitting bag (fortunately many others brought knitting bags) in which was $2,300 and a passport to France, and something more yet to meet Gerry Hull—or rather, have him meet you. For when she came out to the hall again Hubert was waiting for her.

"I can't find aunt Emelie just now, Cynthia," he said. "But I've got Gerry. There's no sense in getting into that jam in there. Gerry's going to get out. We'll go to the conservatory; and he'll come out there. This way, Cynthia. Quick!"

She followed him about the fringes of the groups pressing into the great front rooms where music was playing now; a stringed orchestra was starting the first, glorious notes of the Marseillaise, and suddenly a man's voice, in all the power and beauty of the opera singer, and with the passion of a Frenchman singing for his people, burst out with the battle song:

> "Allons enfants de la patrie,
> Le jour de glorie est arrivé,
> Contre nous de la tyrannie
> L'etandard sanglant est lèvé . . ."

It lifted her as nothing had ever before. "Go, children of your country; the day of glory is here! Against us the bloody standard of tyranny is raised . . ."

She had sung that marvelous hymn of the French since she was a child; before she had understood it at all, the leap and lilt of the verse always had thrilled her through. It had become to her next an historical song of freedom; when the war started—and America was not in—it had ceased to be simply of the past; the victory of the French upon the Marne, the pursuit to the Aisne, then the stand at Verdun had made it to her a living, vibrant voice; but still it had been a voice calling to others, which she might hear—a voice which she, with her weak cry, might even swell—but to which she might not reply. But now it was calling even to her: "Aux armes! . . . Marchons! Marchons! . . ." and she was to march with it!

The wonder of that made her a little dizzy as her pulses beat and beat in her throat; the song was over and she was amid the long fronds of palms, the hanging vines and the red of winter roses in the conservatory and Gerry Hull was before her. Hubert Lennon was saying her name and his:

He was in his uniform which he had worn in the French escadrille with which he had flown; he had applied to be transferred to the American service, she knew; but the transfer had not yet been effected. The ribbons of his decorations—the Croix de Guerre, the Medaille Militaire, the Cross of the Legion of Honor—ran in a little brilliant row across the left breast of his jacket. It bothered him as her eyes went to them, and she got the understanding that he regretted the display which wearing them here at home involved. But since he was appearing at a formal—almost an official function—he had no choice about wearing them. She understood instantly also that this boy—for now she found him quite as young and unassuming a boy as that morning she had believed him to be—had not followed his friend out of the "jam" of the other rooms to meet her in order to hear more praise of himself.

"I've seen you before today, Miss Gail," he said.

She went warm with pleasure. "I spoke to you on the street—when your car stopped on Michigan avenue this morning," she confessed. She had not been Cynthia Gail, then; but he could not know that. He was trying to remember her; so it was better for her to admit the greeting.

"And I said some stuffy sort of thing to you," he recollected. "I didn't mean to talk that way at all."

"I didn't think it was—stuffy," Cynthia denied, utilizing his word. There were seats where they were and suddenly it occurred to her, when Gerry Hull glanced at them, that he was remaining standing because she was, and that he would like to sit down and delay there with her. So she seated herself upon a gayly painted bench; he looked about before he sat down.

"Hello, where's Hub?"

Lennon had disappeared. Cynthia knew why, very well; and it troubled her. She had forgotten him for the moment in the excitement of meeting his friend; so he had felt in the way and had effaced himself quietly. But there was nothing to be done about that now.

"I've been saying all sorts of stuffy things since I've been back, Miss Gail—nothing but stuffy things, in fact. But I warn every one I'm about at the end of the rope. They're going to make me say something here this afternoon, and this time I'm going to say exactly what I think. Wouldn't you?"

"Of course, I would," Cynthia said.

"Then you forgive me."

"Forgive you what?"

"Posing like such a self-righteous chump that you felt you ought to ask me what you should do!"

"You haven't been posing." Cynthia denied for him again. "Why, when I saw you, the thing that amazed me was—" She stopped suddenly as she saw color come to his face.

"That I wasn't striking an attitude? Look here. I'm—or I was—one man in fifty thousand in the Foreign Legion, and one in thousands—thousands more—who've been in the air a bit. You're going to France, Hub tells me," he shifted the subject from himself to her with abrupt, boyish finality. "You've been there in peace time, of course—Paris surely."

She nodded; she had not thought that, as Cynthia, she had been abroad till he was so certain of it.

WHO TRAVELS ALONE by OWEN B. WINTERS

Two Pals Pursue Two Ways They Hoped Would Lead to Fame.

FAME is elusive, unsatisfying. Deluded humans who eagerly barter youth just to touch the hem of her mantle awake on the portly side of 40 to the realization that they have been duped by a toothless crone, and that romance has been left far behind in the swirling dust of the past.

Tom Jarvis and Pelham Marston were roommates, the Damon and Pythias of their class. Strangely coincident, their ambitions ran in parallel grooves. So with eyes turned on Parnassus they left the commencement rostrum for New York and the Halls of Fame.

Jarvis found a short cut. His ascent was contrary to precedent. He wrote a play, which of itself was nothing revolutionary for New York. But, mirabile dictu, he sold it! The show ran four months on Broadway and Jarvis paid the room rent while Marston vainly stalked adamant editors with offerings of light verse and lighter fiction.

Before the year was ended the mushroom playwright had pocketed five thousand dollars in royalties and married the leading lady. After the honeymoon he hammered out a three act thriller, accepted the apologetic negations of the first producer who read it and retreated westward with his bride to take his place in the cashier's cage of his father's bank. In vain was Marston's harangue. Jarvis had decided.

"I wouldn't take a lot for that little flyer among the red ink drinkers," he said. "That sort of thing was all right while I was doing a monologue. But Renée carries the bankbook now. She prefers to have the money rolling in with some semblance of regularity. Me for the rôle of pompous banker in a one horse town where I can drive my own roadster and raise radishes and sunflowers in the back yard. Better try it, Pel."

"Not for mine," said Marston. One R. Kipling expressed my views on the subject when he said, 'He travels farthest who travels alone.' As for you, Jarve, you're just putting skids under your own career. In another year they'd be bidding for the foreign rights on your shows before you wrote 'em. But just because one lone producer shied at your second brain child, written with one arm glued to Renée's waist, you've quit cold."

"Sorry old man, but it's no use," smiled Jarvis as he shook hands from the observation platform. "Maybe there is a yellow streak down my back, but somehow the tile roofed bungalow sounds better than the hall bedroom setting. If you're bound to stick, good luck. After you sell your first big one run down to our town and look us over. We're going to join the country club and mother said she'd teach Renée to make sour milk biscuits."

Marston groaned for thwarted letters, kissed the bride, wrung Jarvis' hand, and backed away as the train jerked out of the terminal. Then he returned to his third floor back and started chapter thirteen of the novelette.

With Jarvis gone, life became a thorny path littered with rejection slips and crowded with clamoring creditors. Mrs. O'Reilly, the austere ogress of the rooming house, now turned the eye of chill disfavor upon Marston. She recalled cannily that the slender gentleman with the tortoise shelled glasses had been the treasurer of the combination. Now that he was departed trunk and shoe trees, she was prompt to collect her weekly tithe well in advance and was less solicitous as to the freshness of the towel supply.

But Marston kept pecking away at his rented typewriter, grinding out unavailable copy, leaving it only for irregular pilgrimages to Giacomo's, where over the pine table just inside the door he drank his black coffee, puffed countless cigarets, plotted, scribbled and erased, and dreamed of pink vouchers and an apartment on the square.

Giacomo was a rotund restaurateur with a fiercely waxed moustache and a kindly Latin heart. While he hurled crackling expletives at recalcitrant debtors who broke his crusty bread and asked for extended credit, that same credit was always forthcoming. His establishment, a basement room on Eleventh street, was so unobtrusive with its plain pine tables and plainer fare that it failed to attract the blatant seekers of Bohemia and was content to remain a haven for free-lance artists and writers who once "arrived" promptly forsook it for more gilded flesh pots farther uptown.

It was to Giacomo that Jarvis and Marston turned when legal tender was scarce. He served them coiling spaghetti, steaming omelette, and fragrant coffee, grumbling as they fed him with vague promises of payment when checks arrived now long overdue. After Jarvis' departure it was to Giacomo that Marston came seeking nightly grist for stomach and story.

It was here one night that he discovered Evelyn. She was just a private in that plucky, petticoated army that faces the phalanx of the city and survives or goes down with a smile on its lips. Evelyn was an orphan with a soprano voice, primroses for hair, and sapphires for eyes. She aspired higher, but for the time being accepted twelve a week from the black moustached Greek who ran a nickelodeon on Sixth avenue.

The last reel flickered to a final close-up every night at 11. Whereupon she gathered her skirts about her, and disdainfully refusing the piano player's nightly invitation, "Can't I see yuh home tonight, dearie," swept up the aisle and out into the night in solitary quest of black coffee and toasted rolls.

Her habits were peripatetic. She knew the chicory of the lunch counter and the language of the serve-self. She was a connoisseur of yet-ca-mein and eggs-foy-yong. Now and then she dropped into Giacomo's basement. It was here one night that, guiltless of guile, she ate chocolate soufflé and drank two cups of café au lait and fumbled in vain for her purse. Then with sinking heart she remembered that it reposed at that minute under the matting by the right front leg of her bed, where she had left it in her mad rush to be on time for the illustrated song.

Finally in despair under the ratlike eyes of a hovering waiter she appealed to Giacomo. Whereupon that worthy dropped his paper conned nightly in his corner by the cash drawer and launched forth in his wonted tirade, well calculated to strike distress into the heart of bankrupt beauty.

Marston, who was scribbling away at his table, overheard the attack and rushed to the aid of outraged womanhood. From the depths of his trouser pocket he drew forth a crumpled bill, the last of a remittance from Jarvis. He folded it impressively about the check and demanded his rebate.

Evelyn thanked him prettily, thrust out her tongue at baffled Italy, and agreed that Marston might see her home.

"I'll have to add a nickel to that loan for subway fare," she said. "I'm a regular customer, but the ticket chopper won't let me open a charge account."

They descended into the kiosk and caught a north bound local. At Columbus circle they left the train, clambered once more to the surface, cut across Broadway, and at the girl's direction explored the reaches of a dark side street.

"If you'll wait a minute," she said as they stopped before a gloomy apartment building, braced by row after row of impersonal steps, "I'll run upstairs and get that 40 cents you handed the dago back there in the cellar."

With the magnanimity of a copper king he assured her there was no immediate need for liquidation of that obligation. Might he call again some time, he wondered, and how was one to locate her if he might have that pleasure?

"You're different from most of the Johnnies I meet on this beat," she appraised him. "I sing at the nickel show just around the corner from 'Jocko's' basement. The hero gets both arms around the right girl prompt at 11 every night. After that there's nothing on till 3 in the afternoon. Good night," she called, and was swallowed up in the yawning blackness of a hallway.

Spring was in the air. The atmosphere had even penetrated Giacomo's. Marston and Evelyn lingered over their coffee and ravioli. Quite by accident their hands slipped under the table. The talk drifted from three room flats and winter gardens to soulless landlords and the price of eggs. Pro and con they discussed Flatbush and the Bronx. They chatted of gold band rings and magistrates. Suddenly Evelyn's roving eyes espied celebrity within their midst, a fellow artist.

"Over there," she said in awed whisper, "see that wop with the double chin, there under the hat rack with the broken hook? That's Pulazzi, the tenor. He gets three thousand a night for singing at the Metropolitan."

Now, there has ever been a certain debonair fraternalism about Giacomo's. Within its four walls the handbook of etiquette is forever closed. Madam Grundy never gets below Twenty-second street. Tradition has had it that at Giacomo's deck hand may hobnob with plutocrat, hack artist bandy words with genius. The preservation of this right was a sense of duty with Marston. He arose from his chair and threaded his way to the seat of the mighty. Turning, he faced the center of the room.

"Friends," he announced, fortune smiles upon us tonight. We have genius with us. Behold, I introduce Pulazzi, the magnificent, Pulazzi of the silver throat. He will sing for you," and bowing low to the singer, he waved his hand toward the battered piano which stood in the corner ready to serve in such emergency.

But Pulazzi did not unbend to the democracy of Giacomo's basement. His fat cheeks flamed. He choked over his spaghetti. He froze his discoverer with an icy stare.

Marston returned to his own table. He was undaunted. He had promised entertainment and entertainment he would have. Leaning over, he whispered in Evelyn's pink ear. She shook her head. He insisted. And finally she left her table and took the piano stool. She ran her fingers over the keys and plunged into the ragtime furore of the day. Came a burst of applause. At Marston's nod she sang again. This time it was the flower song from Carmen. Perhaps it was the presence of genius, perhaps it was the red Chianti that Giacomo served, perhaps it was just the warmth of an awakened love. But tonight her voice was clear as a bell. It filled the smoky little basement room with its resonance. It electrified the audience. When she had finished, there was not a sound to be heard. Then Pulazzi himself rose to his feet.

"Brava, brava!" he cried. "It was wonderful! The signorina must seeng again." His words were drowned in a storm of applause.

"The girl's glance met Marston's. He shook his head. Evelyn dropped her eyes demurely, left the piano, and walked swiftly back to her table. Whereupon Pulazzi forgot his dignity and came waddling after her. "I apologize," he said. "I an' my artist frens apologize. We will seeng for you, and zee leetle lady of zee pure soprano, she will sing wiz us."

Victory was complete. Genius had capitulated. Marston was not one to bear malice. He nodded his assent.

That night went down in the annals of Giacomo's restaurant. First they sang from "Il Trovatore," then the Sextette. Pulazzi bought wine for all and they sang again. When the party had dispersed, Giacomo's cash drawer was overflowing and his stock of Chianti sadly depleted.

Before Pulazzi left he pressed a card into Evelyn's hand. "Come to me," he said. "I will make you famous. You will be ze greates' soprano in the world." But, weighed in the balance against an apartment in Flatbush and the privilege of cooking breakfasts and dinner for Pelham Marston, mere fame was woefully underweight. So, lest Marston might see and not approve, she crumpled her passport to a career into a little ball and dropped it out of sight into the V of her waist.

The next day the check came. The novelette, after a travel worn round of unappreciation, had at last found tangible approval in the shape of crinkling parchment which guaranteed to Pelham Marston on demand the payment of the impressive sum of $150. Fame, who had been loitering just around the corner with a laurel wreath, sighed and returned home for a size seven instead of a six and three-eighths.

When Pelham met Evelyn that night he was flushed with conquest. He prated glibly of careers and the authors' ball. He spoke in familiar terms of the benevolence of editors.

"I was walking down Sixth avenue this morning," interrupted Evelyn. "I see that Eckstein's will furnish four rooms complete from umbrella rack to kitchen table for twenty down and ten a month."

"Marriage, my dear Evelyn," opined the author, "is a millstone around the neck of genius. It has started many a landslide on Parnassus."

"I've got a married friend in Jersey," continued Evelyn, "who got three rooms, heated, for twenty-three fifty and the first month free."

"Now, there was Jarvis," said Marston. "He was going good. Put over his first play. Along comes Dan Cupid and matches him with his leading lady, spoiling her career as well as Jarve's."

"The coffee's bitter tonight," answered the girl, spilling the lump sugar in her lap.

"Now the most exciting thing he does," continued Marston, "is play Kelley pool at the Elk's club and figure interest on five hundred dollars for six months at five and a half per cent. He plays croquet in the back yard Sundays, and writes the local talent theatricals for the town players, and stages the church cantatas. There won't be any wedding bells in my story. I'll keep sending my own laundry and stay out till 12 often as I like."

Evelyn gulped down her coffee and searched through her purse under cover of the table. She threw away a liner ad clipped from the Brooklyn "to rent" column and smoothed out a crumpled bit of cardboard.

They walked down to the subway kiosk and waited for a local. An uptown express came thundering to a stop on the opposite side of the platform. A few passengers stepped out and just as the guard was slamming the door Evelyn slipped in. The bell clanged and the train jerked out.

"Evelyn," called Marston, "where you going? That's the wrong tr——" But the rear lights of the vanishing car winked pinkly at him from the blackness of the tube and he went back to Mrs. O'Reilly's, his typewriter, and his career.

The next day he called at the theater to meet Evelyn after the afternoon show. "She ain't showed today," announced the piano player. "'S the first time she's been away since she come. Maybe she's sick."

Marston hurried via subway to the Circle. Sorting out her address from the monotony of steps, he thumped loudly on the door. A slattern in calico opened it part way and peered out at him.

"Miss Walters packed up an' left this mornin'," she shrilled. "She didn't leave no address. And her with the best room in the house with 50 cents a week off because she was ready pay."

Marston turned abruptly and the door closed.

For weeks he combed the city from the Battery to the Bronx. He visited movie show and cabaret. He searched serve-self and chop suey palace. He quizzed stoic policemen on their beats, beseeching them had they seen a golden haired soprano hurrying by with a steamer trunk and a straw suit case. But they could give him no information. The subway had whisked her out of his life as quickly as she had entered it.

For solace he turned to his typewriter with renewed fury. He wrung from its clattering keys reams of copy with steady insistence. Success waited at the corner no longer. She rang the bell and invited him to move into fresher quarters with bath on Washington square. She introduced him to head waiters, to dilletante and debutante.

Now the name Pelham Marston on the cover of a magazine was sufficient to boost the circulation a hundred thousand. Its owner no longer peddled manuscript from Park row to Columbia circle. Editors came to him armed with vouchers and begged him for copy. In his effort to keep abreast of the demand he resuscitated forgotten, dog-eared yarns from the bottom of old trunks, had them retyped, and sold them at best seller prices.

And yet Marston was not altogether happy. Something told him he had missed an important thing in life back in the old days of table d'hôte dinners and hall bedrooms.

Then Jarvis made his perennial visit to New York. Usually he came attended by Renée, Jimmie Jr., and a retinue of nurse maids. This time he was alone. When consulted on the subject of pre-prandial beverages he ordered buttermilk or French vichy and frowned his disapproval on Bronx and benedictine. In despair Marston sought for entertainment. They went to the theater and Jarvis snored disgracefully at the end of the second act. The next night Marston suggested dinner at the Ritz.

"None of the stiff shirt dinners for us tonight," objected Jarvis. "Let's grab a subway and tackle the fifty cent 'tabledo' down at Giacomo's. It's been a blue moon since I've wrassled with a yardstick of dago bread. I think I've forgotten the trick of eating spaghetti without cutting it with a knife."

"I'll call a cab," said Marston.

"Nor a taxi. Let's squirm into a southbound tube where we can rub shoulders with the true Gothamite and read the war news from the other fellow's paper."

They found Giacomo's with difficulty. It had been so long since Marston had frequented Eleventh street that he was shaky of his bearings. The walls were a shade smokier and there were new faces at the tables. Worst of all, a brazen faced cash register stood sentry over a glass cigar case where the money drawer had been before, and in Giacomo's chair sat a pudgy nondescript with watery eyes. Over in the corner where Marston had once held forth sat a serious faced chap scowling over a dog-eared note book. There was an aroma of garlic in the air and over a flickering gas jet hung a faded holly wreath like a halo of departed Christmas.

They tried an omelette, but it hinted darkly of cold storage corridors. The coffee was acrid. The Chianti wry as aloes.

"What you need," said Jarvis, as he reached for the salt, "is a big house in a small circuit town, a wife to plan your meals, and a youngster to punch gimlet holes in your derby. Now, down in Greenville——"

"Not for mine," objected Marston. "The domestic yoke has rested lightly enough on your shoulders, but give me old Rud's recipe. Throw away that Virginia long leaf and light a cigaret."

"I quit them with New York," refused Jarvis. "Renée doesn't like them. Did I ever show you the picture of our new Carnegie library?" reaching for his inside coat pocket.

"I've seen both the snapshot of the library and one of the Masonic temple," reassured Marston, "and you sent me a group picture of the Greenville Business Men's association just after you were elected treasurer. Alluring as the prospects are for life farther inland, I expect to stick near the waterfront. Matrimony never threatened me but once. That was just after you stepped aboard the Hymenal Limited. But one night she stepped into a fast subway, the guard slammed the door in my face, and Romance left me at Times square.

"By the way," said Jarvis, "this always was a hangout for celebrities. Over there's Navarre, the soprano. Renée and I heard her sing in Paris last year."

"You always did have one eye primed for Genius, Jarve. As for me, I'd rather fraternize with cab drivers and doormen. They're more intelligent and less conceited."

A woman rose from a table near the front and walked across the room to the piano. She wore a rose colored gown and a string of pearls encircled her bare throat. In a soft soprano she sang a crooning lullaby, strangely incongruous with the setting. She finished the refrain, "my little gray home in the west," in a trill that brought a rapt, strained hush over the place.

"Who did you say that singer was?" asked Marston.

"That's Navarre, I tell you, from the Metropolitan. Her salary is——"

But Marston, as he kicked back his chair and rushed across the floor, knew better. He knew that it was only Cinderella transformed by the fair godmother; that Navarre was only Evelyn, who sang illustrated songs at the Princess. And the smile she gave him from her blue eyes turned his thoughts again to landlords and period furniture.

"Hello, Pel," she said softly, as he took her hand. "Been waiting long? I'm a little late. There was a tie-up in the subway."

The Last Born

by ONEY FRED SWEET

Just Because He Was the Baby of the Family Was No Sign He Would Never Grow Up.

CLEM MOSS was the first born in the Moss family. He made the most of the distinction when brothers and sisters followed him into the world. The Moss family lived on a middle west farm. By the time little Harold Moss was 10 years old, big brother Clem was a voter, the owner of his own horse and buggy, wise concerning the meaning and secrets of life.

Little Harold hardly seemed like a Moss. He had joined the family at a time when the section had partially struggled out of its pioneer stage. The softer life was reflected in the boy's cheeks that were a bit chubbier and pinker than those of his brothers and sisters. The stores in town afforded for him more of an assortment in modern apparel than when Clem and the others had passed through childhood. Harold did his part of the farm work, but machinery made the tasks less back breaking. Mrs. Moss thought of Harold as "the baby." The old man seemed to lose sight of the fact that it was in the nature of things that the last born should eventually mature like the rest. Clem always spoke of Harold as "the kid."

Clem was whistling about the barn. As soon as the morning chores were done he intended to "hitch up" and drive in to the county seat town to attend the Fourth of July celebration. Clem had attended "Fourths" before. He had eaten his dinner at the restaurant and had danced in the opera house above the drug store at night. Clem continued to whistle—to whistle in a self-contented monotone.

"Ain't you goin' to take me with you, Clem?" pleaded Harold.

"Geewhilikens," frowned the big brother, "is that what you're hanging around for? Now, you run in the house, Harold. I couldn't possibly take you today."

"Why not?"

"A boy your age wouldn't understand if I told you."

Harold looked on as Clem drove with a dash out of the barnyard. Clem had his brown felt hat on one side of his head. He had a silk handkerchief about his neck to protect it from the chafing of his white collar. He had his hot coat over the back of the buggy seat, and the absence of the garment revealed a pair of pink sleeve holders. Clem sat so far to one side of the seat that the buggy tilted in the same angle with the felt hat. There was the crack of a whip and Clem was gone. Big brother Clem! Big brother Clem. He shaved himself. He had sent away by mail and had printed his name on cards that had violets in one corner of them. His days at the little white school on the prairie were over. He could converse with strangers passing by and make remarks such as "Well, I've seen it hotter this time o' year," "We need rain mighty bad," "Sorry, but I've already promised my vote to another candidate." He could talk like that and rub his chin in a manner that lent importance to his words. Clem had years to his credit. He was grown up.

A tear rolled down one of Harold's chubby cheeks as Clem drove away. He knew what Clem was going to do—he was going to drive over to the neighboring farm and take Hattie Gatz into "The Fourth" with him. Hattie Gatz powdered her face so when she attended public functions.

The farm seemed lonely to Harold, left behind. Other folks were driving by on the way to town. There was no plowing in the fields of shimmering corn this day. The sun blazed against the side of the big red barn. The fan of the tall windmill creaked in the faint breeze. Clem would come back to tell about the music and the crowds and the noise in town—about the part he had had in it all. Clem always had such wonderful adventures. Fakers at such celebrations who tried to trick him got some mighty sassy answers, according to his tell. Clem had seen so much, been to town so often. He had heard Bryan speak from the end of a train, and he had once accompanied a load of hogs to Chicago on a "pass."

What was the use, when a fellow was only 10 years old and had never been anywhere? Harold checked the tears, but he milked the cows that evening, a lump in his throat.

Time passed over the Moss farm just as it did over the rest of the world. Harold grew tall, became of age, wore long pants, but he could never overcome Clem's handicap over him in the matter of years. Harold was a quiet youth. He drove the family car when he went to town evenings, and after work hours he dressed as did the youths in the magazine advertisements. But to Clem, Harold was still "the kid."

Clem's added years had done considerable to him. His hair had thinned and he was no longer particular as to how he parted it. Hattie Gatz had married him and her freckles were no longer camouflaged by powder. The chase was over for both of them. Clem was thrice a father and important in the role. He was now farming part of the old man's place on his own hook, and on Sundays he drove over in his car to see "the folks."

"Geewhilikens, Harold," exclaimed Clem, during one of these Sunday afternoon visits when they were all sitting on the front porch, "You fellows are slow now to what we used to be. Our crowd was always up to something. Eh, Hattie? Remember that night I drove you clear over to Dumont to a dance and the horse almost ran away?"

"Quit nudging me, Clem," Hattie complained, "can't you see the baby's asleep? You men folks ought to have to take care of 'em awhile."

Hattie was wearing a white waist. Her shoulders in it were humped over in a way that made it tight across the back.

"Oh, you remember it all right," chuckled Clem, leaning back with a reminiscent smile. For a time he remained tilted in his chair. He conveyed the impression that he was looking back on life—a life full and running over with events. "I don't see what you young fellows do now for excitement," he went on. "Geewhilikens, we was up to something all the time."

Harold was about to make some sort of comment, but Clem cut him off by reaching for toddling Clem Jr. and bursting into boisterous baby talk as he jostled his heir about. Clem had a fatherly way of twisting his cigar about in his mouth when he was thus playing with his offspring. Harold might be of age now, but he had not reached fatherhood. Clem was still patronizing and condescending.

Grandpa and Grandma Moss were now almost listless through age, themselves. They sat in rockers. The grandfather inquired of Clem about his corn. Clem finished his prank with his son before turning to give answer.

Old man Moss cleared his throat. "Harold has asked me to let him try the west 'forty' to farm on his own hook next year," he ventured. "What do you think about it, Clem?"

"I guess you're right," agreed the father.

"Yes, he's got a long ways to go yet before he thinks of anything like that," smiled Clem, decisively, taking the cigar from his throat to permit of an "ahem." Then to his offspring, "Come here, Buddy, let daddy lift ooh way up high like he used to see the man do in the circus." The subject was dismissed.

Harold left the porch. There was no tear in his eye now as there had been when Clem had told him he was too young to take to "The Fourth." There was no tear there, but there was a significant something else.

It was the Sunday afternoon of another summer, and Clem and his family had chugged over to see the old folks. They were all sitting out on the porch. Off in the fields the green corn shimmered. A chicken was picking its way across the lawn in front of the house, and threatening the sweet pea vines. Clem's sister, Edith, was playing church hymns at the organ. It was hot, sunshiny, quiet.

Clem had removed his white collar and the tie that went with it—a tie that had a pasteboard backing and fastened to the collar with a rubber snap. He arose to greeet Isa Marcil, a neighbor, whom he had sighted down the road and who was now coming across the lawn.

"Come up and sit down," nodded Clem.

"No, I was just going past. If I'd known none of your folks was going to get a paper today I'd of brought one along." Isa was plainly excited. "I suppose I'll get it all mixed up," he continued. "I don't suppose I can tell it, but it was great reading. The biggest battle in history, I guess—anyhow the most important. They say it marks the turning point. The kaiser struck a stone wall when he hit the Americans. Not only a stone wall, but the Yanks started the Germans back toward Berlin. They wasn't a match for the Americans. Talk about Bunker Hill and Gettysburg, but this was a world battle, folks! I'd like to know what the kaiser thinks now. You see, the crown prince—"

CLEM—"Get down, Buddy."

MR. MARCIL—"Well, the Yanks was sure laying for that bunch that thought they could lick the world. The Yanks didn't pull any of that falling back stuff. They saved Paris. It'll be another story from now on. They stopped 'em first at Chateau—"

MRS. HATTIE MOSS—"Clem, throw something at that hen. She's headed right for the peony bed."

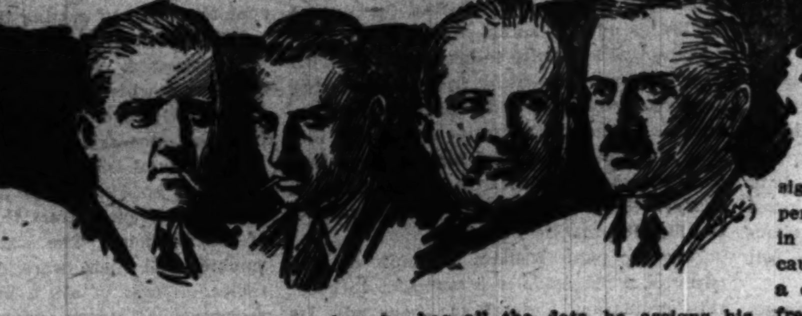
MR. MARCIL—"—Chateau Thierry. The tide's turned and it's 'good night kaiser.' And you hadn't heard a word about it—about Harold? If I'd a known you hadn't got a paper—"

GRANDMA MOSS—"Harold!"

MR. MARCIL—"Harold. Full name and home address there in the paper as plain as you could ask for it. The paper's got it all—how he turned one of the Germans' own machine guns on 'em and took ten of 'em prisoners, single handed. He had 'em holding up their hands and yelling 'kamerad' every step. They decorated him—the French did!"

CLEM MOSS—"Geewhilikens!"

THE DOUBLE QUARTETTE



by Jack Lait

"The Reason That They Are Roaming About Is That They are Clever and They are Bold and Do Not Conceive the Theory of Conscience."

WE were seated at one of the tables in the outdoor garden, my pop-eyed young friend and I, partaking of the kickless product which now has the effrontery to still label itself beer and some sandwiches on bread neither wheat nor rye—wry bread, one might call it.

The dancing attracted us. He watched it with the fascination of youth, for where youth looks dancing is bewitching; I gazed from the viewpoint of one whose youth was spent in days when dancing was mild, and I was turning it over in my mind that in those times, when folks could do more or less as they wished, the dances were tame, and now, when intolerance handcuffs and ankle-hobbles everything, the dancing is rather shocking.

However—

My thoughts were switched with the entrance of four men and four women. A captain of waiters, with truckling stride, was showing the party to a large, round table, near enough to the band to be a place of distinction, far enough from the bass drum to be endurable.

One of the men bowed to me. The others turned to look and, seeing me, likewise acknowledged my presence. I waved a hand which was already aloft, dangling from a wrist upheld by a pivoting elbow on the board. The women tossed me a glance, too, and two of them smiled lightly; I smiled even less heartily. Then they turned to one another and forgot that I was breathing adjacent air. And I turned to my juvenile companion and said:

"Glance over to that table—the large one where the eight are sitting. Tell me what you see."

He studied; he strained a little, for he knew, of course, that I knew them, and I knew, of course, that he didn't, so he was attempting at 22 to learn in a searching look supported by his baby experience with human mysteries to astound me by revealing as mush as I had learned in almost twice as many cycles of gleaning specific information, as well as adaptable observation.

"The one with the black mustache is a physician," he ventured, glancing cagily into my face to see how "hot" his guess had been.

"Go on," I said cruelly.

"The smooth-shaven one, the youngest, the one with the puffy protuberances under his eyes—he's a broker or something of the sort."

"Proceed," I led him on.

"The one with the slightly bald head, the heavy-set one—O, he might be 'most anything—a salesman, or a business man of moderately successful standing."

"You underrate his success at his business," I dropped. "But run on. This is getting rich."

It wasn't a pretty way to spit him—he had no chance at all. But we had discussed several days before that very thing; I had maintained that only on the stage does one see "types," and that in life itself one can tell on sight only a uniformed and trade-marked man's calling and station; he had argued—he always argues when I voice an opinion—that physiognomy is an open book in most instances, that a butcher smells of blood, that a bookkeeper always has ink on the first joint of his middle finger, that a reporter smokes abominable cigarets, that a lawyer "makes up" for Daniel Webster or Judge Landis, and that a congressman wears congress shoes.

"How about the fourth man—the little one with the ferret eyes?" I crowded him.

"I'd say he was a loan shark, a divorce suit investigator, a pawnbroker, or a—a——"

"There's only one thing that can round out the full possibilities of one who might be any of those three," I cut in, almost afraid he would name it himself, in which case he would have been right and I would have been stung. "And that's a pickpocket. And he is."

"A pickpocket?" inquired the youth. "How can he be a pickpocket? If he were that, the police would know it; and if they knew it, he wouldn't be about at large like this, would he?"

"You make me tired," I exploded. "You and all the rest who read my stories and have read them for years—yes, and believed many of them, I dare say—about the social life of thieves and such, and who cannot yet digest the fact that such men actually live in flesh and blood.

"You read every day the chronicles of a dozen or more crimes committed within the twenty-four preceding hours; they are not fictional crimes, they are matters of police record. You believe those crimes were done. You must believe that they were done by human hands. In that event, there must be men who do such things. You—yes, even you—can carry logic as simple as that to a sane conclusion.

"Why, then, do you and the likes of you think I am a smart Alec and a faker when I point out to you in the walks of ordinary life the criminals? Do you think that they hide in cellars and come out only in the eerie hours? If they had to do that, they wouldn't steal. It is for just what you see at that table that men steal—for a chance to strut into gay places with gay women, drink the costliest, eat the fattest, tip the silliest. These women and that table and those drinks are what those men steal for."

"Those men? You mean all of them——"

"Of course. Crooks hang together like men of any other profession. One crook would rather have another think he is the topnotcher of his game than earn the bad opinion of the rest of the whole world. What has a newspaper man in mind when he writes a story? To impress the public? No; to make others in his own line admire him. Does a physician wonder what the world will think when he nips out an appendix? He does not; he drips pepsin in the relishing hope that other medics will throw up their hands and admit he's a wonder. It's that way in every circle of endeavor, and it's more than anywhere else that way with outlaws. You'll see them scramble for the $40 check when 1 o'clock comes, each fighting to make the others think he can steal so much so easily that other people's money is no object."

"Then I wasn't right about any of them?"

"Even you were seldom wronger. The mustached one who you thought was a doctor is a confidence man. The one you called a broker is a deep sea swindler who works Pacific boats with two confederates and pushes that famous masterpiece known in crookology as 'dealing the big mitt,' which is a hand at bridge which seemingly is invincible but has one carefully arranged blowhole in that this chap you are now looking at holds an even more miraculous hand than the one dealt the victim. I saw him 'trim' a Japanese banker for $65,000 in one play; he is no piker. The bald, corpulent person is a bit of a mystery to me, but he is a thief and always has been one. I met him recently and twitted him over it, and he looked blandly to me and said he was in the business of manufacturing ash trays, and if I didn't like that one he'd show me his toothpick sharpening plant. I think he's a refined blackmailer. He has never 'done time'—the other three have records. The 'con' man is out right now on $110,000 bail, taking in five offenses.

"The pickpocket, the ratty little fellow, is of higher rating than the naked mention of his specialty would suggest. He has a dozen understrappers, and he plots out the 'jobs' for them. Picking pockets, you know, is not a haphazard trick. Has any one ever picked yours? No? Of course not. You never had anything worth plucking. What's the use of wasting hours trailing you and working or waiting or maneuvering to get you in a wedge where you could be gouged, unless the thieves know that you have something on your person which will compensate them for their effort and their hazard? A pickpocket's time is worth money, too, you know; he would no more start fingering an uncharted stranger than a banker would solicit your account on the sidewalk before he had ascertained that you have liquid and sufficient assets.

"This skinny bird has snoopers who report—in writing, too—on men seen with large rolls, what pocket those rolls are in, what habits the men customarily follow, so that he may judge at what point it would be safest and surest to attempt to 'nick' them; when he has all the data he assigns his squads—the 'staller,' who is to tangle the prey in conversation or a stumble; the 'gun,' who is to strip him while he is thus preoccupied; the 'lark,' to whom the money is to be passed, so that in the unfortunate event of a 'pinch' the men who might be suspected will not have any contraband in their possession, and the man who has it in his possession will be well on the way, unsuspected because he will not have had any direct hand in the 'touch' proper.

"Please do not curl your lip—I don't like it. You are not yet convinced. You think I read that somewhere in a book, I suppose—a book written by a cocaine sniffer. But there sits the king of 'dips'; he is rich; hundreds of cases of wallets hooked from the unguarded treasure troves of citizens crowd one another on the police 'squeal books.' Yet you, in the arrogant ignorance of youth, the imaginative age when you can imagine everything except the truth as it is dealt to you off the top of the deck by one who is expert but honest, still have your doubts."

"O, no, it isn't that," he apologized. "Only, if you know all that, why don't the police?"

"Numskull," I cried. "Pinhead. Whippersnapper. Chump. The police are divided into many classe

"The uniformed patrolman carrying a club and leaning against a lamp post has as much chance to study criminals and criminology as a shipping clerk. Pinning a star on him doesn't endow him with second sight. In time, through influence, he manages to get into plain clothes—that makes him a 'detective.' He knows then as much as he knew before. Through many years, if he has ordinary intelligence, if he sees these men brought up for inspection at roll call, if he serves hundreds of warrants as the result of secret information furnished his superiors by 'stool pigeons,' he may in time learn to know a few of the individuals and some of the general symptoms of thievery, a complicated and intricate study for a sharp man, not to speak of most flat-foots who enter the business of detecting through the medium of guarding suburban sidewalks.

"A policeman or a detective, mark you, has no more chance of falling upon crime than any other citizen. How many crimes have you ever seen committed? Well, a policeman has probably seen no more. A policeman must be sent for. When he gets there the theft has been done and the thief has departed and has forgotten to leave his card.

"No, only a veteran officer who has in his time dealt with genuine grifters—that's right: a grifter is a thief, and the word is not a mispronunciation of grafter, the two springing from unrelated roots—is really dangerous to them. And by the time he's dangerous he has ceased to be, for several reasons. When a man gets old he isn't hunting work, usually; by the time he gets old he has sort of laid up relations with the men he works with, even works on, so that there is a comradeship, in a way. You find old detectives and old thieves rather chummy, and only if there is a direct complaint naming the suspect will a toothless old bloodhound, as a rule, go after one of his time-endeared 'subjects.'

"The 'con' man over there is a slippery snake. He has money, and he employs two lawyers—a crooked 'squarer' who uses every means from bribing juries and prosecutors to arranging false bonds which can be 'skipped' at a nominal outlay, and a 'level legaler,' an attorney of highest standing and unimpeached ethics, who, when all else fails, puts up a brilliant technical defense. If everything falls down, appeals are taken in the progressive routine of advancing courts, so that it consumes a dozen years or so to clinch a final verdict. By that time the original defendant has almost ceased to be an individual, he is a printed name in a library of printed records. Somewhere stands the bond filed years ago. He can now afford to 'blow' that bond and pay it in full and become a fugitive, moving to Buenos Aires, or Paris, or Tokio, for instance, or he will 'take a fall,' meaning that he will 'do a stretch.'

"I said 'do a stretch'—that means 'crawl in stir'—O, I forgot you don't talk United States. In kindergarten language that all signifies that he will go peacefully to the penitentiary designated in the aged document, in which event he will not serve long, because pardon boards are more merciful when a crime is old and dog-eared, rather than fresh and alive in contemporary memories. You see, when a board gets a request for a parole or pardon, it sends notice to the judge, complainants, and attorneys to be present at the hearing if they have any arguments against a release. In ten years witnesses and others die, scatter, lose interest.

"I am telling you all this to give you an insight into how men like these may remain at liberty, with very limited exceptions, living a whole long lifetime of luxurious existence by activities popularly supposed to bring down upon the unsheltered head of the miscreant the swift vengeance of organized society in all its manifestations of hawk-eyed sleuths, bitter prosecutors, public-spirited juries, cells of rusty and unbendable bars, years of sallowing durance and penitential deprivation of that holiest of all human possessions and heritages, liberty.

"And I haven't told you half of it. I haven't taken in buying off dangerous victims who would insist on pressing charges, scaring off potential witnesses who are respectable though vulnerable, slipping a minion 50 per cent of the gross takings in a good venture, 'framing' perjured alibis, hiring half-starved weaklings in the low life to plead guilty and suffer out a sentence, and many other trade tricks which, all thrown together, make a neat little bagful.

"That crew which I pointed out knows all of them, and has a few of its own, they being individualists among that kind as well as in other artistic branches. The reason that they are roaming about as you see them is that they are clever and they are bold and do not conceive the theory of conscience. They would double-cross each other—there being no more honorable than honest men in that regard—and they would crucify you or me or any one to stay out of cells. They give their business much thought and study. If legitimate merchants gave half as much to their own affairs as these men do, they would be more prosperous. These are no fly-by-night doormat swipers; these are scientific artisans, intensively educated and superbly equipped for courting their ambitions.

"That they can come and go as they do is made possible only by their superior personality and talent. And if you think the world hates them, you are seriously in error; the world gazes upon them in awe, that portion of the world which knows them. See those women. They know the men. Of course they are women of the type which might naturally be selected for the cronies of crooks.

"It's quite a study, all in all—quite a study; I don't expect you to grasp all that I have sought to convey, but it may be well for you, if you hope to grow along and keep your eyes wide and learn in your head through what you see and hear, that you have bits of wisdom flooded at you now and then to help you along. These are hard matters to study out for one's self unless one is either expertly led or chances to take a snappy perception and a constructive imagination into atmosphere where such things can be absorbed. You see, I—— "I——

"Say—I'll bet I can tell what you're thinking. O, can't I? Will you stand treat for another brace of tan sandwiches if I call it? All right, you're on.

"You're thinking: 'I heard all that this hard-blowing dreamer of fiction tales has said, but I wonder who those four men really are, after all.' Ah—you make no protest. I'll have a club sandwich with very little mayonnaise. And if ever I try again to win you to confidential knowledge too deep for your callow capacities, I hope I'll choke while pouring forth the golden secrets which it has taken me years to learn. Youth is youth, and what youth cannot understand youth will not believe; and, believe me, youth can understand almost nothing.

"I don't want the sandwich now. You've affronted my gratuitous good offices, you've insulted my veracity. I'm going over to those birds now to get material for a story. I'm the only reporter they'll tell the truth to, and I won't expect it of them, because I'm too old and too hardened to look for the truth from men who wouldn't know how to tell the truth if they wanted to, which they never do. I don't see how you can sit with me at the same table if you doubt my word. Good night."

The SPLENDID CHANCE

By Mary Hastings Bradley

SYNOPSIS.

Katherine wanted to paint well more than anything in the world, so she said good-by to Dick Con[illegible] without a pang, offering a sisterly cheek for his [illegible] just before the boat slid away from the [illegible]. She resented hotly the quizzical air of a young Englishman who happened on their leave-taking. One day a caricature she had made of him blew across the deck and he caught it. Just before she left the boat he asked if he might come to see her in Paris. When her friends, the Whartons, were about to leave Paris she mentioned Edgerton's proposed visit. They hastened to discourage the friendship, hinting that she is an ineligible party for a man of his rank. MacNare, the surly sculptor, whose studio is downstairs, had to appeal to her one night when his little girl was ill. Jeffrey comes to see her and she tells him that there is no other man who has any claim on her. MacNare warns her that if she is to succeed she must cut everything but work. He becomes a constant caller and confesses an unfortunate marriage has darkened his life. She comforts him. At Les Buissons, MacNare, who has allowed himself to long for Katherine, learns of her love for Capt. Edgerton. Katherine and the captain pledge their love. On her return to Paris war has been declared. MacNare gives up his studio to the wounded, and Katherine spends her days in relief work. For a long time she does not hear from her lover; then madam's little grandchildren, who have been sent in from Les Buissons for safety, bring her a message from Edgerton. She goes to see him there. There is a battle that night at Les Buissons, and Katherine is pressed into service as a nurse. She goes out into the field with the doctors and finds her lover wounded. He dies in her arms. After weeks of work in the hospital, she returns to Paris, numb with grief. MacNare cares for her as though she were a child.

TENTH INSTALLMENT.

WAR'S TOLL.

KATHERINE turned and followed the other's gesture. And then she saw what she had not yet lifted her eyes to observe, that the upper story of the studio building had suffered some collapse, and was now patched with new repairs and replacements.

"And mademoiselle has not heard!" the woman repeated with a ghost of her old vivacity. Then she sighed. "The poor little one!"

A ghastly premonition began to stir. "Not—not Peggy—Marguerite? What happened? The—"

"The Zeppelins? What else? They came at night—that night of the eleventh, and bomb after bomb——it was terrible! And one of the first went through that roof. The monsieur was upon one side of the room—the child in her cot on the other. . . . He was hurled against the wall, that was all. . . But she—!"

The young woman shuddered. "They say that it was beyond anything. The father had to look for her, mademoiselle, to pick her up bit by bit. . . . I must not think of it. . . . He buried her that Sunday. And now he lives down there again—for they moved the hospital the next day into a more commodious place.

Katherine did not answer. She crossed that street on flying feet; with shaking hands she knocked upon the door of the studio and when no answer came she knocked again sharply, calling out.

She heard bars withdrawn and pushing open the door she found herself face to face with Robert MacNare. In that first look she saw that he knew that she had heard, and then he half turned away as if dreading her words. Her hands went out and clutched at his arm. "Oh, you—you too!"—she faltered and then all words failed.

A shudder ran through the man; he stiffened against her, staring away. And then very tragically all the stark fighting strength wilted from him; his big shoulders sagged and he bowed above her, his breath coming in great tearing gasps.

It frightened her from her own abandon. 'Oh, what a weak fool I am to come to you like this! But, O, my dear, my dear—"

Her hands relaxed and he turned from her shakingly and stumbled into a chair where he sat huddled, fighting for that grim control which the girl's passionate pity had overthrown. His brain was foaming again with blood and horror as on that night of death. But in a moment, it seemed, he drew himself up and turned to her the bleak, set face of a man who faces something quite unalterable.

"You see, I go a little mad at times," he said huskily. "But you—you must not take it like that—"

He came to her as if he would put his hand on her shaking shoulder, then he turned aside and began hunting on a table for a pipe. There is nothing to be said."

"Have you had dinner?' she unexpectedly demanded.

He looked about vaguely. "I?. . . Have you?"

"No," she denied promptly. "Will you come with me?"

"Can you go——on that knee? I'll bring you something."

"No, we'll go. My knee is quite right. We'll go somewhere where there is a little light and very few people. Please, dear Surly Man."

As she waited till he found his hat and coat she noticed a revolver lying casually among the pipes and books upon his dusty table. She wondered, very pitifully, why he had happened not to blow out his brains. She thought that his despair was the kind to cut its way out. . . . In some black moment . . . . She did not know that two things only had lowered that loaded gun from the throbbing temple that so ached for surcease of its memories. And one thing was that he was waiting for news of her safety. And the other thing was that he preferred for that revolver muzzle some other temple—some temple in a green-gray uniform. Now this second thing was still deferred on her account. For MacNare forgot himself in a compassion for her that was born out of his old love for her and yet greater than it, for now his sorry heart neither hoped nor despaired, asking only to shelter her a little, to help her over this first difficult place, to spend himself in what service and comfort he could give. . . . He had never loved her in the blossoming of all her bright loveliness as he loved her now, wan and weak and grieving, but his love was infinitely different, infinitely deeper. Her sorrow was a bond to him in his sorrow. He would have given his life, that poor, unhappy, tormenting life of his, given it up in tortures gladly, if he could have brought back to her that brave young boy whom he remembered as a triumphant god of youth. . . . And still he thought of him as one of life's lucky ones. For into his soldier's grave he had taken her love with him . . . he had known it to the last.

That night she told him that she was going to London, as soon as her knee was well, to Jeffrey's mother, and he answered that they would go together as he had business to arrange in London, too.

"Mrs. Grundy is too busy for gossip," he added, with the ghost of his sardonic smile. "We can be cousins of a sort; you know you shouldn't travel alone now."

She accepted his escort with a gratefulness that yet fell short of real appreciation. She was engrossed in thoughts of Jeffrey's mother. If she could only reach her, only open her heart to her, then perhaps she would feel less miserably forlorn. . . .

It was a gray crossing and a dim landing. Neither of the two travelers had much to say to each other, yet she felt his silent presence as a comfort.

In London he found her an old family hotel of the old type, and for himself he took a quiet place around the corner. She had telegraphed to Edgerton Hall, and Mrs. Edgerton replied that she would reach town and call upon her that next afternoon, and all that day she waited with quickening expectancy.

The drawing room was long and narrow with two high windows at one end. As Katherine came forward into the room, her heart hurrying with an excitement she had not forgotten she could feel, a tall, slender figure in deep mourning rose from one of the chintz covered chairs and held out a quick hand.

There was a trace of Jeffrey in the swift motion and the turn of the head, but only a trace. The mother's features were softer and not so clear cut, and the blue of her eyes was paler and blurred now as if by secret tears. It was a delicate but not a weak face; she was stricken but there was something proud and fine in her grief, shining out with that indomitable look of race that Jeffrey had worn.

"You are the nurse who was with my son?"

Katherine knew then that Jeffrey had left his mother uninformed, as she, herself, had hidden, and that, as yet, she was but a stranger to her, a messenger from him. At the instant she became aware of another figure which had risen behind the mother, that of a young girl also in deep black, a sweet looking little creature with wistful violet eyes and a weakly pretty mouth.

"I was acting as nurse—then and afterwards. I am not a real member of the corps," Katherine answered slowly. She wished that the girl were not there; she had not thought of Mrs. Edgerton's bringing any one with her. Yet it was very natural. The girl smiled rather shyly upon her and Mrs. Edgerton, as if remembering her, murmured that she had brought Miss Harcombe, a close friend, with her.

"Please tell us—everything," she said as they sat down.

She had the air of one who steels herself to endure—and to conceal a grief too sacred for the public eyes. "How was he hurt?" she asked, as Katherine hesitated.

It had become hard for Katherine to speak. She was conscious of that girl before her, leaning forward with upraised eyes.

"I wrote you what day it was," she began. "I was at the hospital at Les Buissons, where I had taken the place of a nurse who died. . . . The day before the Germans had captured the village, but the allies made a night attack and retook it, driving the Germans as far back as they could. There was a terrible battle from midnight all through the next day. . . . In the afternoon we went out on the field to find the wounded."

"And he—was there?" the mother prompted.

"Yes—he was there." Katherine looked past her, seeing again that desolate plain beneath the lowering sky. . . . She saw Jeffrey lying there bleeding. . . . "He was far away," she said in a very low voice, "and I was all alone when I got to him, and it was dusk. And for him it was—too late—to do anything. . . . He had been stabbed in the chest."

Very slowly she went on, choosing her words with difficulty, speaking of his wound, of his lack of suffering at the last, of his high courage. . . .

A silence fell. The mother was breathing heavily, with tight shut lips, in her face that look of anguished but exalted suffering that a martyr might wear. Her eyes were remote. Perhaps she saw again the panorama of her boy's life, his babyhood, his merry youth, his pride in his first uniform.

Then her glance came back to the American girl with startled remembrance. "It was very good of you, Miss King, to have stayed with him. . . . Did he talk much? What did he say? There must have been—last messages."

"He was very weak," said Katherine. "He said—very little."

"But that little?" The older woman spoke with unconscious authoritativeness as though this unknown girl before her were holding back a priceless possession. "There must have been messages to me—and to Miss Harcombe," she added, turning to the young creature with her who was wiping away the flowing tears. "He would speak of her as Violet. If my son had lived—" Her voice quivered and she exchanged with the weeping girl a look of tender and sad understanding.

Katherine sat very still, her head bent, her tense fingers clasped in the folds of her black gown. No use to protest to herself that she did not know what she could do—she knew to dreariness! She could have laughed aloud for the ironic misery of it. . . . Her dreams of casting herself into this mother's arms—of taking a daughter's place in her life! Her dreams of memories in the shelter of Jeffrey's gardens!

She could not tell her story. She could not strip from that slight, weakly trusting little thing the pitiful solace of her poor little romance of what might have been; she could not rob her of the dignity of her real sorrow. . . . It did not matter that the girl had built falsely. It did not matter. Perhaps she truly believed—had been led to believe——

Something seemed to be happening to herself—she could not stop to discover what it was. They were asking her things and she had to be very, very careful or she would hurt them. . . . What was that was asked? O, yes, his last messages.

Slowly, trying to gain time, "He spoke of his wound, saying that it was no use, that he knew he must go. He said it was too late to pretend. He said, 'It's nearly on the clock for me,' and—and just after that he said, 'We must win.' He told me to go to you—to tell you everything." Heavily the words fell from her lips. She did not raise her eyes. "He sent you his love—and good-by."

"And—and—did he say——" The girl was leaning forward, her wistful eyes drowned in tears, her lips quivering.

Katherine closed her eyes a moment. She was thinking of that kiss, that last kiss. The supreme agony of those dying moments threatened to rise above her like a sea. She longed to spring up and cry out to them: "No, no—he was mine, mine, mine! Once I saved him, and at the last I came to him. He died loving me—and I shall live in that love forever."

But she knew that she was strong enough to find, even for this girl, the kind lie that would comfort.

"It might have been, 'Vi,'" she half whispered, "and then—good-by!"

She felt shamed when she had said it, as if she had stained the purity of the truth of that dying hour. She was not repaid by the light that came into the girl's face. Her own light seemed extinguished forever. . . . And down the way that she had come in those moments there was no returning.

"And his—last words?" said the mother.

"He said—good-by."

In the long silence they thought their different thoughts of the dead. Then the mother spoke. It seemed as if no voice could withstand the strain she put upon it, but hers was unwavering, only a little hesitant. "And—the body? Is there any way that we could get—later—perhaps?"

"He is buried in a wood. Alone. . . . If the trees stand I could find the place again."

"Surely—if he had been carried to camp—I would have paid anything——"

"They could not have carried him back to camp. They were digging trenches and putting them all together—pouring in quicklime." Katherine gave the naked facts dully. Her auditors flinched.

Something else recurred to her. "I have some keepsakes for you. I will bring them."

She had left them in her room, having meant to bring the mother to that seclusion before giving her the relics of her boy, but now she rose and went for them, leaving the slender, straight figure tensely upright in the incongruously gay chintz chair, with that other drooping little figure beside it, crying softly.

In her room she unlocked her treasure box and took out the ring, and the wrist watch, and the pocketbook, and the writing things and carried them downstairs and put them silently into the other woman's hands. She saw the mother's chin quiver as she looked down on those poor relics of her boy that was gone, and when Mrs. Edgerton raised her eyes Katherine felt in their remoteness that utter withdrawal of the human spirit into its incommunicable grief.

Miss Harcombe began to sob aloud. "Violet, dear, you must not. Remember what we have to be proud of." Mrs. Edgerton spoke with quiet restraint, still looking down upon her relics. "Some of these—but later." She put the things carefully away in a black bag she carried and turned to Katherine. "His sword? Did any one think of that?"

"It was buried with him."

"They sent me his father's from South America." It was not reproach but wistfulness that spoke. . . . So twice to this slender, delicate woman had come those poor relics out of the silence—once for her husband and once for her son.

"O, I wish I had known—had thought!"

The sad pity of the cry brought Mrs. Edgerton's eyes to Katherine, and from out her remoteness her attention concentrated on this girl before her who had been the comforter of her dying son. How young she was and how pretty . . . but such pale, thin cheeks, and such dark shadows, like bruises, about her big, sorrowful eyes. . . . She must have been seeing terrible things . . . going about a battle field seeking the wounded. . . . Fleetingly she wondered about her.

"You are an American?" she questioned.

"Yes." The girl's lips closed sharply over further speech that might be too revealing. Perhaps Mrs. Edgerton knew of Jeffrey's going to Paris to see some American. . . . She was looking attentively at her now, as if remembering something. . . . But if the mother's mind raised any questions she did not seek an answer. And Katherine's silence seemed to exorcise them.

"You have been more than kind," she said. "You have taken a great deal of trouble for me. It was more than I could expect and I am grateful. I would like——" She hesitated. "Is there anything in the world that I can do for you, my dear?"

Dumbly Katherine shook her head. There was a lump in her throat that would not be swallowed. She knew then that she could have loved this woman. . . .

"You must leave me your address. And later, after it is over—if you can remember the place . . . I would like to have him in the old church."

"Yes, I will send my address. And I will write you everything I can remember of the place so that if anything should happen to me you could find it."

"I should be grateful."

BY WM. DONAHEY.

ALTHOUGH the Teenie Weenies had spent a most wonderful Summer in the woods they were all mighty glad to get back to the old shoe house under the rose bush.

"There's no place like home even if it is in an old shoe," said the Old Soldier when the Teenie Weenies came in sight of their home, and all the rest of the little people agreed with him.

Grandpa had been left in charge of the house while the Teenie Weenies had been camping and the old gentleman gave the little folks a hearty welcome on their return.

"It's about time you were gettin' back," said the old man, looking over the top of his tiny glasses. "All the beans and corn and things are ready to be taken care of and there ain't any time to lose, either."

"All right, Grandpa," said the General, "we'll get out bright and early in the morning and make the fur fly."

The little people were out of bed almost before the sun was up the next morning and after a hearty breakfast they set out for the garden where they put in the day with might and main.

First the little men cut off two ears of sweet corn and that was no easy task for the men had to climb the corn stalk and chop the ears off.

When the ears fell to the ground the men cut away most of the husk and then rolled the ear onto several big logs which had been securely nailed together.

The ear was then rolled on lead pencils to a place near the kitchen door, where the grains of corn were cut off, and the milk squeezed out of them.

The milk was cooked and then put into tiny cans, sealed up and put away for the winter.

It took the little folks two days to can the two ears of corn, and they worked from early morning until dark.

Mrs. Lover and the rest of the women helped the Cook, but the Lady of Fashion put on a pair of overalls and worked with the men in the garden.

It took the little folks nearly nine full days to get their crops ready for storing, and the little cellar under the hill fairly groaned with good things to eat.

"You see we've got to conserve food," the Cook said, "and we're saving everything down to the last bean."

As the food was stored away the Cook made a list of the things, and the following list appears just as the Cook set them down:

CANNED FOOD.

Eighty cans of tomatoes.
Three hundred and sixty cans of corn.
Four hundred cans of jam.
Six hundred cans of fruit.

DRIED VEGETABLES AND GRAIN.

Two hundred and seventy-one lima beans.
Six hundred and eighty-three navy beans.
One thousand seven hundred grains of wheat.
Nine hundred grains of corn.
Thirteen hundred grains of rice.
Eight hundred grains of barley.
Seven hundred and eighty-six grains of rye.

FRESH VEGETABLES AND FRUIT.

Ten potatoes.
Three apples.
Two turnips.
Six carrots.
One beet.
Two sweet potatoes.

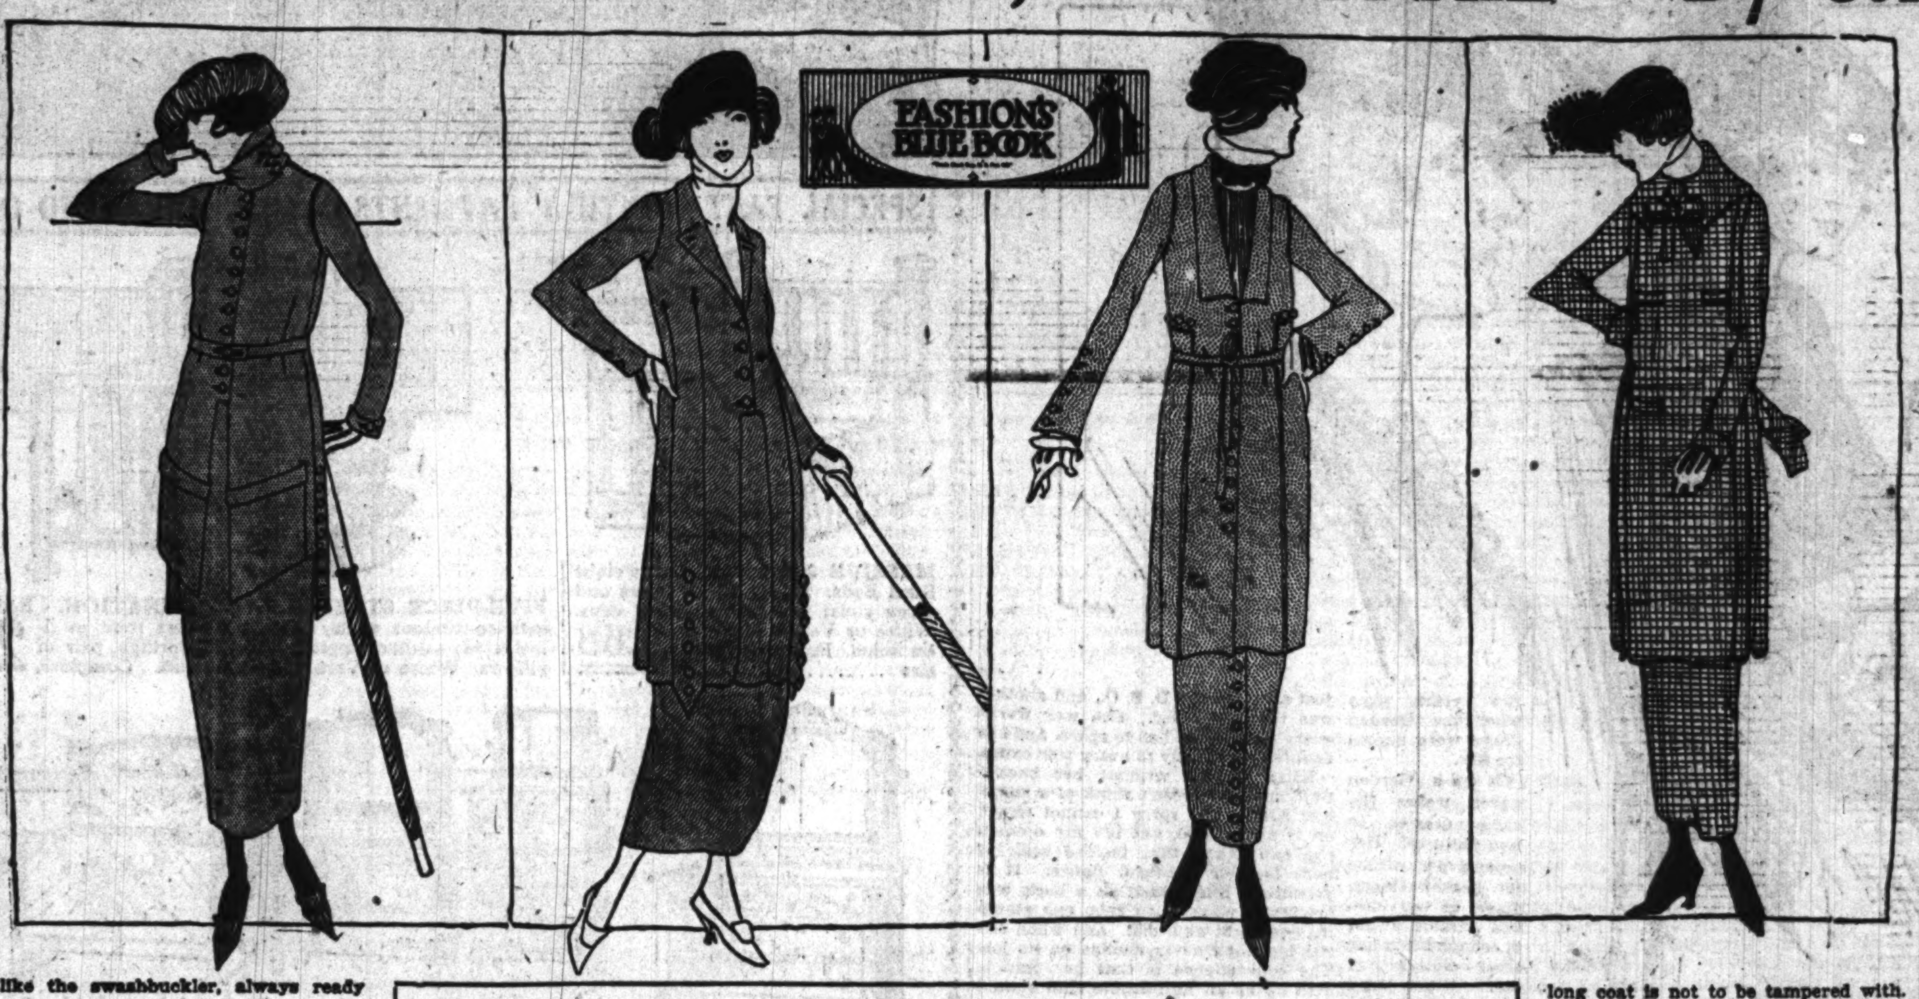
THE SUIT COAT TAKES THE LONG, LONG TRAIL - By Corinne Lowe

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."



It may be victory flour, but it's wool victory when new suit-coats meander almost to the knees. Of beige tricotine, this is cut with five gores in the back and an original treatment of the front.

Buttons have courage when they attempt to storm one of these late models with their everlasting jackets. Here, however, in this gray Oxford cloth buttons covered with self-material are active on every front.

It used to be a question of what you put in pockets. Now the only problem is where you put in pockets. This charming suit of brown velours de laine offers not only a new pocket suggestion but an extremely stunning collar.

For the girl in her late teens or early twenties is offered this original model in blue and gray checked woolen material with its apron front, sash, necktie, and numerous pockets.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—There are probably more imperfect thirty-eights in the world than perfect thirty-sixes. For this reason the advent of the suit with the long coat will be welcomed by quite a few of us. Wear a coat which reaches to the knees and which has perhaps five gores in the back and the heftiest of women may look as if she hadn't seen a protein for a week.

It is the coat of the suit which gets the proteins nowadays. So much is this the case that we might almost call them coateins. And, by the way, let us pause here for a word of comment upon the w. k. whims of fashion. When there is a scarcity of flour, the bread baker saves flour. When there is a scarcity of wool the fashion baker—no, indeed, he does no such thing! He lies awake at night apparently wondering how he can possibly use more wool than heretofore. As a result, we have this year's suits with their coats long as a Russian novel.

To be sure, the designers excuse themselves by making with this an extremely narrow skirt. In Paris, too, the fashion oligarchy has produced, in addition to this narrowness of skirt, an offsetting shortness. Some of the skirts of these imported models which we are just reviewing are from ten to sixteen inches above the ground. Here in this country, however, the designers haven't gone in for these kilts. The fact of it is that during this summer and fall our "petties" have reached to the shoe-tops. It is doubtful if we are going back to those underfed specimens of other days. And we shall have therefore in the narrowness of the skirt the only poultice for our conscience.

The one thing which we may say in extenuation of this extravagant use of wool is that many of us will buy nothing save a suit for the winter's wardrobe. If we really want to save—and there isn't one of us who doesn't want to—the best way to do it is to buy either a suit or a frock and top-coat, then live in that chosen costume. As we have so often said, there is hardly any business or social occasion which the suit won't meet. It is like the swashbuckler, always ready to hold the stairway against six or seven good husky engagements. And it seems to us that conservation of fabrics lies in limiting our wardrobes to just two good items, one a suit and the other a dinner frock or evening gown.

But to go back to the suits of this fall. The favored materials are gabardine, tricotine, wool jersey, Oxford cloth, and velours de laine. All woolly materials, you see—and it mustn't be forgotten that even the "laine" of the last fabric is the French word for wool. However, later in the autumn we shall probably fall back on the services of the silk worm. Velvet suits will be much worn and velveteen is being urged for both suits and wraps.

The coats of these new suits, as we have said, are extremely long. But—they do not have much plot! That long semi-fitting outline is its own interest. A few buttons covered with either silk or the cloth of the suit, perhaps a little braid, a touch of stitching—these are all that one finds on many of the most stunning of these new suits.

At the upper left hand is a suit which illustrates the latest tendencies. Made of sand colored tricotine, the long, long trail of the coat is made to appear even narrower by the fact that the back is laid in five gores. This is relieved somewhat by the treatment of the front of the coat with its arrow-head of embroidery and its buttons covered with the cloth. The skirt of this model is straight and narrow and—rather long!

The type of woman who looks her best in a suit like this is the tall, well built—even the heavy—one. Unless, however, you are the five feet eight of the Venus de Milo this extremely long coat is not to be tampered with. From the short woman it takes away precious inches of height. For her indeed, the better model is the hip or waist length coat. And, of course, these more temperate lengths are not to be done away with entirely by the long coat. Particularly in the more simple tailleurs we find the jaunty hip length jackets.

One of the smartest of the new suits is that shown at the bottom of the page. Not quite so hysterical is this jacket—just about the length many of us will decide upon! This model is of brown velours de laine—the most popular material of the season for the more dressy suit—and the new pockets, together with the stunning high collar, are features to be studied.

There isn't much of the Turner sunset about the new suits. In fact, most of the fall things are the color of ruined hopes, Whistler nocturnes, lost loves, and rainy picnics. Gray, much, much brown—and this in almost every tint—black, sand, navy—these are the shades that one notes. Now and then, however, one encounters a good looking check such as is shown at the upper right.

This model of checked gray and soft blue woolen material is advocated for the girl in her late teens or early twenties. Much too youthful and fanciful for the ordinary woman is the apron front of the coat, the four little pockets which break up the plainness of this front, the tie of the material under the broad flat collar and that sash which terminates the belt passing backward from the sides of the front.

"Hunt the button" is a game without handicaps this year. Buttons patrol three of the new suits shown here and in the last, the one second from the left, you will see a button attack on all fronts. Even the skirt has been stormed. For the rest, a charming suit of Oxford cloth in gray with a narrow belt and the slightly flaring sleeves which sometimes take the place of the long tight ones. These narrow belts are, by the way, strongly featured in late models. Some of the imported models show them, too, of leather.

It is quite noteworthy that nowadays the best dressed women do their own fur seasoning. Their suits are plain and the scarves are added unto them. Even when fur is used, there is a tendency to limit it to the collar. Some of these new fur collars are to laugh. Bulloz, the French designer, has, for instance, created one which he calls the funnel. This generally comes up to the mouth and the effect is that the lady has been poured into it and is just running over a little at the top.

One Fifth avenue designer is, however, making use of a great deal of fur on both his suit and wrap models. Not the lordly sable, or the other high priced pelts—not for a minute! He is using coney, muskrat, and nutria, making deep bands of them on creations of duvetyn, velveteen, cashmere velours and silk matelasse. He calls this wartime economy. Well, perhaps the cheap pelts do save the expensive wool. Yet the number of absurdities which go under this name of wartime economy justify us in a little skepticism:

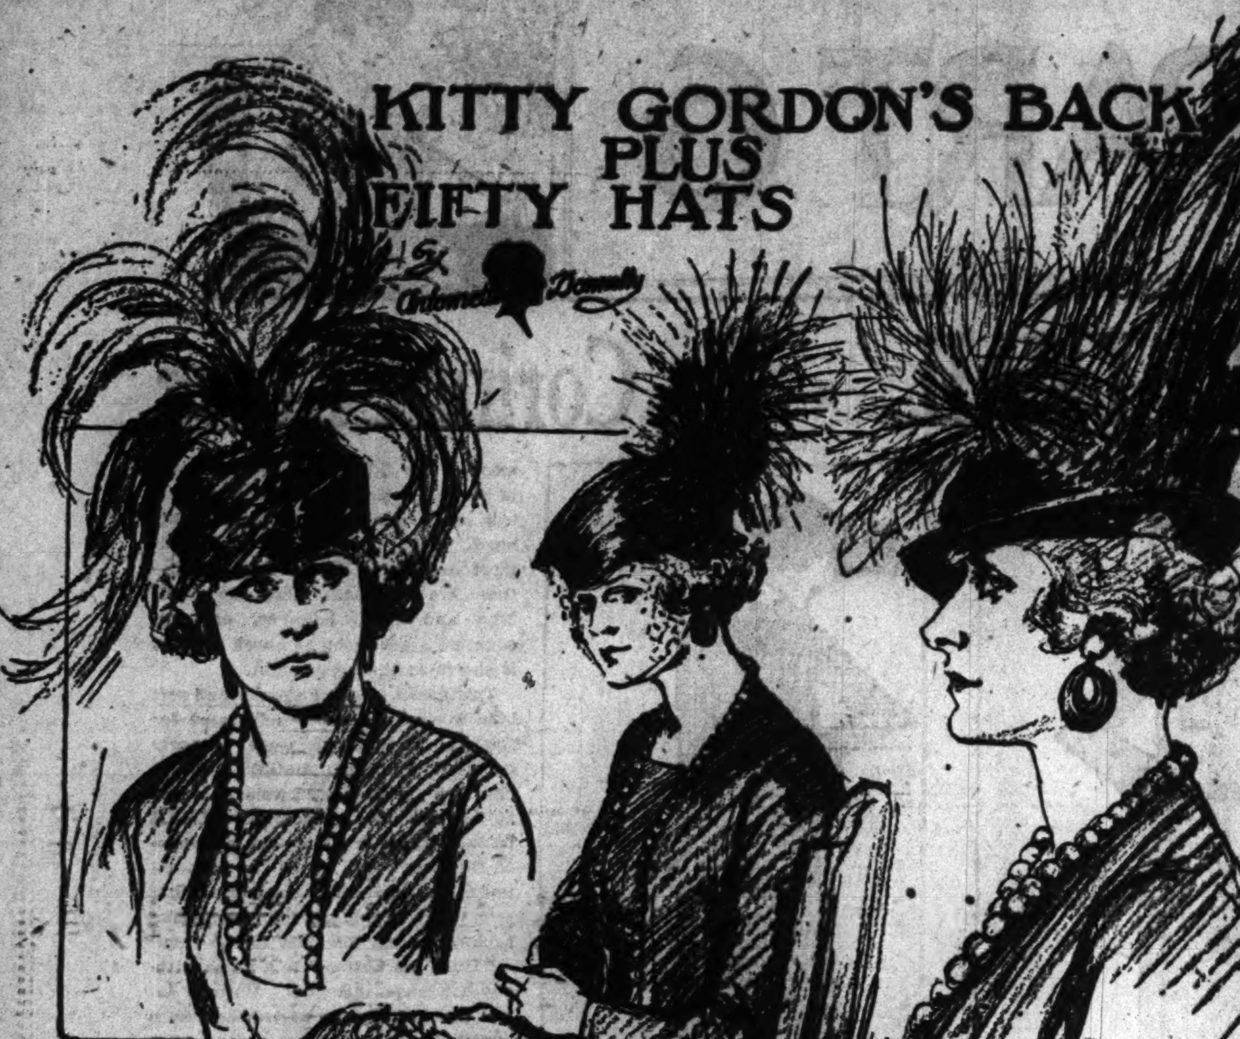
KITTY GORDON'S BACK PLUS FIFTY HATS

By Antoinette Donnelly



ASK any daughter of Eve her honest idea of Paradise and if she doesn't agree 'tis a beautiful orchard bearing a half dozen crops a season of hats so she may step out in the morning and pick off a beauty and again in the afternoon pick off another, then she's no daughter of Eve!

'Twere Paradise enow to have glimpsed some of the fruit from Kitty Gordon's hat Eden!

Fifty of them she had with her en route to California. Each of them more productive of "Ums! Isn't that a dream?" than the last one. I'd say Kitty Gordon were the best hatted woman in the world! Because they are her hats and like unto those of no other woman's. Which we women know to be the epitome of hat art, don't we?

Her trick of getting them to look like her own individual hats she confessed to be that she has them built on her head while she waits! She tries on a shape or has one made "on purpose," and then the ornamentations are applied to bring out every best point in line and structure.

They're all small hats! Small shapes, rather! For some of them are so gorgeous and tall a diminutive phrase would not apply at all in the description. But for picture reasons Miss Gordon evades large brims, for they cast shadows that movie producers object to. And, as she says herself, her life nowadays is nigh all studio life her clothes and her hats must be built for that demand.

Miss Gordon was a stunning looking creature in the street clothes in which I saw her. To begin with, she's about 5 feet 7, with a beautiful figure. Size 38, with straight shoulders and slender waist and hips. She was wearing a dark blue tricotine suit dress, than which you couldn't imagine anything more smartly tailor made. Severely plain coat and the new narrow long skirt. A black smooth hatter's plush turban with a stunning big "fancy" of ostrich at its center left topped her reddish brown hair. She wore a pair of tortoise shell hoop earrings and a long string of reddish amber beads.

Her hair is lovely and her skin is as fine grained and clear as an infant's. And not a line in her face or neck!

Miss Gordon carried along with her twelve trunks of clothes, including lovely negligees and lingerie and shoes, admitting ownership of eighty pairs. A pair for every dress and a few leftovers, possibly to tide her over when some were at the repair shop. She likes black shoes and stockings best. At least that's what her heart (and her feet) has turned to in the last couple of seasons. She was about the first to launch the light colored footwear a few years ago when the Gordon grays were named for her.

Miss Gordon never wears the same dresses in two pictures. Her expensive wardrobe is her business. Even in wartimes she cannot afford to economize in her screen clothes. But don't think her head is built for carrying hats that cost anywhere from $100 up to $650 alone. There is quite a load of gray matter to be supported by her long, slender throat. Her husband is in the war, as is her brother; a nephew was just awarded the D. S. O., and another was recently killed. She war works every minute she has to spare, and she donates generously to every war cause.

Kitty Gordon without her back—well, one just doesn't think of a spineless Kitty. I'm sorry I cannot report on it au natural, but it's my opinion she can thank that trained back of hers for her youthful figure. It is youthful. She stands as a back was originally planned to keep one standing—straight as a die. And when she sits her back never slumps on its job. The consequence is that her chin is held up as an anti-double chin should be held up, and no telltale signs of birthdays will be registered there for some time to come, providing Kitty's back keeps up its good work.

Miss Gordon designs her own clothes pretty much. The suit she was wearing was of her own designing and it was clever work, I repeat. If any preference in colors, it is for green, the soft shades, which ought to be most flattering to her hazel green eyes.

At school the twins are in the first grade. Jane is quite talkative while John is much more quiet and sedate.

Arriving home, Jane said, "Mother, John didn't have his lesson this morning."

"Well," haughtily replied her twin, "you talked so much I forgotted it."

Seward is a favorite in the neighborhood. One afternoon he was wending his way homeward and dinnerward, accompanying himself with the most heartrending howls and mournful noises.

A young neighbor, thinking something dreadful had happened to him, called out, "Why, what's the matter, Seward?"

He called back, "O, nothing! I'm just happy!"

It takes a small boy to take the conceit out of one. Being a little stout and not often well pleased with myself, on one occasion when wearing a new gown I asked my small son if I did not look rather well. He eyed me for a moment, then took the starch out of me by asking, "Are you not just a little wide across the skirt?"

There were guests for dinner at Robert's home, so he felt an unusual interest in what they were going to have for dessert. Every now and then he would lean anxiously toward his mother and ask in loud whispers what the dessert was to be.

"Wait and see," his mother would reply. "Wait and see."

At last it was time for the dessert to be brought it. The lad watched the maid impatiently as she served the guests with fruit and cakes. When she came to serve him with some he pushed her hand away and exclaimed disappointedly: "No! No! I don't want any fruit. I want some of the 'wait and see.'"

A small miss was having lunch with her father. For dessert he ordered ice cream for her. A huge dish of it was placed before her, and her father remarked, "My, that's a very large dish for a small girl."

She replied, "That's just the size dish I wanted."

Charley had twin cousins of his own age. The twins looked much alike and were neat and clean. Charley's mother said to him, "Why, Charley, look how nice your cousins look and how dirty you are!" Whereupon he answered, "Well, mother, they just need to look at each other to see how they look and I have no one to look at to see if I look right."

A Long Search.

One morning when in Chicago I was hunting for a big store. I became lost and asked an officer on a street corner where it was. He pointed it out to me and I went and did my buying there and left to spend the rest of the day about town. Late in the afternoon I started to look for the store again and I got turned around, so I asked a policeman where it was. He looked at me and exclaimed, "My God, man, haven't you found the place yet?" It happened to be the same officer and he thought I had been looking around all day.

He Wouldn't Budge.

I was usher in a theater. While I was standing by my post the most beautiful girl I had ever seen came in and took a seat near me. While the show was going on a man entered and sat down beside her. She acted as though she did not care for his company, so I told the man to move on. He politely said, "Mind your own business, this is my wife."

Why He Hesitated.

I was in my teens and a young man had asked to accompany me home from church. Upon arriving at my home I noticed he lingered and seemed to hesitate taking his departure. Finally he made a bold confession, saying he was afraid to go home alone. My most embarrassing moment was when I had to arouse my father from his bed and ask him to accompany my escort home.

ETIQUETTE

by ELIZABETH VAN RENSSELAER

Any question on etiquette will be answered if you write to Elizabeth Van Rensselaer, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply, inclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

LIKE KNIGHTS OF OLD.

NOT long ago I had occasion to notice at quite close range the manners of a boy from the farming region of a nearby state. He was a nice lad, thoughtful, unselfish, quiet, and altogether the right kind, but his manners were, like the Indian of the tiny girl's story, "simply 'trocious!

First of all, boys, remember to stand up whenever a woman enters the room where you are, or, if you are in a restaurant and a member of the fairer sex comes to speak to some one at your table, whether you know her or not, go up to offer her your seat and remain standing until she either sits down or goes. Always be "on your toes"—as they have it in military parlance—when there is a woman present, to see that she be not standing while you are sitting down.

If you are in a motor and a feminine passenger wishes to get out or approaches to get in, be sure to hop out instantly to give her assistance. Even if you know she does not need help any more than the proverbial cat needs three tails, it is up to you to be ready to give it.

If a woman drops her glove, her "hanky," her purse, or anything she may be carrying, it is the man or boy in the case who must be Johnny on the spot to pick it up for her. Try not to let her even have time to bend over for it. Such are the vagaries of womankind that these little things flatter their vanity and please them!

M. L.: Upon receipt of an addressed stampel envelope, I shall be happy to mail you a list of reliable books on etiquette. Your request for them came unaccompanied by such an envelope, so I was unable to comply with it.

WHAT ARE YOU DOING TO WIN THE WAR?

STAND BY AND BUY A BOND.

THERE were two of them, "little and slender, and well under 20," as the young man of a recent novel aptly described his ideal girl. They were charmingly and quietly dressed. They were discussing—as who is not these days—the war.

"Enter," said the thoughtful one gravely, "the fourth Liberty loan. That means a chance to buy another bond."

The blue eyed one looked frankly amazed. "You're not thinking of buying another? Why, you already have three! I simply can't afford it." And she veered away from the subject, to prattle gayly of the brown velour with beaver collar that was such a wonderful bargain, and that she was determined to have.

The thoughtful one was silent for a moment or two. Then she launched into what could not be termed a tirade, because it was too quiet to deserve that name—a gentle little lecture on practical patriotism it was—and by the time she had finished the brown beaver was relegated to the hall of dreams and last season's dark blue brought to light and mentally refurbished.

All of which points the moral: Wear last season's costume if need be, and buy a bond.

Have you heard the new Liberty loan song at the "community sings" in the theaters? It has a thrilling refrain, with a strain of the Marseillaise in it:

"March on—march on—for your land and mine!"

We can't do any of the marching, but we can and must stand by. Stand by and buy a bond!

Investing with Uncle Sam.

Now that the needs of the country are so great, I have tried to help during vacation by looking up odds and ends about home, such as old iron, paper, rags, etc. All these, when figured up, soon accumulate money to buy several thrift stamps at a time. I have, further, tried to do my bit by running errands, helping about housework, and the like. However small these items are, if turned into cash they soon take the form of a war savings stamp if invested in Uncle Sam's treasury. This I tried to do with spare cash, and feel it a consolation that I am helping the boys over there. M. M. K.

Backing Up the Boys.

I am a girl of 14 years and am trying to do all I can to win this war. I have given up my three brothers to Uncle Sam. Two of them are in the army and the other one in the navy. One of my brothers is in France.

I belong to the Junior Red Cross and have cut up pieces of goods to fill pads and pillows for the soldiers. I also made a scrapbook for the soldiers.

At present I am knitting a helmet for the Red Cross.

I am saving my money and have bought a war saving stamp and have ten thrift stamps. I buy little candy, so save in that way.

Mother has made over some of my last year's dresses to make them do for this year. I help mother with the housework so she can find time to knit and work at the Red Cross rooms.

I am going to be saving with school paper this year and buy thrift stamps with the money I would ordinarily spend. A. G.

SPANISH OR FRENCH.

THE war has given the business girl a broader and more interesting outlook, as far as her work is concerned, than she had ever before. The entire United States is hardly large enough to encompass her ambition, and she is beginning to feel handicapped because she does not speak or read another language besides English.

The following letter, received during the last week, is typical of the letters written by the ambitious girls of today, and is an example of the efforts they are making to achieve success:

"Dear Miss King:—I am a stenographer earning $20 a week. I feel, from the work I have been doing that I merit advancement, but I see no prospect of bettering myself at the present time.

"So much has been said of the future development of South America, and even Spain, that I am inclined to take up the study of Spanish. Friends have advised me to take up French. I have not had the opininon of any business men on the subject, but it seems to me that in packing industries such knowledge might merit consideration. I am accustomed to handling correspondence without dictation, and desire to work along this line toward a better position with some large commercial institution. Whichever language I take up, I desire to study thoroughly, for purely business purposes. I have thought more seriously of Spanish than of French.

Whether Spanish will be of greater value to the business girl than French depends a great deal, of course, on after-the-war conditions. The knowledge of either language will be a great asset to her at any time, but at present it is hard to judge of their relative advantages.

However, since the writer of the above letter desires to study the language for purely commercial reasons, I would suggest Spanish, as it is in demand for certain of our industries which are either produced or marketed in South America. Also, Spanish is not so difficult a language to acquire and, as it can be learned in a shorter space of time, it can be more quickly turned to advantage than French.

I would advise L. S., if she takes up Spanish at this time, not to give up the idea of learning French, but when one language has been mastered to start on the other.

REAL LOVE STORIES

THE POSTPONED WEDDING.

> Do you know a real love story—one that is stranger than fiction? It is the idea that is wanted. No attention will be paid to literary style. "The Tribune" will pay $5 for every story published. No manuscripts returned. Address Doris Blake, "The Tribune," Chicago.

MARIE was one of the most prominent members of the younger set of a small college town in Indiana, and Bob was a student at the university there. During Bob's four years at the university he was Marie's most ardent admirer, but friends of both young people were of the opinion that Marie was really in love with another student at the university. So when, just before graduation in June, Bob and Marie announced their engagement, it came as a surprise to their friends.

Soon after graduation Bob enlisted in the field artillery branch of the United States army and was sent to Fort Benjamin Harrison for training. He received a commission as first lieutenant at that camp and was immediately transferred to New York. Rumors were soon afloat that the men from the eastern camp were soon to be sent abroad, so Bob telegraphed his fiancée to come to New York and they would be married before he sailed for France. Marie, accompanied by her mother, reached New York only to be informed that her husband-to-be had sailed the night before. So, discouraged, and nearly heart broken, Marie returned to the dull little college town to await word from Bob.

A month passed and Marie had no word from him, but finally she was notified that he was in France and had been placed in the front line trenches. She heard from him regularly for several months, but suddenly letters ceased to come from him.

Marie was anxious and worried and the days dragged slowly, until one day an unexpected message came for her. It was a telegram from Bob from New York, saying that he had been sent back to the states to act as an instructor in one of the training camps here and would arrive at her home the following day. So when Bob reached the home of his fiancée a minister was waiting and they were quietly married. The next day they left for a western camp and are living there happily. F. H."

Camp Stories Contest.

Then Her Jaw Fell.

Soldiers are subjected to much questioning by visitors. One cavalryman at a camp was approached by a pert little miss and patiently answered any number of questions. Finally she asked: "And why do you wear that strap under your chin?" The soldier replied: "Well, you see, miss, my chin has got so weak from answering foolish questions that I have to wear this strap to hold it up." M. E. H.

> Your son, your brother, your husband, or your sweetheart in the service undoubtedly has told you some amusing incident that has occurred in his camp. Undoubtedly, too, there are ever so many stories originating in camp that are still untold. This contest is especially open to the soldier himself if he has a good camp story to tell. It is open also to every one who has been told a good camp story of actual happening. "The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published. Write on one side of the paper. No manuscripts returned. Address Camp Stories Editor, Chicago Tribune.

One Way Out.

Two bluejackets were in the washroom washing clothes, preparatory to the weekly inspection. They were both regulars and had enlisted for four years. One of them had been in the service one year, and was rather tired of being on the station so long, and expressed his sentiments to that effect. The other, looking up at his discontented "buddie," said, "Well, if you don't like it, give three years' notice and quit the navy." W. H.

In Perfect English.

Private Speedy, formerly a New Orleans citizen, and a late arrival in France, happened to walk alongside of two French appearing girls and remarked to his pal, in a tone loud enough to be heard by the girls: "Aren't those two girls pretty? I could learn to love them." Whereupon the girls turned around and one said in perfect English: "For the love of Mike, cut it out. How do you get that way?" Speedy retreated in great haste. B. G.

The TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

EDITED BY JANE EDDINGTON

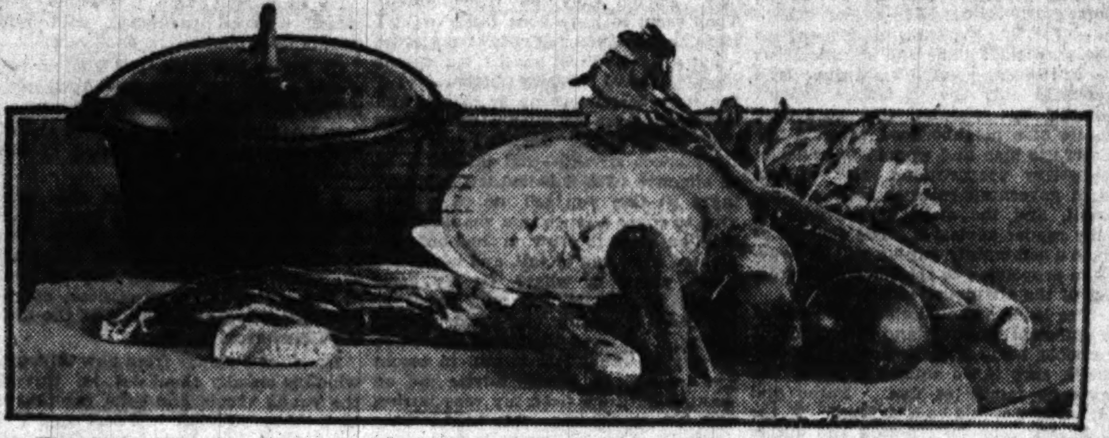
LEAN MEATS AND FAT.



The stew kettle, one pound of shank beef and piece of fat, the vegetables and the seasoned flour in which to roll the meat cut in pieces before sauteeing it.

LOOKING to our food table, in order that we may compare per cents of fat and calories in medium fat chuck rib, including the shoulder, or the next cut to chuck rib, with a wider lean portion —we find that there is 18 per cent of fat on the chuck rib and only 11.9 per cent of fat on the other part. This accounts for the fact that the edible part of the chuck rib yields 1,620 calories, while the other cut yields only 868 per pound. In other words, one may get almost twice the heat and energy for the day's work from the chuck rib as from the other cut. What other thing is there in the world that people buy with so little knowledge of its differentiated services as food!

And let us notice the caloric worth of a medium fat piece of round steak. As purchased it is reckoned that it averages 895 calories per pound, while the edible portion averages 950 calories. There is no reason why almost every bit of round steak from a corn fed animal should not be edible, and particularly should it not be forgotten that the marrow even in the thinnest cut of the bone should be utilized as food.

Round steak is half of the time ground up for hamburger steak. In this case the visible fat is cut off. Much fat in hamburger cakes makes them crumbly, but if flour is mixed with the meat this difficulty may be largely overcome, as in the case of sausage. If the butcher grinds the steak he may trim off most of the fat and not include it, unless requested to, when he wraps your meat.

It is probably possible to take away half the calories from a piece of medium fat round steak by trimming off the visible fat. Of course, this would not be possible when the round was lean and from a grass fed animal. Nature has not put on the trimming, so the yield of lean round in calories is only 540 per pound, and the two leans differ greatly as to the amount of invisible fat present; much in one, little in the other.

Beef stew is considered an inexpensive dish. It is combined with a healthful balance of vegetable. Its flavor is extended, but its calories remain the same. Let us compare for calories Hamburger cakes made of one pound of medium fat round steak, put through our own food chopper, and a beef stew made from a pound of beef cut from the hind shank of the same animal and costing 30 cents a pound, while the round cost 40. The shank averages 11.5 per cent fat; the round 13.6 per cent; or the first yields 875 calories per pound and the second, having more fat, 950 calories.

In general, as cooked, the beef stew and the Hamburger meat cakes would be considered equally common fare. The chopped meat is not always extended by vegetables as is the stew and yet it is made to serve more persons or may be. The amount of stew made from one pound of meat is rarely considered enough for more than four or five people. A pound of Hamburger steak extended with an onion and some cooked oatmeal may be made to serve from six to eight people. As for that, we might call the stew a ragout and in the way we serve it enhance its quality not a little—say in a casserole with diamond shaped pieces of toast as a garnish.

We may take great advantage of the so-called frills in making up our Hamburger cakes. The cakes pictured had more oatmeal than is desirable when they are to be made into imitation birds, as they well may be, but not so much that even fussy eaters of meat would notice it.

a socle of white cornmeal, and garnished with celery and parsley. After making six, we had enough left to make two more from the one pound of steak ground at home, one-half cup of rolled oats cooked in one cup of water for one hour and cooled, one teaspoon of salt, one-fourth teaspoon of paprika, and one onion put through the food chopper. The cakes were floured, hot fat basted over them, and baked in a hot oven. A mushroom or other sauce may be served with such cakes, but they are palatable with mashed potato and particularly with mashed squash.

It is easy to mold such cakes into the form of little birds, which those in the picture do not look like because so much oatmeal was used. With half as much as above these cakes, if molded into birdlike shape, do look much like birds and may be called Hamburger quail. You will not want to call them anything but birds once you essay the molding.

To mold them make a cake, pressing the top side into a sharp medium line for the breast line; put them in a greased frying pan and with a small knife try making indentations at one end to represent the thighs of the bird, and the other end smaller ones for the wings. It is good fun. Perhaps you will remark, as the girl did I set to the task, "Now I know why I took a term of clay modeling." But you can do it without having had that experience.

An even more frilly way to prepare a little meat is to cut calf's liver and bacon into little squares, string them on a skewer (en brochette), season them with seasoned oil, and then broil them on a grill or an imitation grill in the shape of a small wire rack over a small pan. Ten cents' worth of calf's liver, with about the same amount of bacon, can thus be made to serve four or five people. For any woman who likes to do pretty things instead of expensive, because the pretty things show so much skill and individuality, this is one of the things she might well try.

With either the birds or the liver and bacon may be served an elegant though inexpensive accompaniment in the shape of frozen horse radish. Put the horse radish through the finest knife of the food chopper, saving the juice, and mix the whole with an equal quantity of whipped cream. Pack into a jelly glass which can be tightly covered, and pack in ice and salt for two or three hours. Unmold and serve as you choose. An amount equal to one or two tablespoons is enough per person.

Again I would recommend circular No. 206, put out by the agricultural experiment station of the University of Illinois, on "Essentials in the Selection of Beef." And I do not know of anything finer printed on the meat cuts and other meat facts than bulletins 147 and 158 of that same institution. The first is "Market Classes and Grades of Meat," and the second is "Relative Economy, Composition, and Nutritive Value of the Various Cuts of Beef."

Not until people take an interest in the relative nutritive value of different cuts of meat—that is, become truly intelligent about meats—is there much need to tell them how to make frilly dishes, but some have learned these things, so we give frilled helps for them. They will universally be found to use meats economically as well as elegantly.

A FRIEND IN NEED

> I want to be the medium through which the friend in deed and the friend in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy, and you would gladly give it if you knew how to go about it. Write to me and I shall be only too happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.

Useful to Somebody.

"I have some articles that some one may find useful if they can call for them. There are several dozen jelly glasses and mason jars, several French books, and a number of unframed pictures. A. M."

The address of this kind correspondent will be furnished on request.

Wants Electric Percolator.

"Do you suppose you could get an electric percolator for me? My household goods were in storage for nearly two years, and when I moved them I found nearly all my cooking utensils were lost. I can manage to live, but am unable to replace such things. I am 67 and cannot go out to work. My small income seems to grow smaller every day. I can pay postage or call for the percolator if in the city. "N. C. V."

Needy age has an unfailing appeal for all of us. A percolator evidently would be a boon for this woman.

Used for Bandages.

"Is there a kind reader in our midst who has old white silk or silk underwear on hand which they cannot use? It is to be used for bandages for a sick elderly person. Must be white. "E. R. K."

Silk can be used to excellent advantage, can't it? I know that any woman who has discarded pieces will be happy to contribute them to this most worthy case.

* *

Needs Violin Case.

"My son is in the navy and has asked me to send his violin to him, but I have no case. If any reader has an old leather violin case, I would be glad to call for it or pay charges on it, as music whiles away many lonely hours. T. K."

Copies of Old Songs.

Is there some friend who has these two songs, "Blue Bell" and "When We Were Two Little Boys," that they could send to me? My mother used to sing them to me and she would like to hear them played on the piano. But I am unable to get them anywhere. I do not know who wrote them because they are so old. I would certainly appreciate it. M. C. B.

I do not know the songs, but I am sure some one in our big family will have heard them at some time and will let our correspondent know.

Books on Salesmanship.

"Regarding the wants of J. I. B., I wish to state that I have a complete set of booklets on salesmanship. These should be of great help to him, as I purchased them from a university and will gladly pass them on if you will furnish me with his address. "W. L. E."

J. I. B. has been taken care of, I am glad to say, so I am printing this kind offer, for the benefit of any one desirous of obtaining books on salesmanship.

Pattern for Quilt.

"I want a pattern for the blocks of a tulip quilt or an attractive basket of flowers pattern. Do you suppose readers could send me such patterns and would not mind doing so? I know there must be some dear old lady who has all kinds of fascinating quilt patterns, and all the old ladies I know are alwaps glad and happy to be nice to some one. If we of the younger generation were only as anxious to make others happy, we'd be happier ourselves. Isn't it so? M. R. B."

A nice tribute to the last generation! I am sure proud owners of quilt patterns cannot resist a plea couched in such flattering terms.

Better Housekeeping

By Mary Bronson Hartt.

IRONING ACCESSORIES.

IRON holders need a sheet of nonconducting asbestos sandwiched in between the layers of old stockinette covered with ticking. There should be several at hand in case one gets mislaid or scorched.

A combination iron rest, cleaner, and waxer, is made by tacking to a board a square of fine emery paper, a braided rug made from strips of ticking to rub the iron on, and a broad, flat sheet of parafin under cheesecloth. If the ironing board is a fixture, it would be nice to fasten this device to a projecting bracket, so it need not take room on the sheeted surface.

The first cost of a realy good wringer is more than made up by its long term of service—almost a lifetime with reasonable care. After each use the rolls must be eased. If the screws were left tight the rubber would flatten. A dipperful of water poured over the rolls to remove any trace of soap, must not be allowed to wet the bearings, which, by the way, want occasional oiling. Wiped carefully and allowed to dry, the wringer may be tucked up in a neat cotton cover to keep from dust. Stains on the rolls will come off with kerosene. But beware! Kerosene works on rubber like alcohol on white spots on a varnished table—by dissolving a film of the surface. Rub lightly with a cloth moistened in the oil, then promptly wash the rubber.

For those who can pay for them there are wonderful copper wash boilers fixed permanently over their own gas heaters, with hot and cold water running in and draining out like a bath tub. The best of these have a steam vent so that when the cover is on the steam all goes up the chimney.

Even a commonplace old portable wash boiler may be filled through a short length of hose screwed on the cold water spiggot, and emptied through a faucet soldered into one and near the bottom. If this faucet was provided with a screw thread, the water might flow off through hose into a laundry tub, or directly down the drain in the cement floor.

LEARN A LITTLE AND SAVE A LITTLE EVERY DAY

By Elizabeth O. Hiller

RECIPES FOR SAVING MEAT.

MISCELLANEOUS recipes for saving meat, making a little go a long way, are given below. The first is for meat popovers, extending a small measure of meat:

Mince fine cold veal or chicken (there should be one cup). Beat two eggs until thick and lemon tinted, add gradually one cup of flour sifted with one-half teaspoon of salt and a few grains of cayenne. Add gradually one cup of milk, beating constantly with an egg-beater. Beat batter two minutes. Remove beater and fold in the meat. Turn mixture into well greased, hissing hot iron gem cups, filling them two-thirds full. Bake twenty-five minutes in a hot oven. Serve immediately with brown gravy.

Fried Salt Pork with Creamed Potatoes

Select a piece of salt pork with streaks of lean here and there. Cut in thin slices and slice in halves crosswise (this will make pieces about three inches long by two inches wide). Cut four gashes in the rind equal distances apart. Mix two parts of cornmeal and one part of flour. Roll pieces of pork in mixture until well coated, then arrange pieces in a hissing hot iron frying pan and cook until crisp and evenly browned, turning often. Remove from pan and strain fat through a double fold of cheesecloth laid over a fine sieve. Put two tablespoons of the strained fat into a saucepan, add two tablespoons of rice flour or three of cornstarch, stir until well blended, then add gradually one and one-half cups of scalded milk, stirring constantly; bring to boiling point and season with one-half teaspoon of salt, a few grains of white pepper, and one tablespoon of butter in small bits, while stirring constantly; add one-half teaspoon of finely chopped parsley and two cups of small cold boiled potato cubes. When heated through, turn in a mound in the center of a warm chop platter, arrange pork cutlets around mound, and garnish with sprigs of parsley. Serve at once.

* *

Noodles with Ham.

Cook noodles in boiling salted water until tender (about twenty minutes). Drain in a colander, pour cold water over them, lifting noodles with a fork to allow water to run through them. Drain. Butter a baking dish or casserole, dust over with a layer of fine soft bread crumbs, cover with a thick layer of noodles, then a layer of finely chopped (not ground) boiled ham (there should be one cup packed solidly), then the remaining noodles. Pour over one-third cup of cream and cover with a layer of soft buttered bread crumbs. Bake one hour in a moderate oven; cover the first half hour of cooking. Remove cover and continue cooking until crumbs are brown.

In this way meat is saved, and yet a highly nutritious dish is made that will serve five portions.

* *

Baked Sweet Apples.

Wipe and core eight sweet apples; arrange in a baking dish and fill cavities with white corn sirup, allowing two-thirds cup of sirup for that number of apples. Add one cup of boiling water; cover and bake in a moderate oven three hours. Add more water as needed. Serve hot or cold with cream.

* *

A Delicious Fish Salad.

Mound the remnants of cold boiled blue fish, fresh salmon, haddock, etc., in the center of a cold, shallow serving dish. Surround with a double row of thinly sliced cucumber, place small figures cut from pimentos in the center of each slice of cucumber in the outer row. Serve with sour cream salad dressing.

* *

Baked Stuffed Cucumbers.

Cover thick green cucumbers (six inches long) with cold water, let stand until crisp. Pare, cut them in halves lengthwise, remove the seeds and soft portion, being careful to retain their boatlike shapes. For three cucumbers allow one cup of soft bread crumbs, three tablespoons of melted butter or substitute, one-half tablespoon of finely chopped onion, one-fourth teaspoon of salt, one-eighth teaspoon of pepper and a few grains of cayenne. Mix thoroughly. Sprinkle cucumber boats inside lightly with salt and fill with bread mixture (if the latter appears too dry add hot water by the tablespoon to moisten), rounding it slightly, cover with buttered crumbs, and arrange in a well greased shallow agate pan. Bake in a moderate oven until cucumbers are soft and crumbs are brown. Serve while hot. There will be six portions.

* *

Brown Betty.

Wipe, pare, core, and thinly slice tart green apples that are now in the market (preferably the Duchess). Put a layer of apples in the bottom of a buttered baking dish. Sprinkle with brown sugar and cinnamon or a grating of lemon rind and cover with a layer of soft buttered bread crumbs from the center of the loaf. Alternate the layers of seasoned apples and buttered crumbs until the dish is filled, cover with a layer of buttered crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven one hour. If apples are not sour and juicy to furnish the moisture that will make the pudding of the right consistency, one-half cup of cold water may be added. It will require about three pints of prepared apples and one and one-half pints of buttered bread crumbs. Molasses or maple sirup may be used in place of sugar; allow one-half cup of sweetening to each pint of apples.

* *

Hashed Brown Potatoes.

Heat three tablespoons bacon fat in an iron spider. Chop fine four cups cold boiled potatoes; season well with salt and pepper. Put into an iron frying pan and spread evenly. Moisten top with olive or vegetable oil. Cover spider and cook till well browned underneath. Turn on hot platter top side down.

* *

Piccalilli.

Wash, wipe, and cut one peck of small green tomatoes in slices crosswise. Peel and slice six large white onions. Sprinkle them with salt, allowing one and one-half cups for all. Let stand over night with a weight set above. Drain them in a cheese cloth bag. Put vegetables into an agate preserving kettle. Cover with pure cider vinegar and place on range. Sift together one-half teaspoon of tumeric, one teaspoon of cloves, two and one-half teaspoons of cinnamon, and one pound of sugar, or one can of white corn sirup. Add one red pepper, chopped moderately (after discarding the seeds). Add to first mixture, stir until well blended, and heat to boiling point; let cook until tomatoes are soft, stirring often to prevent scorching. Store in sterilized fruit jars, using new rubbers, and sterilizing both rubbers and covers before sealing jars.

Florentine Stuffed Tomatoes.

Select six large, smooth, firm tomatoes. Wipe and remove a slice from the stem ends, and scoop out the seeds and pulp. Rub the inside of an earthen baking dish or casserole with a bruised clove of garlic, and in it cook (without browning) a finely chopped medium sized onion in a tablespoon of oil or two tablespoons of butter. Add six mushrooms, peeled and finely chopped, two large chicken livers (calves' liver may be used), finely chopped, and a teaspoon of lemon juice. Cook five minutes, stirring constantly, remove from range, add the yolks of two eggs, slightly beaten, and three-fourths cup of soft bread crumbs; season with salt, pepper, and a few grains of cayenne. Fill prepared tomatoes with mixture, rounding it slightly above tomatoes. Cover each with a thin layer of buttered crumbs and bake in a moderately hot oven until tomatoes are soft and filling is well cooked (from thirty to forty minutes).

After the war we will find many of these foreign recipes in use in this country. These offered here will have been reduced to definite proportions, which will prove a remarkable saving of both time and materials for the American housewife who wishes to make use of these delicious viands made "over there," some of which "our boys" will surely have an opportunity of eating that are not included in their "mess."

* *

Spiced Apple Butter.

Follow receipe for making plain apple butter. To one-half gallon add two tablespoons of cinnamon, three teaspoons of cloves, one teaspoon of allspice, two teaspoons of nutmeg, and two cups of sugar. Cook slowly ten minutes, stirring constantly. Great care must be taken that butter does not scorch. Turn into sterilized pint fruit jars; seal and when cold store.

Doris Blake Says

If you were born this week you are

Intuitive.

IF your birthday comes this week you take up the thread of life under the influence of the airy sign of Libra (Sept. 22-Oct. 22). You are refined, artistic, perceptive, most intuitive, a lover of pleasure, beauty, and elegance, harmony and order.

You seem to have the ability to mentally balance and seek to arrive at an impartial judgment on most things. You will be found to compare and criticize everything you see, and in the lower order of Libra this is carried to excess, being irksome to those about you.

This class, though often the best judges of style, elegance, and beauty of dress fabrics and most ornamental things, too often spend the greater part of their lives in prying into other people's affairs and "picking them to pieces." Your curiosity seems insatiable and Libra people will be found at every sale, bazaar, church service, wedding, or funeral of note, observing and comparing every detail of their surroundings, always seeking to draw conclusions; fashion ceremony, convention, family histories, and social scandal seem to be the breath of life to the personal Libran. The good type of Libra shows much sweetness and harmony of nature—justice, courtesy, kindness, generosity, and charming manners being marked.

Your mental powers are good and you are desirous of mental improvement, often becoming accomplished. It is rarely, however, that you study anything outside of your profession deeply, being changeable and subject to many moods and fancies.

You are the people who go by first impressions, which are nine times out of ten correct, owing to your wonderful power of foresight. But you should bear in mind that the tenth time you are not and this should keep you from stubborn prejudice and intolerance of others opinions. It is this characteristic foresight which makes speculators of you, and often with great success, only there is always the chance of the tenth time ruining all the other nine successes.

Libra is a masculine sign and the men are hopeful, energetic, rashly impetuous, and reckless of consequences, sometimes inconstant, mercenary, and passionate, or just the opposite, generous, noble, and deeply religious, but always, whether practiced or not, possessing a wonderful perception of justice, typified by the balance or scales of this sign.

The women are quite different, being retiring, gentle, and anxious, though still energetic and capable, with a great distaste for money matters. They have the clear seeing justice of the men, but both men and women, acting as they always do on first impressions, often form a stubborn prejudice which covers their sense of justice entirely.

Affection is quite necessary to your happiness, and you adore those near to you to the point of absolute devotion. But, to be perfectly happy, you must have the same measure in return. The most congenial companionship for you will probably be found among fire people, Aries, March 22-April 20; Leo, July 23-Aug. 23, and Sagittarius, Nov. 23-Dec. 22; next with those born under your own sign, and lastly with those in Aquarius, Jan. 21-Feb. 19.

Your colors are crimson, black, and light blue; birthstones, opals and diamonds. The two most fortunate weeks in the year for you are those beginning April 13 and Dec. 6.

Standers, Walkers, "Gets-It" for Corns

World Has Never Known Its Equal.

"What will get rid of my corn?" The answer has been made by millions—there's only one corn-remover that you can bank on, that's absolutely certain, that makes any corn on earth peel right off like a banana skin—and that's magic "Gets-It." Tight shoes and dancing even when you have a corn need not disturb you if you apply a few drops of "Gets-It" on the corn or callus. You want a corn-peeler, not a corn-fooler. You don't have to fool with corns—you peel them right off with your fingers by using "Gets-It." Cutting makes corns grow and bleed. Why use irritating salves or make a bundle of your toe with tape or bandages. Why putter and still have the corns. Use "Gets-It"—your corn-pain is over, the corn is a "goner" sure as the sun rises.

"Gets-It," the guaranteed, money-back corn-remover, the only sure way, costs but a trifle at any drug store. Manufactured by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

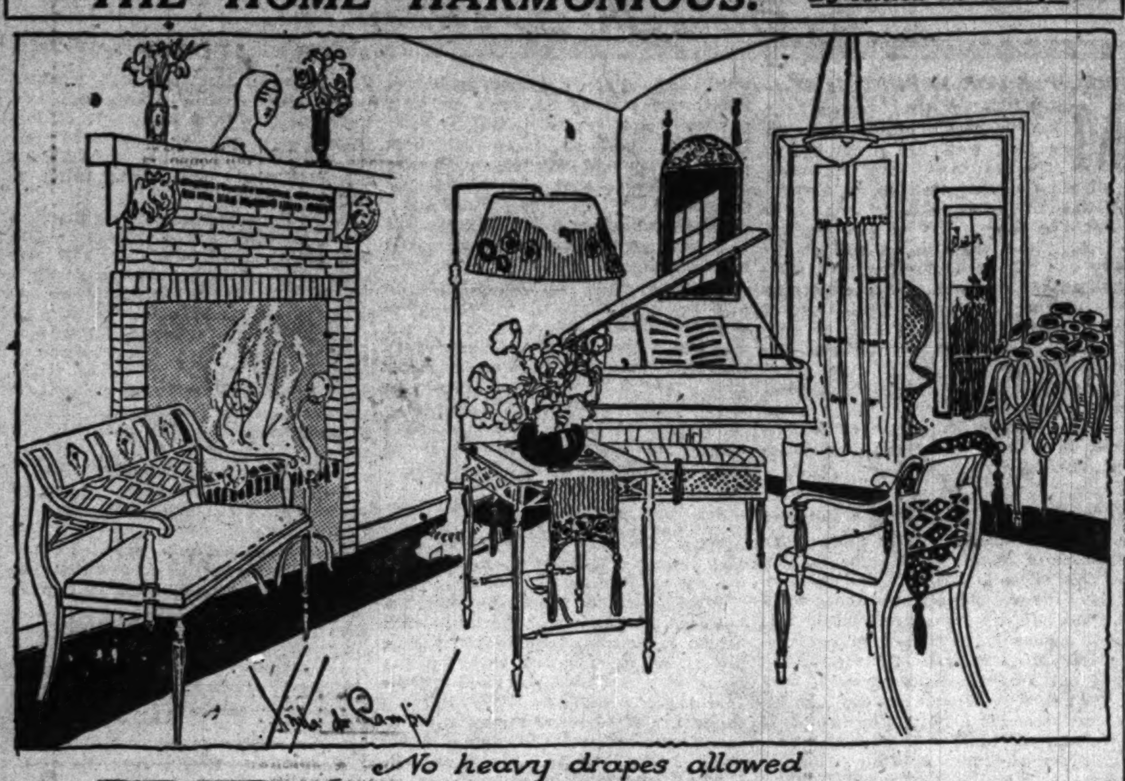
THE HOME HARMONIOUS.

By Anita de Campi.



No heavy drapes allowed

Miss de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problems pertaining to interior decorations. Address your letter to Miss Anita de Campi, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago. Inclose a stamped, addressed envelope for personal reply.

ONE rule holds good for every music room; it must not be padded. The heavily upholstered chair which offers a moment of ease to tired bones and war and work weary brains, has no place here.

From the music room must be banished all heavy draperies and luxurious rugs that naturally interfere with acoustics and muffle notes that should be clear if not clarion. This deletion will be a blow to the old fashioned housewife who draped a three yard length of red and green figured silk over the brow of the upright piano, and anchored it down with a large ugly vase filled with tails, a portrait of Uncle Jeremiah who went to congress, and a wreath of wax flowers protected by a glass dome.

Upon the music room the amateur interior decorator can lavish her full fling of ideas. Manufacturers of pianos are perfectly willing to build a piano case to order if the price paid be sufficiently inflated. The piano in the illustration is in light green lacquer, delicately stippled with gold. The piano bench, table, settee and chairs follow along the same decorative plans and plots, the upholstery being achieved in wistaria mohair velvet. It is not difficult to visualize the effect, with gold framed mirror placed at the back of the piano, gold lamp standard topped with parchment shade done in wistaria and black, and grayed oak floor bordered with walnut. The musician will appreciate such a room as this, with no useless trappings to interfere with perfect sound.

The Louis Seize music room represents the highest art of the cabinet maker, if one cares for the ornate in house furnishings. Or one may prefer Sheraton's form of expression, which had its source of inspiration in Louis Seize styles and effects. There is a striking resemblance between the two not only in decorative motifs, but also in contour. Duncan Phyfe, the American Sheraton, followed along the same lines, and contributed the best and truest element in the work of the American Empire period.

One of the most perfectly appointed music rooms in America is of Louis Seize character. Chairs, stools, sofas, and tables show straight narrow legs, with the rest of the outline arranged in graceful curves and rounded corners, producing a classic purity of structural lines.

All the furniture is of satinwood upholstered with Persian velvet in pastoral patterns. Long sofa and chairs are decorated with the guilloche designs and rosettes, so popular in those tragic days when Louis XVI. and his youthful spouse ascended the throne of France. The decorative motifs of that time were particularly enticing, for there were constantly recurring floral wreaths and ribbons, baskets of flowers, musical emblems, laurels, acorns, and oak leaves. Lyres, vases, and urns also appeared among sundry classic detail. The popularity of striped satins and velvets as clothing and upholstery materials lead Mercier to remark that "everybody in the king's chamber looks like a zebra."

The delicacy of contour of Louis Seize mobilary products lead the designers to an exploitation of ingenuity in order that these frail looking structures might be strong and stanch. They are marvelously well balanced and proportioned, and some of the old pieces now in national museums show clever mechanical devices incorporated with the cabinet work. For the living room, of course, they are utterly impossible. Any normal human man would run miles to get away from them. But for the drawing room, art gallery, or music room they are eminently appropriate, as they reach the high water mark of artistic excellence in design and execution.

The patriotic spirit of the time is reviving an interest in old American furniture such as was produced in the years between 1795 and 1830, and which are known as American Empire styles. Sheraton was passing then as a mode, and delicacy of outline and graceful proportion seemed suddenly to vanish before a mobilary design that expresed dullness and uncouth heaviness. The material and the workmanship were of the best, but the spirit of cabinet art was lacking. Mahogany wrought with vigorous carving pushed aside the more delicate woods, and the American household reveled in furniture that was substantial, even though little else may be said in its favor.

THE SUCCESSFUL HOME GARDEN.

By J. F. H. Heide

Questions on gardening will be answered in this column, if of general interest, or by mail if a stamped envelope is inclosed. Address Mr. Heide, care of The Tribune.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

No. 200.

COMMUNITY GARDENS.

WHILE the home garden may be more convenient of access, the community group of individual gardens has its own advantages to more than offset that. Desirable though it be, it is not absolutely necessary that any one of the community should have garden experience, for THE TRIBUNE proposes to assist with such plans and specifications as will insure profitable results. It is essential only that a leader appoint himself to organize the gardening forces of a neighborhood, select a few energetic men and women to assist in necessary preparations, and enforce such governing rules as soil, environment, and the class of participants may render advisable. The success of such a community garden will be largely in proportion to the force of character of the altruistic leader.

The leaders should obtain the use of a sufficient tract of land to provide, if possible, an area in proportion to one-tenth acre (4,356 square feet) for the average family of five. Paths and driveways would be additional. If the parkway between sidewalk and gutter should not admit of ornamental sowing and planting a suitable portion of the tract could be set aside for community effort in this direction.

Nothing has brought out the characteristically American ignorance of gardening like the present crisis. Obviously the permanent school garden is a crying need of every educational institution—not so much for the foodstuffs produced (though that was by no means negligible even this year) as for its educational value.

In view of the astounding ignorance in such matters, practical gardeners have been as scarce in school circles as without. Hence principals have either lacked interest or feared to place the work in charge of men and women lacking special training—even where vacant land is available.

THE TRIBUNE garden department now proposes, by means of plans and detailed instructions, to render the subject so simple that success is assured without previous training. Every school with an available piece of ground within a reasonable radius should prepare to follow us now, for correct gardening begins in autumn and not in spring.

The details of ideal plans will come in due time. Meanwhile, determine the area required and select the site. In congested districts it may be necessary to content ourselves with less than the calculated area; in that case take what is available and the length of beds will be reduced accordingly.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Q.—(1) I planted Aaron Ward and Killarney roses last spring without fertilizing. (2) Is it true that they should be richly fertilized in holes dug three feet deep, with gravel underneath? (3) They are on the west side of a fence and receive only afternoon sun. Should they be transplanted? They seem to have done fairly well; I have had a number of roses from some —not all. (4) When shall I transplant them? I have read, in October. (5) A few have been eaten up by insects and leaves of others are filled with holes, as I did no spraying. Should I just scatter tobacco around—that is, will it be as effective as if I boiled it for spraying? (6) Can you tell me of a good vine to cover a fence in a shady place? (7) Should ivy, to grow on the house, be planted in spring or fall, and how—use seeds, plants or what? (8) My geraniums, planted in full sun, suddenly stopped blooming in midsummer, though I watered them and the same variety on other lots is still in bloom and larger. (9) Please advise me on making cuttings from my rose bushes and (10) geraniums. (11) Last spring only a few of my peony buds opened out; the rest dried up or died—E. S.

A.—(1) Aaron Ward is a greenhouse rose, not hardy, and rarely survives the winter. Herzogin Marie Antoinette, with old rose flowers, is the only one in the yellow group that is comparatively hardy and even that requires the four inch winter mulch like all hybrid teas. The new Los Angeles is a salmon yellow claimed to be hardy, but it has not been tried out in this vicinity. It is, no doubt, still costly. All the Killarneys are subject to mildew. Article No. 144, July 29, 1917, contains a useful classification of roses adapted to this vicinity, together with a treatise on home rose culture.

(2) They should be richly fertilized and have good subsurface drainage, but eighteen to twenty inches below the surface is ample.

(3) Now is the time hybrid tea rose should be at their best. They require full sun exposure—not in reflected heat near a building or high wooden fence, but in the open. Yours should be transplanted.

(4) Prepare the bed now and transplant—not in October, but during the second half of April.

(5) Tobacco is not a fungicide nor a universal insecticide. It is used in powder form (tobacco dust) or a decoction may be made of it. Nicotine is the active agent in it and that is best applied as a spray in the form of nicotine sulphate, sold under the trade name of "Black Leaf 40." Koch (West Chicago parks) has discovered that a mulch of tobacco stems is the only satisfactory remedy for the rose midge. Use nicotine only for sucking insects, such as plant lice; Bordeaux mixture for mildew; arsenate of lead spray for leaf eating insects. For the treatment of the more common rose diseases and insects see article No. 151, Aug. 5, 1917.

(7) Plant two year old Boston ivy plants in spring, after mid-April, preparing rich soil in holes as for roses.

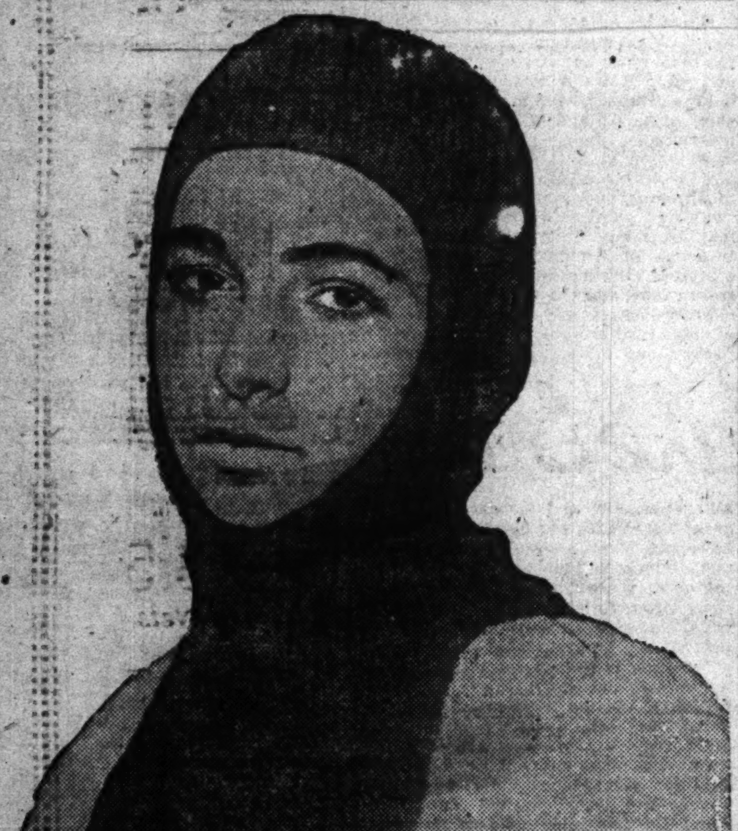
(8) Lack of sufficient moisture and of cultivation during the period of hot drought.

9. Make cuttings after the first blooming and until heavy frost. For detailed instructions on home rose propagation, see article No. 137, July 22, 1917. Back numbers may be seen at the public library (first floor, northwest corner of building) or at the Chicago Historical society.

10. Make cuttings from now till frost, which is usually about Oct. 18. Cut off the young shoots and ends, one-fourth inch below a leaf or leaf scar, one and one-half to four inches from the end. The best cuttings are four to five inches long. Remove all the leaves except the two youngest, insert the cutting in sand or (if that is not available) in sandy soil to cover the lowest eye or two, water thoroughly, and place the box or flat in the sunlight with cheesecloth stretched a few inches above the cuttings to permit free air circulation, either outside or at an open window. After that water only enough to keep the sand barely moist below the surface. When the leaves are revived, in about four days, remove the cloth. When a leaf or stem shows signs of rotting remove the entire cutting. The cuttings will be rooted in three weeks and must then be potted individually in two or three inch pots with good sandy loam. Repot them when root bound, probably in spring, to five inch pots, or plant in open ground.

11. Probably the available plant food is exhausted. Dig a trench around each plant this fall sufficient to contain half a bushel of manure of any kind. Late spring frosts may cause this, though there are varieties which never bloom satisfactorily here.

Patriotic and Practical Needlework.



By Clotilde.

THE HELMET.

About one-quarter pound of wool is required. Any Red Cross shop will weigh it for you. Needles of two sizes are used—for the top, Red Cross needles No. 1, and for the capes, one pair Red Cross needles No. 2. The directions for knitting follow:

With second needle pick up twenty-eight stitches on side of crown.

With fourth needle pick up twenty-eight stitches on other side of crown.

There are now 100 stitches—twenty-four on first needle, twenty-eight on second needle, twenty on third needle, and twenty-eight on fourth needle.

Knit two, purl two, for four and one-half inches.

On the last round, bind off the last two stitches of the second needle, the twenty stitches of the third needle, and the first two stitches of the fourth needle for the face opening.

Knit two, purl two, back and forth for two inches, always knitting or purling the first stitch.

Knit two, purl two, for six inches.

Front cape—On the last round knit (do not purl capes) the last thirteen stitches on the fourth needle, the twenty-four stitches on the first needle, and thirteen stitches on the second needle on to a No. 2 needle. You now have fifty stitches on this needle. Knit thirty-six ridges. Bind off.

Back cape—Slip the remaining fifty stitches on to the No. 2 needle. Knit thirty-six ridges. Bind off.

MOVIE ACTRESSES AND THEIR HAIR

Did it ever occur to you that every movie actress you have seen has lovely hair, while the most popular count their curls as their chief beauty? In fact, many are leading ladies just because of their attractive looks. Inquiry among them discloses the fact that they bring out all the natural beauty of their hair by careful shampooing, not with any soap or makeshift, but with a simple mixture by putting a teaspoonful of Canthrox (which they get from the druggist) in a cup of hot water and applying this instead of soap. This cup full of shampoo liquid is enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just the top of the head. After its use, the hair dries rapidly with uniform color. Dandruff, excess oil and dirt are dissolved and entirely disappear. The hair is so fluffy that it looks much heavier than it is, its luster and softness are delightful.—Advertisement.

AMONG US MORTALS

By W. E. Hill

Amélitta Nimms, who does those frightfully clever recitations in negro dialect, does "Huldy Hoadley at the Barbecue" for a group of French sailors, who don't know any English.

"My land, Carrie, you don't suppose he's gone and married one of those French girls!" Lieutenant Fink's mother asked the "Ouija board" what Fred was doing, and it spelled "Tessie."

If Mrs. Pettie had known that a slacker raid would be on when she and Will arrived in New York, it's a safe guess she would never have put her husband's exemption card with the shopping list on the back in her stocking along with some bills and her jewel bag. Now it looks as though Will would have to go to court with the slackers—unless ———!

"Oh dear, I'm so afraid when the troops come back that they'll overload the docks with the people who come to meet them, and first thing you know the docks will give way and everybody will be drowned!" Even the thought of victory has its drab side for Aunt Sarah.

A good omen! Watching the sunset in the yard of the Laurel Lodge boarding house, Miss Witchie has discovered that the clouds strikingly resemble the American flag—although Mrs. Pudgie thinks it is more like a soldier chasing the Kaiser. Annie the slavey, not quite getting the spirit of the thing, sees a locomotive.

News and Comment of the Theater

By Percy Hammond.

MISS ILLINGTON, peering into the magic globe in "Eyes of Youth" perceives the heroine much drunker in the second act than did Miss Rambeau, the New York player of the rôle. Miss Rambeau found her just a trifle lickered, bearing an edge more benign and dignified than Miss Illington's somewhat disheveled and inarticulate bun, a fever more smartly vinous than the one at the Princess. Thus do our actresses imagine and create the same character in different ways, emphasizing the marvelous plasticity of the histrionic art. Miss Rambeau, studying the character of the opera singer, decided that she had drunk six glasses of champagne; Miss Illington's ruminations over the lady's weaknesses gave her at least twelve. On the other hand, Miss Illington as the wronged divorcee in the last act seems less addicted to drugs than was Miss Rambeau's despairing debauchee of New York. A subtle thing, characterization.

"Eyes of Youth" is a sort of goulash, composed possibly of left-over ingredients from Mr. A. H. Woods' commodious larder. It follows the plan of that O. Henry tale that has three endings. A village belle is perplexed by the several possible futures which confront her—minor pedagogy in the village school, marriage with this man or that, and the Opera. A Hindu soothsayer with a kind heart and a glass ball which foretells the future, permits her to examine these various paths and what she sees is put into the play.

A school room, an opera house, a court of domestic relations, and Broadway in front of Rector's after the theater are among the visions. In the end they advise her to marry Peter Judson, a young mining engineer with lucrative contracts in South America. Almost every one in the audience would tell her to do that in the beginning without the aid of a clairvoyant.

She loses her lover and her job as school teacher to some particularly pernicious stage infants. She acquires married men and the liquor habit as a star of the opera, causing her brother loudly to assassinate one of her seducers. She is trapped in a roadhouse with a dancing master and divorced as the innocent wife of a bad husband. And she learns her proper destiny when Peter Judson picks her up on Broadway, more or less full of morphine, and proposes to make of her an honest woman.

In this last act, which was once a thing called "Her Market Value," exhibited briefly at the Olympic, Mr. Woods returns to the Elizabethan ways of simple scenery. Some stuff with paint upon it is stretched across the stage, suggesting vaguely the front of a building, but above a hole in the middle is written in large letters the word RECTOR'S, so that you know almost immediately that it is meant to represent a New York café. This emphatic manner of identifying scenery would not, probably, be adopted to explain and designate actors. Yet how helpful it might be to tab some of the many anthropoids now visible in plays so that you could know at once that they are supposed to be human beings. The reflection is not inspired by any particular conduct in "Eyes of Youth," since it is at least successfully acted by Miss Illington, with her usual unique elocutionary practices, and many other effective players.

THE Hattons' new drama, "The Walk-offs," is raising the devil in New York, and the blushing newspapers claim that it is tough. That swell "Up Stairs and Down" outfit is at it again, it seems, with their cocktails, cigarets, paint, henna, and animal wit; and one of the ladies poses as a Hatton Salomy, who "forgot six of her seven veils." All the old sins are committed the newest Hatton ways, according to the scribes, who boost the show by calling it "fast," "vulgar," "noisome," and "naughty." The hero is a noble lad from the South whose stalwart chastity relieves the general blowsiness; and there is a little bit of good in the bad little New York girl whom he later retrieves. A vampire is present. The Hattons, in Mr. Harry Harvey's paraphrase, will keep the vampires burning. This one is toasted. The New York Times, in its expostulation, remarks that New York is peopled by two classes—those from the outside on their periodical busts, and the sober residents, who fatten on the profligacy of the middle west.

Now, will you be good!

Have you read about "Private Pettigrew's Girl" in the Saturday Evening Post? Being Dolly Heath of the "Bubbles" company, Private Pettigrew's girl is appropriate to this paragraph. Her insinuating photo in a shop window meets the parched gaze of Private Pettigrew, who is from Tennessee, and lonesome. He meets her in the alley off the stage door and calls her "ma'am," bestowing upon her the service pin purchased for his great-aunt in the foothills. "The rest of that day passed like some rich, dim tapestry, whose pattern, as it unfolds, is lost in the wonder of its own disclosure. Wandering in Broadway——"

Well, eventually they reached Greenwich village, and the old church, "from which issues hospitable musics [the plural] tremulous and sweet," and somewhere between Educator Shoes and Food Shot from Guns Daisy dumps her young millionaire (he was in the navy) for Private Pettigrew.

"God," she whispers, "help me—to be—worthy."

Don't you love it? It's so much more the real N. Y. than anything the Hattons could write.

Another war play headed this way is "Enemies Within," which can boast no less than three authors, and accordingly must be good. Those responsible are Kilbourn Gordon, E. H. Culbertson, and A. H. Van Buren, and William A. Brady will make the production. Mr. Brady incidentally acquired the English speaking rights to the Belmont theater during the last week and now controls three playhouses in a row on Forty-eighth street.

Miss Grace Valentine

Lumiere Std.

Notes of the Shows and Showmen.

Adopting Mr. Cohan's suggestion that "You can't do any business if you haven't got a band," Thomas A. Wise has hired one of them to play in front of the Criterion theater, New York, where he is performing in "Mr. Barnum."

The Y. M. C. A. is most indignant over the insufficient transportation given the performers who are playing for the soldiers in France. "Imagine," says one of the "Y's" press bulletins, "imagine Margaret Mayo and Irene Franklin striding over and around shell holes with Burton Greene and Leo Donnelley following with the costumes and scenery! And all because the middle aged men of America are sitting at the wheel at home instead of overseas with their sons and younger brothers!"

"Richelieu" will be the featured item in a classic repertory with which Robert Mantell hopes to intrigue the patrons of the Shubert theaters this season.

The Four Marx Brothers, residents of this city, propose to eschew vaudeville, in which they are eminent, and to take up musical comedy. At Grand Rapids Sept. 28 they will begin a career in "The Street Cinderella," whose words are by Jo Swerling, once a good reporter for THE TRIBUNE, and music by Egbert Van Alstyne, an industrious composer.

The Bolton-Wodehouse-Kern combination has become one of the things of yesteryear. The new triumvirate probably will be Bolton, Wodehouse, and Hirsch. The last named, at all events, is writing the score for the next Princess theater revue. As a matter of fact he probably has already written it, for rehearsals began last Monday, and even in the case of a revue it is customary to write the show not later than a week after rehearsals begin.

Matters reached a climax between William Collier and his erstwhile management a week ago and the result is that "Nothing but Lies" will presently be presented at the Longacre with some other than Mr. Collier as its star. Collier, it is reported, was dissatisfied with the play, and the management and the author were dissatisfied with the way in which Mr. Collier purposed to change it. Hence the separation. Mr. Collier, so the story goes, will become a Cohan and Harris star and will presently be seen in a farce which George M. Cohan and James Montgomery are concocting for the purpose. A year or more ago Mr. Montgomery was preparing for Mr. Collier's use a comedy having the Ford car as its hero, and entitled "My Ford." Times have changed in the interim, however, and the proposed Collier opus is probably another play.

No less than two huge successes moved into town within two days of each other a week ago, and inasmuch as the total number of tremendous hits in the village prior to that time did not number more than three (and was probably two) the event was something of an achievement. The new pair were "The Unknown Purple" and "The Girl Behind the Gun," which has had a sensational week at the New Amsterdam. The gossipers do say that the fine American hand of George M. Cohan had something to do with the latter piece, but of that there is no corroboration.

Harold Heaton, who once was a cartoonist for THE TRIBUNE and other Chicago newspapers, is now acting the hero in "Eyes of Youth," with Miss Alma Tell, in eastern territory.

"The Big Chance," still somewhere in the offing, is said to have brought A. H. Woods to a greater pitch of excitement than any play since "Friendly Enemies." Its author is Grant Morris, an unknown, but it is said to have been worked over by Willard Mack, who also staged it. It deals with the regeneration of a feminine Broadwayite through the war, and inasmuch as the Selwyns are preparing a play with a similar theme it would not be surprising if it were brought to town at an early date.

In view of the imminent production of "The Better 'Ole" these few words about it from William Allen White are interesting. Mr. White, who considered the play the best of London's theatrical offerings, writes about it as follows in "The Martial Adventures of Henry and Me":

"'The Better 'Ole,' a farce comedy with a few musical skits in it, staged entirely at the front, could be put on in any American town and the fun would raise the roof.

"A soldier comes splashing down the trench. His comrade cries: 'Say, Alf, take your muddy feet out of the only water we got to sleep in.' Again, a soldier squats, shivering with fear, in a shell hole, while the bombs are crashing over him and dirt threatens to bury him. A comrade looks in, and, to his captious remarks, the squatting soldier answers, 'If you knows where there's a batter 'ole, go to it.' Three men seated on a plum jam box during a terrific bombardment. Trees are falling, buildings crumbling, the landscape heaving, and Bert says, 'Alf, we'll miss this old war when it's over.'

"As the shells strike nearer and nearer and a great crater yawns at their feet, they crawl into it, are all but buried alive by the dirt from another shell, and Bert exclaims, 'Say, Alf, scare me—I got the 'icoughs,' and so it goes for a whole evening, while Bert, making love to an interminable string of girls at each place where he is billeted at the front, gives away scores of precious lockets with his mother's hair in them, and Alf forever unavailable, tries to make his cigaret lighter work, and Old Bill dreams of his wife at home, who keeps a 'pub.'

"The prohibitionists in America would probably insist that she keep a soda fountain or a woman's exchange, but no alterations would be needed to get the play over the footlights in any English speaking town on the globe.

SLAMS OF LIFE—By J. P. McEvoy

THE HIGH COST OF LICKER.

It used to be that one could get a mellow point of view
From beaker, cask, or bottle for a dollar, say, or two;
That one could purchase comfort and nepenthe by the quart,
And the bill would not resemble a statistical report.
One didn't have to float a loan or sacrifice the crop
To get that swell reaction where you want to kiss a cop;
The weekly snub would buy enough to clutter up the house,
But now it takes a millionaire to underwrite a souse.

The bibber of the bottle and the chauffer of the can
Was once a lowly member of a poor, benighted clan,
And the clergy climbed his lattice with avidity and vim,
And they brayed him in the mortar of the potent paradigm;
But the beacon on the beezer and the inspissated speech,
Once the signs of destitution, now a different moral teach—
Now to see a lushy geezer makes my jealous pangs arouse,
For today it takes a millionaire to underwrite a souse.

So, reader, should you notice as you walk along the street
A man who seems to suffer with impediment of feet,
A man who stops before you with a light and airy mien,
And presents you to a tiger with a polka-dotted bean,
Do not eye him cold and distant, do not bash him on the hat,
For today the malted mammal is the true aristocrat:
He may be the squiffy scion of an old and honored house—

The TRIBUNE'S WEEKLY ALMANACK

September

Autumn.

THE kingfisher sits watchfully on a dead tree and the chickadee sings in the quivering aspen which in the dead of night whispers to a light wind and sounds as the pelter of rain on shingles.

The soft wind sounds in the Norway pine and days are of luminous grace, odorous and sweet to the senses, gracious to the prospects and endowed for the memory.

Experience is in full fruit and ripe, but the prospect, having no immediate end, is nevertheless entrancing in its promises.

A prospect which comes to the ripeness of its fruit with all the allure with which it offered its fragile shad blossoms and thorn blossoms is a stable prospect substantially endeared in the appreciation which finds the winter of life as desirable as its spring.

There are great splashes of flaming color in the maples. Autumn approaches by intimation, but joviality and jocundity grow in suggestion of substantial comfort. The warblers soon will be in the thickets. The migration which is a symbol of the changes in the ordered fashions of life starts as the leaves which have been given color and drop.

NOERREGAARD IS RIGHT—By Guy F. Lee

["Hindenburg forgot the Americans."—Capt. Noerregaard, European military critic.]

Von Hindenburg worked up a rep among the noble Prussians
By drowning graft-bled armies formed of bureau-ridden Russians;
He was great shakes amid the lakes of the Masurian region,
And up there where he had the edge his prisoners were legion.
With other gallant German chiefs he wiped out little nations,
Receiving from das vaterland untold felicitations.
With double cross and wooden cross the iron cross he gloried,
Until his fame (such as it was) seemed destined to be storied.

Von Hindenburg cleaned up the east, and then the west he tackled;
The British and the French (yah! yah!) were next to be Hun-shackled.
He sloshed around and slammed and rammed and horned in here and hither,
Till all but Foch-Haig-Pershing (inc.) were guessing which and whither.
He sent his royal jiblets, Clown Prince Fritz, to Chateau Thierry,
To blaze the trail to Paris, where they'd eat, drink, and be merry;
For Willie met the "devil-dogs," of whom U. Sam's the owner.

The march on Paris was a dirge, a boomerang, a flivver;
The Huns backed up in record runs o'er river after river;
I'll not enumerate: The press each day detailed the shindy,
But I will say that Noerregaard is right, and so will Hindy!
They plumb forgot, the Heinies did, America, till, bingo!
And now, while time their other blows may heal, I'm here to gamble,
From doughboy tricks and kicks and licks their minds will never ramble!

Dear Editor: In reading over your review of Jack o' Lantern I am struck by a paragraph reading:

"One of them (meaning one of the choristers) was so winning in appearance Saturday night that the audience applauded her for her sheer good looks."

It is gratifying for me to know that you have not reached my advanced years and can, therefore, appreciate and applaud loveliness. I, with the indifference of the London bus man, cannot distinguish which of the maidens was thus alluring on that particular Saturday night, but I feel that if she was that good on Saturday she ought to look equally charming at a photographers after a good night's rest. Can you come here some night and point her out to us, so that I may later, perhaps, win for her an honored place in the Sunday edition of the World's Greatest Newspaper? Cordially,

WILLIAM RAYMOND SILL,
Business Manager Jack o' Lantern.

Notes

Mention of the Saturday Evening Post and the theater recalls the war tales in that journal by Mr. George Patullo. Here is literature that makes all your drama look like the cheap and futile dido that usually it is. Mr. Patullo's story of the United States Marines, a week or so ago, and his last week's classic, "The Zero Hour," contain the elements of literature plus something else, in this humble estimation, and he who reads them and goes to the theater, afterward, will, if he is human, and it is not a musical show, be bored. Mr. Patullo sees well, he writes well, and he knows well the subtle rim between what is and what might easily be. Read one of his adventures and then see "Seven Days' Leave," for example. You will know thereafter what a rouged prostitute the theater is.

John Barrymore is to act the rôle of Feydau in Tolstoi's "The Living Corpse," which under the caption "The Redemption" ought to get a lot of gay money just at this merry [illegible]. It is about aristocratic life in Moscow before Russia became a living corpse.

SHE'S NOW OF THE OPERA

Dorothy Jardon

Miss Jardon is an addition to the roster of the Chicago Opera, and a newcomer in the field, although by no means a débutante of the stage: she is of ripe experience in musical comedy and cognate forms. Whether Mr. Campanini will use her in the coming season in the Auditorium is not certain; for he is otherwise well supplied with principal sopranos in Galli-Curci, Raisa, Mary Garden, Yvonne Gall, and Anna Fitziu.

MATTERS OF MUSIC

TRACING directly to the work John Sousa has done in the last fifteen months at Great Lakes is Gen. Pershing's announced plan to establish in France a school for bandmasters for the American troops. Walter Damrosch, who went over to take charge of an organization of French musicians in the camps, returns with the information that Pershing now believes that the better the band the better the battling, and that the men under him will be better soldiers with better music. The course for bandmasters is fixed at three months, with French instructors. The practice-hall is, says Damrosch, "in an old mill in the Valley of Cabbages." Congress some time ago listened to Sousa and others who know, and decided that a military band should be of not fewer than forty-eight players.

Coming with the orchestra of the Paris Conservatoire is Alfred Cortot, a big man of music in France, and now to be heard in the United States in his special capacity as pianist. Cortot was for years the principal advocate of Wagner's operas in Paris, and was, through his consistent propaganda, responsible for the production there of "Götterdämmerung" and "Tristan." He spent months in study of the operas at Bayreuth, and served for a time as repetitor at the festivals there. He has toured all Europe as a pianist, and is now professor of advanced piano-playing in the conservatoire. He, Jacques Thibaud, and Pablo Casals at one time made up a trio for chamber-music.

This orchestra from Paris is to play twice next month in the Metropolitan opera-house, opening its tour there. That André Messager is coming as conductor has been told in THE TRIBUNE; but the outline of the orchestra's répertoire for the tour contains none of his many compositions. Messager, even in his earlier manner as a master of operetta, is not well known in this country. So far as I know, but three of his pieces have been done here—"La Basoche," which the old Duff company put on back in 1893; "Véronique," in which Louise Gunning and Louis Harrison appeared about twelve years ago in the Studebaker; and "Les P'tites Mischus," which did not get this far: it was sung in New York City as "Two Little Girls." Liszt is the sole composer out of what now are known as the central empires represented in the orchestra's répertoire. Berlioz, Bizet, Saint-Saëns, Dukas, Debussy, Lalo, Cesar Franck, D'Indy, Chausson, and Rimsky-Korsakoff are named for performance.

It may be that Campanini will see an opportunity, when the orchestra is in the neighborhood, to invite Messager to conduct one of the French pieces at the Opera—"Louise," perhaps: he put it on originally when he was with the Opéra-Comique, Paris.

Ysaye, in his capacity as conductor of Cincinnati's orchestra, will, he says, put into his programs, "whenever possible," the work of an American composer. Mr. Stock last season undertook to do that, and found it possible most weeks in the twenty-eight, and occasionally profitable, as with John Carpenter's symphony, Rubin Goldmark's "Samson," and a few other items. He has one each in the first two programs of the coming season.

London managers, fancying that they discern a popular appetite for old operetta, have revived "La Poupée," "The Red Hussar," "Tina," "The Country Girl," and "A Chinese Honeymoon." "La Poupée," one of the later works of Audran, was a notable success in the mid-'nineties in Paris and London, and a dud in this country, where it served briefly as a conveyance for the late Anna Held. "The Red Hussar" dates farther: it was imported in 1890 for the American debut of Marie Tempest. The tunes in it were by Edward Solomon, second in the list of men who married Lillian Russell. He was an industrious chap when comic opera was in its heydey; and his output has long been in the discard. Antiquarians of the theater probably recall his "Billee Taylor," a solicitous cut-in on the vogue of "Pinafore."

The Diaghileff Ballet Russe, badly battered, has found its way back to London, and is performing there in conditions that insure food and lodging, at least, for the dancers. The troupe was a riot of success in ante-bellum London.

A weekly devoted to the stage, Variety, prints a Paris cablegram which tells that Chaliapine, the great Russian basso, is singing in Switzerland under a contract which gives to him as pay 150 pounds of flour per performance.

A reason given for Toscanini's not taking the conductorship of Boston's orchestra is that he resented efforts made by the management to get Sir Henry Wood or Rachmaninoff. Those who know Toscanini well say that he would not be happy in the austere environment of an instrumental ensemble—that he reacts best to the theater, the singing and acting, the light and color and movement of the opera-stage.

Ricci's "Crispino e la Comare," which Campanini is making ready for Galli-Curci; Leroux's "La Reine Fiametta," a novelty; and Stravinsky's ballet of "Petrouchka" are items catalogued for the Metropolitan's new season—which will start on Nov. 11, a week earlier than Campanini's in Chicago. Putting "Petrouchka" into the répertoire is easily explicable: it was, musically, the most successful thing in the American experiment with the Diaghileff Ballet Russe.

Ernest Toy, violin; Frederick Morley, piano, and Hans Hess, cello, in combination as the Chicago Chamber-Music Trio, will start this afternoon a series of five weekly concerts in the Church of the New Civilization, 16 West Jackson boulevard. "Later," Mr. Morley explains in a note, "we shall make a formal debut. We wish to meet the public half-way in gaining its interest in our work."

OFFICIAL WAR FILMS.

By Mae Tinée.

THE value of the official war films being issued by the division of films of the committee on public information can hardly be estimated, so great is it.

The idea behind the films—"Pershing's Crusaders" was the first and "America's Answer" the second—is to reproduce films and photographs to inform the public concerning the vast achievements of the United States government since entering the war. The committee on public information has on hand a constantly accumulating mass of material direct from the other side and is prepared, you see, to give us the actual data of our "over there" as well as "over here" activities.

All pictures taken officially are under strict army and navy censorship. Therefore you know that when a picture bears the stamp of the division of films the authenticity of it is not to be questioned.

In order that America might also serve the allied governments a foreign department of the division was recently organized whereby the official films of Great Britain, France, and Italy will be released in the United States in connection with the United States official films. This foreign department will also release official United States films in other foreign countries. This will undoubtedly bring in a large revenue.

Makers of the average motion picture will do well to sit up and take notice of the manner in which the official films are put out. They are clean cut and workmanlike. Especially should they note the subtitles. No maudlin doddering about here! Punch to every one of them and a laugh whenever a laugh is possible. Watch out for the third of the series. It will be called "Our Bridge of Ships."

"His Birthright," with Sessue Hayakawa," is bringing about the head of that without doubt clever actor a storm of peeve. At least I judge he's not unacquainted with the kind of protests that have made their way to this office. The principal complaint is that it is "not half as good as the pictures he used to make." No doubt about it. Hayakawa has a following, but the popularity balloon must have constant inflation. Once the air begins to ooze out—you know it, balloon!

Mae Allison is compiling a "victory" book in which she keeps a record of American and allied successes.

Y. M. C. A. News sends in the following yarn, which you may or may not have heard before:

"Working with the American troops in a certain sector in France is a Y. M. C. A. movie man who carries a portable outfit in his own camionette. Up and down the line he goes, giving shows in dugouts, barns, tents, wherever he can set up his machine and his curtain and at the same time hide his lights from watchful German eyes.

"He travels along many a road that is under shell fire. Not so many days ago he picked up an army chaplain for a ride to a neighboring outpost. In a few minutes they were on a stretch of road over which the big shells were whizzing.

"'They seem to sing a song,' said the chaplain as he listened.

"'I thought the same thing when I first heard them,' said the movie man.

"'What tune did it sound like to you?' asked the chaplain after a pause.

"'First it was "Home, Sweet Home,"' was the reply.

"'And then?'

"'"Nearer, My God, to Thee,"' said the movie man, swerving his car suddenly to avoid a shell hole."

Here are several pungent questions "lifted" from some advertising matter recently sent in:

"If you were duty bound to marry a man you didn't love, and the man you did love put him out of the way, what would you do?"

"Is it right to shanghai a man because he is going to marry the girl you love?"

"What would you do to the man who shanghaied you from the girl you didn't love and cast you on an island with the girl who was made for you?"

What, O what, would you do?

William S. Hart will be prominent in Liberty loan in this campaign. Not only has he made a propaganda picture, "The Bullet of Berlin," but he is planning to devote almost a month of his time to a tour of the east. He will make speeches, it is said, in most of the important eastern cities, acting upon a request from the government.

The Chicago Tribune.
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER
THE TRIBUNE COMPANY, PUBLISHER.

FOUNDED JUNE 10, 1847.

ENTERED AS SECOND CLASS MATTER AUG. 8, 1906, AT THE POSTOFFICE AT CHICAGO, ILL., UNDER ACT OF MARCH 3, 1879.

All unsolicited articles, manuscripts, letters, and pictures sent to "The Tribune" are sent at the owner's risk, and The Tribune company expressly repudiates any liability or responsibility for their safe custody or return.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1918.

—Stephen Decatur.

THE TRIBUNE'S PLATFORM

For the more speedy winning of the war, and, incidentally, for the present and future welfare of Chicago and the state of Illinois, "The Tribune" urges on the attention and action of its readers the following program:

1. The placing of more and larger war contracts in the middle west, so that industry may be kept busy and the drain of labor to the east and south stopped.

2. The active coöperation to that end of banks, manufacturers, labor organizations, associations of commerce, manufacturers' associations, state and city authorities.

3. Practical aid to more general and permanent habits of thrift and investment of savings, begun by the wide distribution of thrift stamps and Liberty bonds.

4. Active, united, and persistent support by senators and representatives from the middle west in congress of fair and liberal treatment of the farmers of these states.

5. The general acknowledgment of the right of collective bargaining on the part of labor, shorter hours and better working conditions for women in industry, and the abolition of child labor, except as a necessary war measure, and then under strict public supervision and control.

6. Immediate study and adoption of better systems, improved machinery, and the more economical use of raw materials and fuel, so that present and after the war competition may be more easily met by mid-western manufacturers, farmers, and business men.

7. Immediate location and purchase of sites for proposed enlargements and new after-the-war industries, and the passage of necessary ordinances for switch tracks and street vacations, so that construction work may be begun without delay when peace comes.

8. A favorable vote, Nov. 5, on—

(a) The calling of a convention to revise the constitution of Illinois.

(b) The $60,000,000 good roads bond issue.

(c) The ordinance providing an adequate traction system for Chicago.

(d) The bill putting all banks under state control.

9. Complete agreement with government as to Illinois valley waterway and completed plans for its construction.

10. Complete plans, financial and legal arrangements for further extensions of city plan, including railroad terminals, Illinois Central electrification, boulevard link, and other projects.

11. Development and utilization of forest preserves in Cook county and throughout the state.

12. The more rapid and complete Americanization of foreign born elements of the population.

A PROGRAM OF PROGRESS.

The effort to mobilize and maintain the full moral and material resources of the American people for victory in the world war has preoccupied most of our thought and energy for nearly eighteen months. And so it must be for months and perhaps years to come. We are profoundly convinced that the overthrow of the German system is essential to our security and peaceful progress and we shall let no other consideration deflect us from the pursuit of this object.

But THE TRIBUNE believes that without in any measure weakening our effort to this end, and indeed in some respects with positive benefit, we may think and plan for the future and get a great deal of preparatory work cleared away for prompt accomplishment after peace arrives.

Great Britain is doing this. Germany is doing this. France, in spite of the tremendous disadvantages of an invaded nation, is doing this. America would confess a deplorable inferiority if we did not think ourselves capable of winning victory and at the same time preparing to enjoy the fruits of the peace we are fighting for.

Thus far, because the war is comparatively new for us, we have not looked beyond the great battlefield. It is time to do so. We are necessarily neglecting a great many parts of our normal machinery. We must let still more fall away till war is over. But we shall pay a heavy price if we allow this process to pass the point where it is not essential to the development of our war strength.

We must not drift. We must drive, drive for victory and drive for prosperity after victory. THE TRIBUNE is convinced that the community it serves is in danger of suffering useless and unnecessary sacrifice and of finding itself depleted and at disadvantage, not through its war effort but through its lack of peace effort during the war.

Our duty is to clarify our minds, to look forward, to see where tendencies are carrying us, to plan and to go energetically to work now to shape our future, to get preliminaries done, to get foundations laid.

In this issue THE TRIBUNE offers a program of practical things to be done. Some are concrete and immediate. Mr. Hyde in his leading article today calls especial attention to the most immediate. Some are more general and their outlines only suggested, to be filled in after inquiry and deliberation. But all, we believe, are important and worth our definite service. We shall discuss them from time to time. We shall show their value and their relation to our prosperity and progress. We shall do our part for their realization. We believe planning in a large way is necessary and that only by having a program before us can we work together without waste of effort and neglect of opportunity.

We ask our readers to help with advice and suggestion and to use their influence and energies wherever practicable to further such of the measures and activities as they approve.

A NEW CONSTITUTION FOR NEW TIMES.

American governments have fitted the temperament of the American people by being forms of loose control which grew out of a system of political practices and procedure jovial in their nature, essentially human in their robustness and in their gusto, and very careless in production of anything needed in government.

These have been governments of likable men, elected to office with little thought whether the office fitted the purpose which it was supposed to serve or whether they fitted the office whether it served its purpose or not.

Geniality, cordiality, acumen in politics, in organizing and holding men together, have served to put men in office, and there has been little consideration of how the office did the work and how the men served the office.

These second and third best methods of administration, accepted as conditions of democracy, have had a severe trial and are having it now in conflict with autocratic forms of organization which have tested their methods by results and which have aimed constantly to get results.

The trial will continue after the war is over. We have been obliged to accept great burdens. For years, for generations, the cost of the war will be paid. People will deprive themselves and continue to deprive themselves of money to pay these bills.

They are doing it now in the flush of determination to accomplish a great good for the world. After that purpose has been accomplished and when the blood is cooler—and consequently the task not so ardently welcomed—they will pay.

Their lives will be subjected to the constant modification made necessary by conditions imposed by a war. Furthermore, democracies have learned a great deal regarding their own faulty organization. They have demanded a great deal of their citizens, and their citizens, conscious of what they have done for the state, may with justification ask that the state do more for them.

We cannot see the old American state existing with comfort owing to the indifference of its citizens when so much has to be done and when for accomplishment the most efficient instruments of government are needed. We cannot hope to obtain the improvement needed by merely trusting to elections to furnish men fitted for the jobs when the essential difficulty is in the process. It will be futile to try to get results if a faulty system is preserved.

Illinois has a faulty system which will be preserved until the state adopts a new constitution. The present constitution is a preventive of good administration. It specifically denies the accomplishment of what the state must have accomplished.

It has itemized objections to proper procedure. It puts defined obstacles in the way of effective administration. It prohibits the doing of things as they ought to be done. These prohibitions do not concern the liberties and rights of the citizens. They are not protective devices which guard anything vital to the life of the state.

They merely represent old thoughts and old conventions, cherish wrong ways of proceeding in administration, and prevent the granting of an adequate service to the citizens by the state.

For the reasons which have been here highly generalized the citizens are asked to vote Nov. 5 for the calling of a constitutional convention in order that the speediest possible correction of bad methods may be had.

People who will be paying heavily need an economical, efficient administration of their affairs in order that their ability to carry their burdens and to meet new conditions of life may be increased. The state's taxation system must be reconstructed to provide equitable and fair taxation. The short ballot must be adopted to increase the electoral intelligence. The courts must be reorganized to obtain greater efficiency and economy in administration. In Chicago there must be an end put to the diversification of government which permits twenty-one local governments to confuse administration.

Administrative machinery as old and inadequate as that by which Illinois tries to run cannot meet the needs of new times. It will only complicate and embarrass the lives of Illinois citizens if they continue to try to live under conditions now imposed upon them.

It is not necessary that they continue to so live. They have the remedy in their hands. They can authorize the calling of a constitutional convention. The convention can devise and submit a new constitution. If it is such a measure as can be expected from an intelligent body of men acting in convention the citizens can adopt it and the state will have its new agencies of government.

The making of a new constitution is a slow procedure. The failure of the proposition in the November election would increase the delay enormously, for how many years cannot be guessed. And the state needs the quickest relief it can get.

OUR PROUD PURSE.

Germany's war debt has reached 37 per cent of its total wealth, that is to say, 37 per cent of $80,000,000,000. We have spent only 5 per cent of our national wealth of $250,000,000,000. We look over these figures with a sense of proper pride as we approach the fourth Liberty loan. We are made conscious of having only scratched the surface of our wealth. Wherefore we should prepare to take liberally of the issue with the pleasurable knowledge that with the $6,000,000,000 subscribed we will not even yet have approached the expenditures of enemy countries. Our wheels are just starting to turn with the magnificence of our purposes, and to give them momentum let us make wide estimates of what we will do with our shares individually. We have made a good national start. Let us hit harder each time.

HER IDEA.

"Then your wife doesn't think that two can live as cheaply as one?"

"No; her idea seems to be that two ought to live as expensively as four or five."—Boston Transcript.

FROM ONE NOW 'GONE WEST'

The following letter was received by Charles Wehrle and members of the composing room staff of "The Tribune" from Private F. W. McGlone, a former employé in the department who was killed in France on Aug. 9, six days after he wrote the letter. Private McGlone left "The Tribune" to join Company B, Eighth Canadian battalion of infantry.

FRANCE, Aug. 3, 1918.—Mon Cher Chas.: Received Triblets for July this afternoon, and I sure anticipate a pleasant hour or so reading same this evening. Criticism in my next.

In this I want to tell one or two laughable things I have seen and heard in France. First, here is one I omitted to tell sooner, though it was my intention to do so. We pulled off a raid some time ago, and in the course of which myself and a hard boiled egg named Ford (also from Chicago) both went after a big Fritz with our bayonets. Fritz dropped his rifle and turned around a bay in the trench going like the devil. As I put on a little spurt to get him I heard Ford, who was on the top of the trench, yell, "Aw right, Mac, I got him." I turned the bay in time to see Fritz turn the next bay and hear him yell back, "You're a bloody liar! You haven't got me yet!" Both Ford and I, in sheer astonishment, stopped and looked at each other, and then laughed like h——. Heine got away and he deserved it. He had nerve, anyhow.

A funny (?) stunt the boys pull off, when going into the line, on a green man is this: We will be plugging along in single file, keeping in touch with the man in front, and Fritz is putting over "overhead stuff" (shrapnel). A green man usually ducks every time he hears an explosion. Knowing this, one of the wise guys in the rear will spot a green man, and as a shell bursts will bounce a pebble or hard biscuit on the greenie's steel lid. Naturally the new man thinks he is hit and hollers, only to feel sheepish a few minutes later. I have seen a green man flop on the ground and insist that he had got a "Blighty" and have a couple of stretcher bearers look him all over and then turn the night air blue with their language.

While out on rest a short time ago an officer joined the batt., coming straight from the officers' training school in England. We saw at once that he was very regimental and ambitious. His clothes were new, well fitting, clean, and neat. In France we are a little lax in regimental stuff, but this officer evidently meant to make us like peace time soldiers. He was given my platoon one day, and in the morning we had an inspection. Next in line to me was Private Ford, already mentioned, and when this spick and span gave me the once over, up and down and sidewise, he stepped along to Ford, who had omitted to polish his shoes—or boots. Here is the dialogue between the two: Officer: "Did you polish your boots this morning?" Ford: "No!" Officer: "No what?" Ford: "No polish!" Officer: "Sergeant, take this man's name and number." Sergeant: "I did, sir!" Officer: "Well, take it again!" Ford got three days' pack drill.

We got a talk from a certain officer on various phases of the war, shells, etc. In the course of his talk he said: "You never hear the shell that hits you. As a matter of fact, the shell you hear coming has gone past you!" He wondered why we all laughed. This same officer took my platoon into the line the last trip, and as we were going in a whiz bang passed over my head—whiz bang, just like that—and I involuntarily ducked my head. The officer said, "It would not have done you any good to duck that one!" I said, "No, sir; but I did not duck that one—it was the next one I ducked." He doesn't know yet whether I was kidding him or not.

In a certain village there is a little store where one can buy a large variety of articles. It is run by a very charming young French lady, and while there the boys were buying all kinds of junk for the pleasure of a smile from the pretty little French girl. I went in and said, "Visage poudre, m'selle?" She turned her head sideways to me, gave me a very coy sidelong glance, smiled, shook her finger at me, and said, "Ah, monsieur! Boko swank, eh!" (Swank is English for putting on airs.) This may not seem funny to you, but to me at the time it was very funny. In the same village two English soldiers billeted in a French house, sat down to dinner one day consisting of potatoes and boiled ham. One of the boys, holding his nose, said, "Blimy! that's a 'igh 'am, Charlie!" The other one said: "Yus, I'll tell the madam!" Calling the housewife, he got on his feet, smiled, and with a finger pointing to the ham on the table, he said, "Pardon, madame! Tres je suis." In English this means, "Pardon, madam! Very — am!" Imagine how mystified the French woman was.

But the cream of all is this: A new recruit asked this question, "Say, chum, what part of France is No Mans' land?" I think this guy had never been off the farm in his life until he was conscripted, and even then I am sure he had to have blinders on him and he backed into the train like a horse. I guess I will finish this by giving one or two choruses sung by the boys in France:

O! O! O! it's a lovely wa-ar.
O! O! O! it's a lovely game.
Nothing to do but do as you're told,
Nothing to catch unless it's a cold.
Up in the morning, early, leading the simple life.
O! O! O! it's a lovely wa-ar.
If you're not happy you've only yourself to blame.
*You sleep to the roar of a thousand guns,
Strafing all day the foxy Huns.
O! O! O! it's a lovely wa-ar.

*Change at times to this:
What do you want with eggs and ham
When you get plum and apple jam?

Sergt. Brown! Sergt. Brown!
Keep your eye on Tommy for me.
They go wrong on the continong
Or in gay Paree!
They parley-vous, so they say,
When a French girl they see,
But if my boy Tommy wants to parley-vous
Let him come home and parley-vous with me!

Keep your head down, Fritzie boy.
Last night in the pale moonlight
I saw yer! I saw yer!
You were fixing barbed wire
When we opened rapid fire;
So if you want to see your mother,
Your sister or your brother,
Keep your head down, Fritzie boy!

Plum and apple! Plum and apple!
Jam for breakfast! Jam for tea!
But you never get a bit of strawberree!
Plum and apple! Plum and apple!
Till the boys begin to say,
If they'd use those tons of jam, you see,
As shells for our artilleree
We'd have won the war quite easilee
And been in Berlin today!

There are dozens of other songs, but I guess I have written enough for this trip. We also sing the Yankee Tipperary—i. e.: "The Yanks are coming," etc.

In conclusion might I suggest that when sending money orders to any of the boys in France that you simply make it payable "France," without specifying any particular town or place. It would take too long to explain, but I can assure you it will be much easier for the boys here. Compree! Merci, boko, mons. Regards to everybody. Sincerely,

Cheerio! F. W. McGLONE.

CHILD PEDAGOGY.

THE children's bureau, department of labor, recently issued the third of a series of manuals for mothers. The first, entitled "Prenatal Care," tells the expectant mother what to do and what not to do. The second, "Infant Care," instructs mothers in the care of babies under two years of age.

The great need for the first lay in the few books on the subject. Most young married women have had to learn the little they knew from their mothers or other older women. In any branch the practices of a generation ago must improve on those of its predecessor, for society progresses and evolves constantly. It is due to this lack that superstitions still have such a hold on pregnant women. "Prenatal Care" has done and is doing much to knock out some of these superstitions.

The great virtue of the second of these books is that it teaches breast feeding by schedule, but for those women who will not breast feed a simple method of milk dilution is given. The methods of modification recommended by Holt and other standard books on baby feeding are too complicated for a large number of mothers. The methods advised in "Infant Care" are much simpler.

The great need for child care lies in the importance of care of children between 2 and 6 years of age and the general failure to appreciate that importance.

The constant hammering of the middle half of the last century brought about universal education. Children over 6 years of age are now taken care of by trained teachers for several days a week for ten months out of each year. The constant hammering of the last twenty years brought about far better care of babies under 2. But children between 2 and 6 fall in between. The mothers think their arduous care during the two years has earned for them some relief. Many of them have younger children demanding care. They think that it is safe to relax.

A study of the mortality statistics shows that life is safe during these years. The death rate of the third year is moderately high, but after that the rate is very low. Averaging the third, fourth, fifth, sixth, and seventh years, we find that the group presents the lowest average death rate of any span of five consecutive years in the journey from the cradle to the grave. Within this span are the highest death rates from diphtheria, scarlet fever, German measles, chickenpox, and, on occasions, measles. But besides the death rates from various forms of contagion, including pneumonia, there is almost no death rate during this period.

It is not, then, because of fatal illness that this span is important. Why, then, is it important? It is because character and habits are being formed, the mind is unfolding, and the foundation is being laid for the ailments of the heart and kidney disease of later years originating in these years.

The theory now prevalent is that most of the consumption which develops in later life is contracted during childhood. The most prevalent form of consumption now is consumption in milk cows. The decreasing volume of consumption in human beings is being increasingly cared for in hospitals and sanitaria. The percentage of infective, careless consumptives now at large is small and becoming smaller yearly. The percentage of milk cows becomes larger yearly. The great users of milk are the children between 2 and 6. We are more careless about the milk given this group than we are about that given to babies.

The thin chested, barrel chested, stoop shouldered, spindle shanked, slew footed people are as they are largely because of neglect during this period. It is estimated that one-third of the school children in New York City are so undersized that it is the duty of the city to help out in one way or another.

This undernourishing and lessening of growth usually begins about the second year. The baby having reached the second year of life is supposed to be safe and is allowed to take its chances at the table and elsewhere. Weighers and nurses note that the child begins to fall behind within a few months. By the time the school age is reached the child is far behind schedule.

This span is important from the standpoint of the feet. Many children reach school age with feet twisted so that weak feet, broken arches, and calf pains are inevitable in later life. From the standpoint of the feet the pre-school age is not so important as the school age. However, after proper weight is given these points relating to the physical, the conclusion must be reached that the years are more important from the standpoint of the spiritual and mental.

"Child Care" says that we are born entirely without habits and it is as easy in the beginning to learn good habits as to learn bad ones. In the plastic years of early childhood when the child is receiving those impressions which will stamp the permanent pattern of his mind and character, it is most necessary to teach him habits which he will not have to unlearn when he grows older.

The teaching of proper habits should be begun long before the child is 2 years old. The habit of regular eating, of regular bowel movements, of sleep without rocking, each should be established within the first weeks of life. But these constitute merely the beginning. The parent must bridge over the years between 3 and the time when the teacher and the pupils in school take up the work of establishing habits. A baby at 2 is essentially nonsocial.

A child at the beginning of school life is still far from being ready for the social adjustment of life. But, during the span between 2 and 6, the child increases so much in consciousness of self and of surroundings and relationship to companions that the period may be termed the period of social awakening. In this period two inherited traits are showing themselves. If the training of the child in habits and customs is neglected until school age, the problem will be made more difficult, to say the least.

It is not probable that the mind develops so rapidly in any other span of five years. Parents are so struck with the mental development of their hopefuls and so fond of boasting of their precocity that we wonder that so little has been written about the pedagogy of children between 2 and 6.

These years are likewise all important in the forming of character. The liars, thieves, cheats, and murderers, and, on the other hand, the saints, at 7 years of age are already molded and awaiting the incidents which will determine whether certain members of one group will go to jail or not and whether or not the members of the other group will be canonized.

Coming down to details for a moment, this is the period to cure stammering. A reasonably persistent, intelligent, well balanced parent can beat the best expert that ever lived in curing stammering. A practical difficulty lies in the fact that stammering children are apt to belong to a nervous, illy poised parent. But since men and women are prone to marry opposites it is probable that one parent of a stammering child will be well enough poised to cure the stammerer. However much quarrel there may be about cures for stammering among adults, every one is agreed that children under 6 can be cured by learning poise, equanimity, and the habit of thinking and speaking synchronously.

The same statements hold true of other nervous disorders. In these years some children develop habit spasms of one sort or another. The child of a friend developed the habit of squinting her eyes and jerking the muscles of her face. He took her to see a nerve specialist and this is what he got for his $25: "Hold an ordinary pin firmly between your index finger and your thumb. Whenever she squints jab her in the face with the pin." One treatment cured her.

The epileptic constitution is frequently manifest in children of this age. Training can bring these children onto safe ground.

I was struck with what "Child Care" had to say about children that are finicky about what they eat. "With few exceptions children may be taught proper food habits. Children know nothing of foods in the beginning save those which are set before them and have to learn to eat every article of food. If, from the first, wholesome and suitable foods are served without comment or question most children will like them and thus normal dietary habits are established." In some cases a child may exhibit an idiosyncrasy "toward a certain food, such as eggs, for example, which he may not be able to eat, but in general he can be, and should be, taught to eat all wholesome foods."

A child who insists that he does not like this or that food may not be perfectly well, or his appetite may have been perverted by one cause or another. Others may have had their tastes limited by the objection of the members of the family to certain articles, which are consequently almost excluded from the table. Mothers frequently write in that their children will not eat this or that. The chance is at least nine out of ten that the parent is responsible for the position taken by the child.

"Finickiness" about foods in children is usually a manifestation of temper, obstinacy, peevishness, or some other mental peculiarity and indicates poor training. Let us repeat a part of the quotation, "If from the first wholesome and suitable foods are served without comment or question."

Let me suggest this: If a mother has a child who "positively will not eat" some one article of diet known to be wholesome, let her regard this as an evidence that her child is disposed to be peculiar or willful, and proceed accordingly.

Breath holding is a habit which manifests itself in older children as well as in babies. Dr. Abt says of it: "Breath holding usually occurs in neuropathic children and treatment should be directed toward the general management of the nervous child. When an attack occurs there should be no fussiness or consternation evinced by the mother or nurse. The patient should be shown in no uncertain manner that any repetition of the attack will meet harsh if not painful measures."

On the general subject of training and character formation "Child Care" says "the young child should know no other way than to do what it is told. A lawless, ungovernable child who respects neither the rights of others nor the authority of his elders, who rides rough shod over everyone about, who eats without regard to time or place, who gets his own way by crying or by stubborn insistance, is a nuisance to everyone, and, at the same time, is doing himself irreparable harm.

"Discipline begins in infancy and throughout the whole period of childhood constant discipline, which is guidance not punishment, should surround the child, protecting him from the formation of bad habits and teaching him the fundamental lessons of self-denial and self-control."

While the great need in the training of a child is guidance, there are times, places, and occasions when guidance must be supplemented by rewards and punishments. Ethically, there is no question of the advantage of a system of guidance over one of rewards and punishments, but after admitting that we must also admit that the poorer policy has some place in a proper scheme. "Child Care" insists, as it should, that in administering rewards and punishments the emotions of the parent must not be the guide.

SODA, BLAUD'S PILLS, ETC.

F. J. A writes: "1. Is an unduly alkaline condition of the urine at all serious? If so, what is the danger from it? 2. What are the symptoms of such a condition? 3. Could it be caused by taking soda mint tablets, say about one ounce a week, for indigestion? 4. What form of iron is best for a person who is 'run down' and anemic who used to be of what is called a full habit? I have heard that much of the iron given does not assimilate and can do little good.

REPLY.

1. I judge you have in mind the alkalinity which is so frequently found at this season of the year. It results from eating vegetables and fruit, and is beneficial rather than otherwise.

2. It causes no symptoms.

3. Taking soda for indigestion is liable to cause alkalinity of the urine. The soda habit is bad in that it causes indigestion and perpetuates the demand for soda; also in that it disturbs the acid-alkali balance of the body.

4. Blaud's pills, one to two three times a day for three months, is as good as any. Most of the iron taken as a tonic does not assimilate. Therefore the necessity for taking such an excess and for so long a time.

NATIVE OF AUSTRIA-HUNGARY.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—[To the Friend of the People.]—I am a subject of Austria-Hungary, but a Jugo-Slav, and have a son in the United States army as a second lieutenant, who has served for over four years. I obtained my first papers in October, 1914. Will I be able to secure my final citizenship papers when the five years have expired? I also would like to do government work. A. T.

When you have resided in the United States for five years you should apply to the commissioner of naturalization for a certificate showing the date, manner, and place of your arrival in the United States, application for which may be obtained in the office of the chief naturalization examiner in the federal building. When a certificate of arrival is obtained you will be notified to appear in the office of the chief naturalization examiner, with your witnesses, for examination. Application for government work should be made at the government employment bureau, 116 North Dearborn street.

RUBBISH IN YARD.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—[To the Friend of the People.]—There is a house located on East Sixty-third place, on the corner, which is exceedingly dirty. The yard is full of all kinds of rubbish. M. E. G.

An investigation was made by an inspector from this department, as a result of which a notice was served on the owner to "remove accumulation of rubbish from rear yard."

JOHN DILL ROBERTSON,
Commissioner of Health.

REGARDING CRAWFORD AVENUE.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Please tell me if Crawford avenue (being a section line) requires law procedure to make it a street from Archer avenue to the drainage canal. H. H. L.

An ordinance providing for the opening and widening of South Crawford avenue, from West Thirty-first street to Archer avenue, was passed on Oct. 15, 1913. An order of possession has not yet been entered in this matter.

F. J. MITCHELL,
Superintendent of Streets.

LAMPS ARE PRIVATE PROPERTY.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—[To the Friend of the People.]—A brewery company on Burlington street has two lamps on the front of their building which have been out of use for some time. Can they be compelled to turn on those lights? A. R.

The lamps are the private property of the owners of the building and the city department has no authority to compel their use.

ILLINOIS DIVORCE LAW.

Chicago, Sept. 18.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—One year ago John De[illegible] left his wife in Illinois and has been living in Iowa since. He now is trying for a divorce. Should he obtain one, would it be legal to marry him at once or do the laws of Illinois require a certain length of time to expire before entering into another marriage? H.

A recent decision of our Supreme court indicates that if the divorce were obtained on one of the grounds mentioned in the Illinois statute the Illinois prohibition against marriage in this state within one year would apply. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

REFUND OF DEPOSIT.

Chicago, Sept. 18.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A month ago I paid down $10 on a $25 suit at an installment store. Later I decided I wanted something lighter, but when I asked them to give me two waists at $5 each or refund my money they would do neither.

I do not want the suit. (1) Do I lose the $10, or (2) how can I compel them to give my money back or $10 worth of goods? A. J. F.

1. Yes, unless you decide to take the suit or to make some other adjustment with them.

2. You cannot.

MUST OBTAIN PERMISSION.

Evanston, Ill., Sept. 10.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Recently I came across two pictures I should like to use as illustrations in a book I am writing. One picture is in an English magazine, copyrighted in the United States and England; the other picture in an American paper. Both of them are old.

Could I use them by saying that I copied them from such a magazine and giving them credit or is it necessary to get permission to use them? R. O.

ADVISE AGAINST REMARRIAGE.

Chicago, Sept. 18.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—My husband deserted me thirteen years ago. I have lived in the state of Illinois nine years. I do not know if he is alive or not. Have not lived with him since. Could I remarry without divorce? [illegible]

We strongly advise against remarriage in reliance on a presumption of death. You should secure a divorce.

GERMAN IN THE SCHOOLS.

Chicago, Sept. 18.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Replying to Dr. Edwin J. Kuh's letter in your issue today, headed "Patriotism or Chauvinism," I for my own part can see no reason for Dr. Kuh's perplexity at the agitation leading to a nation-wide exclusion of German from our schools; and replying to his question as to what is the object of this measure, I desire to state that, in my opinion, the object is to exclude the knowledge of a language which in the future will have no commercial value, and to devote the time spent in teaching what may be described as a "dead language" to teaching living languages, such as French and Spanish—which will rank with English as the commercial languages in the future.

In my opinion Dr. Kuh is not as perplexed as he pretends to be, and nobody with any other than a German name would be found asking the question he asks. A lot of us believe that people who speak German think German, and the object of the war in Europe today, as Dr. Kuh very well knows, is to prevent people thinking German thoughts and living them.

The world as a whole, or at least the biggest part of it, has had enough of Germany and everything German, including the language. H. H.

RABBIT MEAT.

Evanston, Ill., Sept. 14.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—In Cleveland they say rabbit meat has taken the regular place along with other meats. Why shouldn't it? The rabbit can be served any way a chicken can. The meat is better and you get more of it for your money. The real reason why the rabbit is not on the market here for daily use is because there would not be two days' supply available. It is no use to put something on the market that could not be maintained to some degree. Therefore the people of this vicinity ought to raise rabbits and lots of them. The men at the front will like rabbits when they return, as the English, French, and Belgians are great rabbit eaters. Only a few weeks ago in a letter from France to his sweetheart a soldier told of being anxious for supper, as they were going to have Belgian hare.

A great many people say they do not care for rabbits because they are bitter. There is just one reason for that, which is as follows: Most wild rabbits are shot in cold weather, packed in barrels, shipped to market; in most cases the weather is warm in transit.

As soon as a rabbit is killed it should be dressed and cooled like any other meat; and before it is cooked it should be laid in cold water flavored with salt. Then it is ready to use as any other meat is used. Rabbit meat ranks next to squab meat for nutrition, according to government analysis. Belgian hares are very clean; in fact, they are far superior to chickens in that respect. They eat nothing but the cleanest greens and grain, no garbage whatever. A person can raise rabbits on the greens from the garden.

If he buys them small at the spring of the year the upkeep is very small. They will eat any hard crusts of bread and the leaves of all greens from the garden. By the time winter comes you have a crop that has been raised at a small cost which will have proved a great pleasure.

Then you can eat them. You will be doing your bit to help win the war because you have raised meat, which is just as essential as raising vegetables. J. B. K[illegible]

CATTLE RAISING IN GEORGIA.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 14.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The great need of producing materials for food and clothing to meet the war demands leads me to ask that you give your readers the following for whatever advantage it may be to them and for the public welfare.

There are thousands of acres of cut-over forest lands in southeast Georgia covered with wild grasses. Cattle and sheep thrive on these grasses without other food for nine months of the year and the remaining three months are able to maintain themselves without other feeds. The lands, when put in cultivation, yield forage crops liberally. Enough timber is left on the lands for building, fencing and permanent firewood.

The average rainfall is about forty-eight inches a year. Bored wells from fifteen to twenty-five feet in depth furnish water and artesian water is reached at a depth of about 400 feet. Within the past few years packing houses have been built at a number of towns and cities accessible by rail.

Western growers of live stock could do themselves and the nation a very substantial service, with incidental profit to themselves, by investigating these conditions with a view to extending their operations in the southeast. C. J. [illegible]

ART by Eleanor Jewett

Last Day to See War in Pictures by French Artists

A GRAY road, green gray where the fields on either side yield up their yellowing grass for men to bivouac and mules to graze, stretches its sinuous length under a grayer sky. Lorries, laden with impossible quantities of food and ammunition and other supplies, labor through mud, hub deep, down the road, and writhing tanks, monsters unthinkable, plunge through and by, up to the battle front.

The gray road darkens under the tread of the million men that tramp its gray length in recrossing streams, some to the front and some back for their leave. At the front the road dissolves itself into a labyrinth of winding roads that reach to all parts of the front. And back and forth across the front wind the vineyards of defense—the barbed wire entanglements. Back of them are the trenches. In the trenches crouch, or sit, or lie, or stand the men.

The life at the front and the world of the front differ in every circumstance from the life and world of the years before the war.

No one has made that difference as clear as the fighting artists of France, who have painted its many guises and brought these captured impressions to us, here, in the exhibit of war paintings that closes this evening at the Art institute.

Among the many artists represented is Sergt. Robert Lortac, a man who has been decorated for bravery, and one who is a member of that daring brotherhood, the Blue Devils of France. He and Mr. Leblanc, a French poet, are in charge of the exhibition.

From here the pictures will be taken to various other cities, but it is while they are here that they are of interest to us. Those who have not seen them should make a point of doing so.

Other of the artists represented are Poulbot, Hansi, Flores, Jodelet, Jonas, Lavard, Roussau, Naudin, and George Scott.

There are two tiny galleries in the Art institute that house occasionally interesting exhibits. In room 34 is a charming collection of small bronzes. On the wall facing the door is a bronze plaque, a portrait of Jules Bastien-Lepage, by Augustus St. Gaudens. Below it on a tall dark stand are three attractive figures by Bessie Potter Vonnoh. At oneend is the slender girl, noh. At one end is the slender girl, rubbing her sleepy eyes awake a few minutes before the Sandman catches her on the road to Nod. In the center is a beautiful group called "Motherhood."

Across the little room is a group by Paul Troubetzkoy, "Mother and Child," and beyond it is a dancing girl, also carved by him. "The Dog and Tortoise," by Antoine L. Barye, reminds one forcibly of Landseer's painting of "Dignity and Impudence." The big, powerful dog looks with such utter scorn in that picture upon the frantic antics of the smaller comrade, and in this sculpture of Barye's the big hound has much the same expression of world weary astonishment on his face as he gazes with pricked ears at the scurrying turtle at his feet. "The Amazon," by Franz von Stuck, is a strong piece of work. More interesting by far, however, is the Indian study by H. A. MacNeil which he calls "The Moqui Prayer for Rain." It shows an Indian runner, a priest probably, racing toward the sun with, in each outstretched hand, a snake that, as he runs, winds itself up and bends its hissing head back against the wind.

In the second little gallery, room 36, is a collection of ivory lent by Joseph Rosenbaum, Oscar G. Foreman, and the Mary M. Walker estate. Carved ivory has always a certain fascination that no other art possesses. It seems such an impossibility that anything as delicately colorless can be translated into the fantasies that are created wherever this art is practiced. France, Belgium, Flanders, Germany, Japan, England have all contributed to the carving of ivory. Down through the centuries from the time of the crusaders and before ivory has been a favorite medium for the evolution of exquisite art fit to please kings and their ladies.

One of the most charming bits in the collection at the Art institute is an adorably quaint Madonna and Child. They are seated apart on what appears to be a stiff railing, but the respect of the artist for the figures has not given a single softening touch to the rigid perfection of this masterpiece.

There are various other interesting pieces. Many of them are complex and crowded with figures. As delicate as the tracery of frost on the windows or salt spray thrown up from the sea in storm are these figures and scenes. Knights and ladies, castles and gardens, children at play, and old women at worship, the ivory has embraced them all in the kaleidoscope of its infinite variety on the shelves of gallery 36.

Wednesday afternoon in Fullerton hall the first meeting of the Illinois chapter of the Art Alliance of America will take place. Merchants, manufacturers, artists, and educators are asked to come and discuss the new problems for world trade and commerce after the war, with a view of incorporating the artistic side of things commercial into the processes of manufacture. Among the men of Chicago interested in this movement are Eames MacVeagh, Alexander Revell, Lorado Taft, Lionel Robertson, and George W. Eggers.

Gilbert P. Riswold has completed a remarkable bust of the late Capt. Hugh Knyvett, the famous Australian intelligence officer and scout, who took many Chicago audiences by storm last winter with his thrilling war talks. The portrait-bust is perhaps a little more spiritual in its modeling than was the statue of Stephen A. Douglas, also by Riswold, which was shown last spring at the Art institute. It is an unusual likeness. The soul of the soldier seems to be straining for release from the restraint of the flesh. In the clay this effect of spiritual chafing is remarkable. Capt. Knyvett died, as one remembers, not because of the many wounds he had received in action, but because of the unextinguishable desire to serve his country that forced him for his own soul's sake out into rain and wind and every kind of weather to fulfill the speaking tour which he had undertaken in the furtherance of the allied cause in America.

Fisher and Gilmore:

"Who is it?"

"It's me, doctor. I had no one to send so I came myself."

"Did you hear about the two colored baseball clubs playing a very exciting game?"

"No, I did not."

"There were as many razors in the air as there were flies; it was impossible for the umpire to decide the game."

"Why, on account of the fight?"

"No, no, not on account of the fight."

"Why couldn't the umpire decide the game?"

American Women Slow to Adopt a Late French Mode

By Mme. X.

IT came like a flash! One day the sun shone on rich, vigorous foliage; the next ragged draperies of dead leaves whirled here and there before a shrill northwest wind. One day all the folk on our famous Boul. Mich. wore straw hats; the next, not a straw hat was visible among the men and few among the women. Coming fresh from seeing the trees shed their leaves into wind driven masses of dry, whispering, fragrant debris, one half expected to see clouds of summer hats blowing up and down the avenue and drifting in forlorn heaps in quiet corners.

Apparently it takes more than war to alienate woman from what might almost be called her strongest passion, the latest mode in dress. Even in heroic France the women have not relaxed their interest in their appearance, and probably never did French women appear more lovely, more truly elegant than they do now in their black, simple, loose fitting, exquisitely made gowns.

For the "robe chemise" is still the prevailing fashion over there. It was initiated last year, and is continued this year with certain additions, such as rich fringes, deep bands of fur, and a change in the cut of the neck—a change favoring the young and blooming, but not so advantageous to the woman of autumnal bloom.

* *

Not Favored Here.

American dressmakers tried to introduce these French modes last season, but the American woman has a profound belief in the charms and desirability of a waist line and could not be persuaded at that time to adopt the Paris edict.

Now there is no one smarter, more up to date in her effect, than the well dressed American woman. She expresses to its utmost the word "style," but when it comes to that ineffable quality in dress which transcends style, that indescribable something which suggests exquisite subtlety, seductive femininity, all that the old fashioned word elegance implies—and more much more—she must sit at the feet of her Gallic sister. Even in her grief the French woman is alluring—perhaps more so than ever before.

Perhaps it's owing to the war that white is no longer the mode around the necks of gowns. The delicate fingers that once made lace are now shaping shells. The oils that once made soaps are now needed in the manufacture of ammunition. So fair ladies must wear cloth and satins next the skin—a most trying juxtaposition to many!

Hats? Well, hats are large and small, narrow and broad, high and flat. This seems to be a sufficiently comprehensive prescription to admit any hat that you happen to have left over from last year's vintage. But, alas! when you take out last winter's faithful friend, it doesn't seem to fit this year's needs or this year's head.

Organizing Republican Women.

Perhaps that head is larger or a different shape. It well might be because of the increasing importance of women in the nation's two chief businesses—war and politics. To think that women now are represented on an auxiliary of the Republican party's national committee—that stronghold of ultra conservatism!

Mrs. Medill McCormick, with an executive committee of women representing all parts of the country, is undertaking the man-sized job of organizing the Republican women of America. Her headquarters will be in Washington, and already she is reaching out from Alaska to Florida, from Maine to Southern California to get all the threads of the great web into her hands.

In a measure the Democrats "beat the Republicans to it," to put it in the vernacular. In 1916 Mrs. George Bass was appointed chairman of the woman's bureau of the Democratic national committee, an enterprise financed from the party funds. But even this is not so exalted a position as that accorded Mrs. McCormick.

With her on her executive committee are Mrs. Florence Porter Collins of California, Miss Mary Garrett Hay of New York, Mrs. W. A. McCarter of Kansas, Mrs. Josephine Corliss Preston of Washington, and Mrs. Raymond Robins of Illinois, while Mrs. George W. Reinecke of Chicago is executive secretary.

Women are bound to play an important part in the coming elections this autumn, how important the vote in the senate on the suffrage, scheduled for Sept. 26, will prove.

* *

Ready for Fourth Drive.

In war work women are rapidly playing a more and more important rôle, especially in that part connected with the financing of the war. The women's liberty loan committee, of which Mrs. McAdoo is chairman, is the only committee of any kind regularly appointed by the federal government to handle the sale of bonds. Furthermore, those in charge of this coming fourth Liberty loan drive have taken women into their innermost councils. Women sit with men on all the boards and committees that are organizing for the great three weeks which begin next Saturday.

Charles W. Folds is chairman of the Chicago Liberty loan committee. Mrs. Jacob Baur is one of the vice chairmen of this same committee. She is chairman of the Chicago and Cook county women's organization, of which Mrs. Lambert O. Wile and Mrs. Irving L. Stern are vice chairmen.

The women have been at work for ten weeks getting their machine into running order. They have divided and subdivided their cohorts until they cover an enormous field of operation. Bond sales in hotels, restaurants, department stores, women's specialty stores, railroad stations, theaters, loop retail drug stores, the federal building, Council of Defense, city hall, and county building will all be in the hands of women.

* *

Committees to Canvass Wards.

As last spring, also, each ward in the city will have a women's committee to canvass that territory. Once more will Mrs. William J. Chalmers lead her committee of prominent north side women up the golden stairway which they will carpet, as they did before, with big bond subscriptions.

Mrs. George Higginson Jr. will again be in charge of department store bond saleswomen. Mrs. John H. Winterbotham and Mrs. John Borden will direct the sale of bonds on the main floor of Marshall Field's, while on the third floor, where there will be daily "stunts," Mrs. Robert Dunham will be in command. Mrs. Frances Montgomery will have charge of the sales booths in Field's store for men. At Mandel's Mrs. Willis G. Wood, assisted by the Chicago Woman's club, will direct the sales. Mrs. Marion Pool will oversee the selling at Carson Pirie Scott & Co.'s. Miss Alta Stevens will be on hand with her committee at Stevens Bros., Mrs. E. N. Rosenthal at Rothschild's, Mrs. G. E. Bangs at the Fair, Mrs. Mabel Van Alstyne and Mrs. Rudolph Buck at Hillman's. Mrs. William Grant Cook at the Boston Store, Mrs. Richard Deane at Woolworth's and Kresge's, and some one yet to be appointed at A. Starr Best's.

At all of these places volunteer entertainments given by the leading theatrical stars, motion picture artists, singers, musicians, writers, speakers, soldiers, and sailors will be daily events.

* *

Where Sales Are Easy.

Mrs. George E. Sevey and Miss Blanche E. Felt will be in charge of the saleswomen in the hotels, restaurants, cafeterias, and automats—a most profitable field. It needs but an elementary acquaintance with psychology to become convinced of the connection between a full stomach and the cheerful outlook which makes easy the investment of additional dollars in the best security in the world after you've felt as if you'd bought all the bonds you could afford.

Mrs. Lambert O. Wile and Mrs. W. C. Fox will have charge of bond sales in clubs, fraternal organizations, and trade unions.

Mrs. Fletcher Dobyns, who did such effective work last spring as the head of the speakers' bureau, is again at that post this autumn. Mrs. Mort Singer, Mrs. Charles E. Kohl, and Mrs. Edward R. Fifield will superintend sales in the theater booths. Mrs. John Cudahy is in charge of sales in parishes; Mrs. Frederick Tahl of loop office buildings; Mrs. James F. Presnell of the county building and city hall; Mrs. G. A. Bedell of the federal building; Mrs. Charles Frankenthal of the State Council of Defense booth, and Mrs. C. R. Walgreen of the loop drug stores.

* *

Work for All.

A survey of the program mapped out by the women shows that there's work for every woman in Chicago who wants to turn to and help her country in the most important job, bar none, there is for us noncombatants to do.

A word to the general public—and pass it along, as it is barely possible that there may be one or two benighted mortals who do not read this column: If you feel that you've bought all the bonds you can take care of, don't refuse the fair bond seller who importunes you to buy by a mere shake of your head. Don't pass her by with no sign that you hear her appeal. Don't act as if she were trying to rob you, or take from you what she has no right to take.

She is doing her country's work. The country has a right to whatever she can get you to take in the way of bonds. You owe her a pleasant, "I've taken all I can just now," or a smiling refusal. Anything less proves you a poor patriot and a poorer sport.

* *

After Us for Rubber.

The salvage committee of the Red Cross is after us for rubber. Get out your old rubber boots, your ancient garden hose, your outworn tires, and carry them down to the—we won't say melting pot; that sounds too odorous, so call it the receiving depot in Grant park, at the foot of Harrison street. The reception committee, composed of lads from the Lane Technical school, will be on hand tomorrow and through the week to welcome you and your gummiferous contribution.

To what better occupation could you devote this quiet, gasless Sunday than in hunting up your superfluous and outworn rubber products at your country's call, for the voice is the voice of Uncle Sam, though the hands are the hands of Mrs. Sam Chase and George Ludlow?

There's one rubber product the war seems to have driven into exile, and that is the rubberneck. Every one is too busy these days to be overmuch interested in his neighbor's affairs, so there'll be no rubbernecks contributed to the salvage bureau.

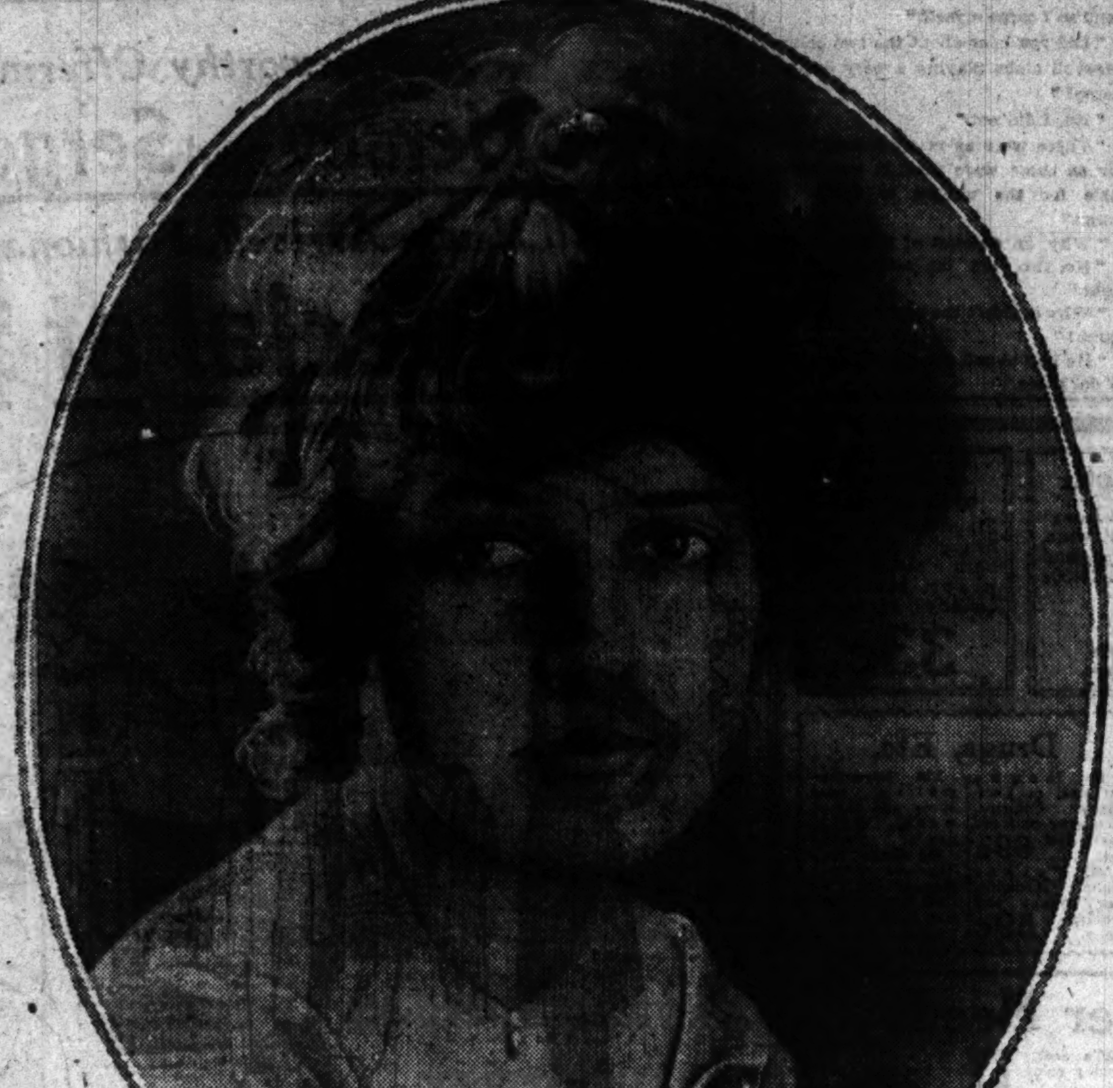
* *

Few Pedestrians Out.

Doubly quiet are these gasless Sabbaths, as the absence of automobiles on our pleasure driveways seems to deprive pedestrians of all incentives to walk. Last Sunday, strolling on the Lake Shore drive, between 12 and 1—that day and hour which ordinarily gives to that lovely parkway the aspect of a crowded foreign waterway place in the season—there were a scant half dozen other foot passengers in sight, which seems to show that what promenaders like is not sunshine, air, views, space, but is the spectacle of other mortals whizzing by in stench dealing cars—a curios taste, to say the least.

Don't forget, at home or abroad, to collect your peach stones, plum stones, cherry pits, etc., and to drop them in those cheerful repositories that ornament the corners of the loop streets. They are needed in the manufacture of the glass used on aerplane wings. It's a little act of patriotism, but "many a little makes a nickel."

A Bride of the Week.



Mrs. Neilson Murray Mathews

The wedding of Miss Dorothy Humphrey Vanderpoel and Neilson Murray Mathews took place on Thursday evening at the Church of the Redeemer, Fifty-sixth street and Blackstone avenue. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. John H. Vanderpoel of 5616 Kimbark avenue and the late John H. Vanderpoel, who was head of the faculty of the Art institute. Mrs. Mathews is chairman of the correspondence committee of the war relief association at the institute. Her engagement was announced in January. Mr. Mathews is the son of Mrs. C. H. Bryan of 4935 Dorchester avenue. The couple will reside at 5421 Ingleside avenue.

Opening Town Houses.

The clans are gathering, and each day homes are opening. It's much earlier than usual for many of our social arbiters to return, but this is no year to linger in Boston or New York for gossip, dressmaking, or theaters.

Among the changes in residence a notable one will be that made by Mrs. R. Hall McCormick, who will close her big house in Rush street and occupy the one in the block above still known after many years as the "Willie McCormick house." Mrs. Chauncey McCormick moved out of it last spring when she bought Mrs. Luther Bodman's residence in North State street.

For people to whom association means something it is pleasant to have the name McCormick continue to be associated with that unpretentious old brown stone fronted house of many genial, hospitable memories.

The Hugh McBirneys have leased for the winter young Mrs. Ambrose Cramer's charming house in Lake View avenue, one of the prettiest small houses ever built in Chicago. Their daughter, Mrs. Henry Stimson Jr., and her little boy, will be with Mr. and Mrs. McBirney, while her husband, Lieut. Stimson, is aiming big guns at the boches.

Mrs. Russell Tyson has let her attractive apartment in Goethe street to Mr. and Mrs. Francis C. Farwell for the winter and will go to a hotel for the same time. Her husband is in the American Red Cross in France, and she herself is so deeply immersed in directing the Chicago office of the American Fund for French Wounded that all she needs is a "pied à terre" where she can eat and sleep. Thus does the war dislocate homes.

WEDDINGS

The wedding of Miss Rosalie Wacker and Maj. Earle J. Zimmerman of the quartermasters' corps, United States army, is to take place Saturday afternoon, Oct. 5, at 4 o'clock, at the Fourth Presbyterian church. Miss Wacker, who is the daughter of Charles H. Wacker of 1431 North State parkway, is one of the most popular young women on the north shore. She and her father recently returned from Lake Geneva, where they have been spending the summer.

Another wedding of interest will be that of Miss Virginia Cannon Le Seure, daughter of Mrs. Ernest X. Le Seure of Danville, and Capt. William Houghteling, son of Mrs. James L. Houghteling of Winnetka, which will take place on Saturday, Oct. 12, probably in Washington, D. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Goodman of South Bend, Ind., announce the marriage of their daughter, Grace Estelle, to Lieut. Herbert W. Bartling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Bartling of 6145 Winthrop avenue.

Announcement is made by Mrs. Rose H. De Beck of 4936 Kimbark avenue of the marriage of her daughter, Rosalia, to Lieut. Commander Gregory Victor Piotrowsky, assistant naval attaché to the imperial Russian embassy, which took place in New York on Sept. 12.

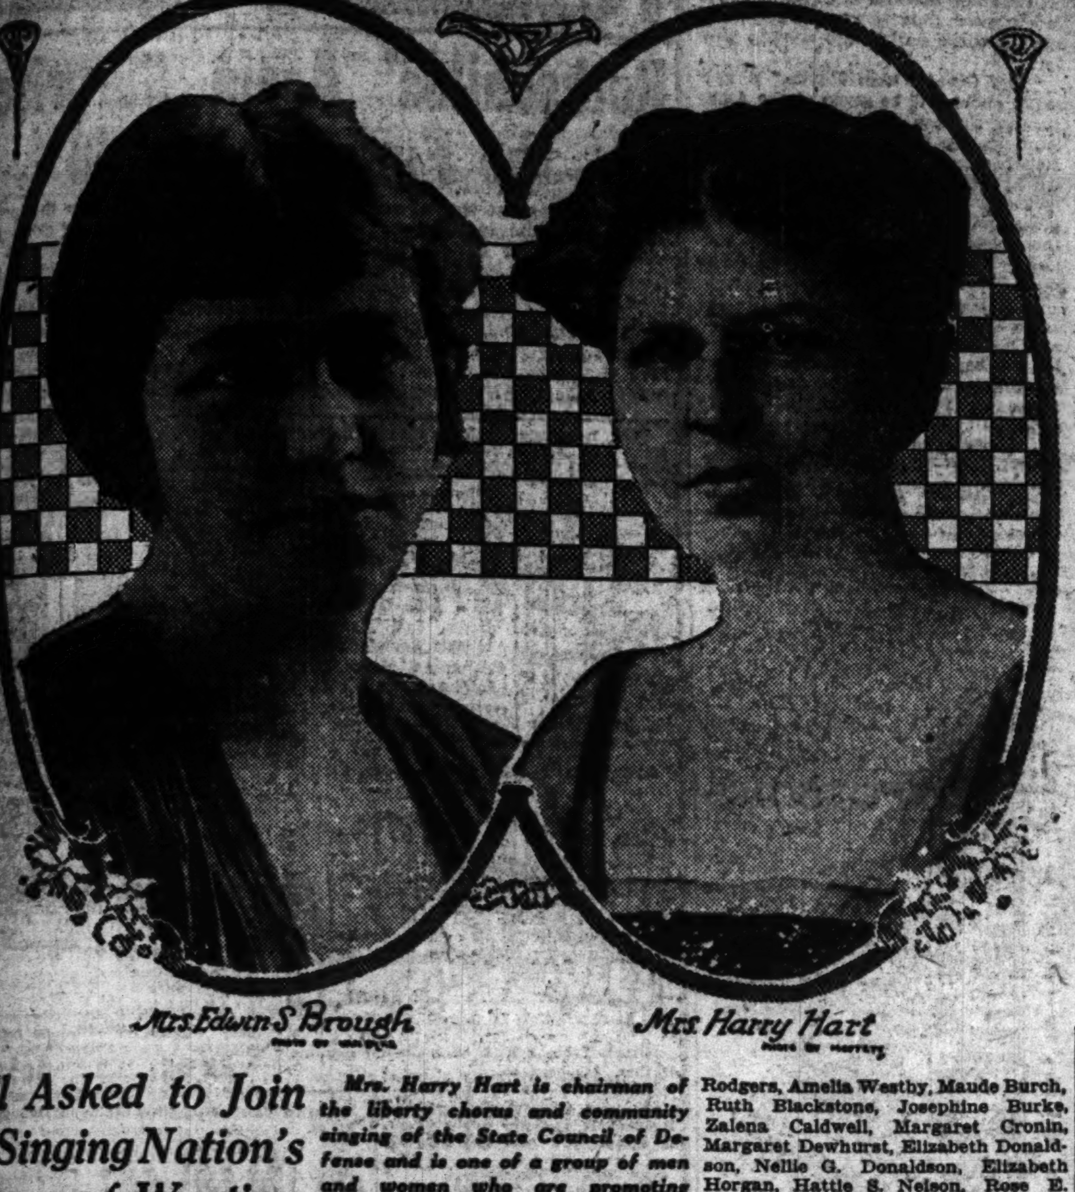
NEWS OF THE CHICAGO WOMEN'S CLUBS



Mrs Edwin S Brough. Mrs Harry Hart

All Asked to Join in Singing Nation's Songs of Wartime

By Mrs. Harry Hart.

[Chairman of the liberty chorus and community singing of the State Council of Defense.]

"If you love your country, open your mouth and sing." That is the slogan of the liberty chorus and the community singers recently organized for directing such work of the State Council of Defense.

This great movement to get every one in the United States to sing is partly stimulated through the hope that Americans will come to think of the war in terms of principles of honor, justice, and truth, for which we are standing. The songs the people will sing are our songs of democracy. They will be uplifted as they sing, and those who hear will be filled with the singers' spirit and will soon join in the chorus.

The United States has realized the power of singing, and is doing for its army and navy men, through every agency available, what we are trying to do for the community, and have placed community song leaders in all the cantonments in the country. The government feels that people get much more in music and enjoyment from community singing, in which they all join, than they do from listening to noted single musical stars.

We are planning community singing for every neighborhood in the city, for grown people as well as for children, and Samuel Insull of the State Council of Defense has appointed a large group of men and women to form a state committee for liberty choruses and community singing. Wherever any singing clubs or other singing units exist they will be included as units. The purpose of the units is to sing on all possible occasions—when soldiers leave for the front, when service flags are dedicated in various neighborhoods, when there are public celebrations, and, above all, for the mighty victory to be celebrated when the war is over. The movement is to be an enduring one, and not to be terminated when the war is over.

The woman's committee gave a community sing at the municipal pier in June, and recently, in coöperation with the counties' auxiliary and neighborhood committee of the State Council of Defense, forwarded the movement.

The State Council of Defense is getting out a song book for these community sings, in which there are 100 songs—the old ones that we all love, the songs of today that catch the popular ear, the songs of the allied nations, and well known and beautiful hymns. The book is to be sent everywhere, and will be sold for 10 cents.

A questionnaire has been sent out to professional musicians of the state asking them if they will be willing to lead choruses in their communities or give some similar service for the period of the war. The Civic Music Association of Chicago, the Illinois Federation of Musical Clubs, and the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs have already been supervising community singing, and will coöperate with local musical units until we make vocal the whole state of Illinois.

The Council of National Defense at Washington, in coöperation with the woman's committee, has asked that community singing be made a national thing.

To sing is one way to serve.

Mrs. Harry Hart is chairman of the liberty chorus and community singing of the State Council of Defense and is one of a group of men and women who are promoting neighborhood and club sings as part of an Americanization movement.

Mrs. Edwin S. Brough is founder and president of the Protestant Woman's National association and general chairman of the annual tag day to be held on Wednesday, Oct. 2, for the benefit of the dependent Protestant children of the city and the home at 439 Normal parkway.

WOMEN IN WARTIME.

A school of instruction for women bond sellers will be opened at the Hotel La Salle tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. Mrs. Elizabeth Cobb will initiate a portion of the 20,000 volunteer workers into the intricacies of finance. Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe will call together department store booth workers on Wednesday for similar instruction. Meetings scheduled for the week include: Tuesday, executive meeting, Chicago committee headquarters, Westminster building; women's trades committee chairmen, Hotel La Salle, 2:30 p. m.; hotel booth workers, Hotel Sherman, Thursday, 3 p. m. Mrs. Annie [illegible] Kennedy, president of the College club, and Mrs. Edward Dwight Pomeroy, chairman of the club's Liberty loan committee, will be in charge of subscriptions in 460 private schools and business colleges.

Red Cross rubber week will be inaugurated tomorrow in Grant park at the foot of Harrison street. The State Council of Defense and the south park commissioners are coöperating with the salvage bureau in the rubber drive, and all motorists are urged to contribute their blownout tires and inner tubes to the cause. A Red Cross pole will be erected tomorrow morning in the plot assigned for the purpose and passing motorists will cast over their tires and tubes after the manner of the old time game of "ring toss." The government has asked for rubber, hence the special drive at this time.

The Red Cross teaching center in the Tower building announces a new class in first aid for men. The course of ten lessons begin on Tuesday at 7:15 p. m., and the class will meet every Tuesday and Friday thereafter. There will also be a class in canteen of emergency cookery, to begin tomorrow at 10 a. m. and meet on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. The course consists of fifteen lessons in the preparation of quantities of food for large groups of people in emergencies, such as fires, floods, movement of troops, and similar crises.

A hospitality committee has been formed in Austin in coöperation with the War Camp Community Service to provide home hospitality and recreation for the fighting men. Its chairman is Mrs. W. Evan Baker. Miss Helen Branston is vice chairman and Mrs. J. M. Fowler secretary.

Miss Lolita Armour will preside over the new Food for France shop, 65 East Adams street, tomorrow, assisted by Mrs. Ambrose Cramer, Miss Courtney Letts, Miss Marguerite Pirie, and Mrs. Philip Wrigley. The regular monthly conference of the War Camp Community service for outside the camp activities will be held tomorrow from 10:30 a. m. to 3:30 p. m., at the Episcopal parish house, Laurel avenue, Highland Park.

The following nurses have received orders to report for immediate duty at camps: Alice Walter, Daisy Wright, Alma Studham, Clara Anderson, Anna Rodgers, Amelia Westhy, Maude Burch, Ruth Blackstone, Josephine Burke, Zalena Caldwell, Margaret Cronin, Margaret Dewhurst, Elizabeth Donaldson, Nellie G. Donaldson, Elizabeth Horgan, Hattie S. Nelson, Rose E. Meier, Eulah J. Mortimore, Ruth Hibbert, and Ruth Barrett.

Babies of Cicero have turned out 100 per cent patriotic, to be weighed and measured, under the direction of Mrs. B. C. Thorpe, chairman of the woman's committee unit of Cicero. Mrs. Thorpe and her helpers brought up the record of those weighed, measured, and registered to 1,157.

Stations have been established by the junior auxiliary of the Red Cross for the collection of tinfoil. These are located in the Art institute, Schulte cigar store, at Michigan avenue and Adams street; Almer Coe's, in Wabash avenue; Herendeen Milling company, Darling Co., Sweet, Wallach & Co., Kettering's drug store, and the cigar stand in the Insurance Exchange building.

There will be a rally of members and friends of the Girls' Patriotic Service league of the Twenty-first ward tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock at the playground at 400 East Chicago avenue, under the auspices of the Twenty-first ward branch of the Woman's Committee of the State Council of Defense. A military drill will be organized also classes in home nursing, surgical dressing, and French. Classes in the international code are open to men in the army and navy. The class is held Monday and Wednesday evenings at 7 o'clock at 1621 Kimball building by Mrs. Elizabeth Alton.

Women workers are called for to pack hard breads for the quartermaster's department in a large food producing plant. They are to handle electric soldering irons in packing, and those without experience will be taken, the pay beginning at $10 and increasing with added skill. Application may be made to the employment department of the Woman's Committee of the State Council of Defense, 228 Monadnock building.

Nursing convalescent soldiers who have been returned from the front is one kind of war work to which the army men's wives are eligible. They will not be sent overseas, but as nurses' aids in military hospitals in which the convalescent men are quartered for reconstruction work they can be of the utmost value. Unmarried women who are over the 35 year age limit established for the student nurse reserve are eligible for the course. Those interested in the work should apply at the office of Miss Minnie Ahrens of the Red Cross nursing service, 180 North Wabash avenue.

In order that the young women of Illinois may have every opportunity to fit themselves for efficient war service, the state university at Urbana, which will open Sept. 30, offers a number of special war courses in addition to the regular collegiate subjects.

Mrs. Charles Ackert, director of the refugee garment department, Red Cross, says that as soon as the quota is received the chairmen of the various branches and auxiliaries will be notified and work distributed as rapidly as possible.

Committees and organizations affiliated with the woman's committee of the State Council of Defense will meet on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock with the executive board of the woman's committee at its open meeting in the library at 120 West Adams street.

The Red Cross sanitary detachments for women which have been instituted in several of the large industrial plants in Chicago are becoming a real factor in the training of women. Dr. H. W. Gentles, "first aid" instructor connected with the Red Cross teaching center, was the instigator of this form of work, in which Chicago has the honor of being the pioneer.

Free continuation schools will open this year in the evening for the first time in the history of the Chicago public schools. All business and trade courses and instruction in the use of calculating machines will be given.

A patriotic rally in the interest of the fourth Liberty loan will be given under the auspices of the war emergency committee of the North End Woman's club at the Red Cross shop, Granville and Winthrop avenues, on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. Following is the program for this week at the food conservation bureau and demonstration station, 28 South Wabash avenue, which is under the direction of the woman's committee of the State Council of Defense. All lectures and demonstrations are free to the public, with special emphasis on canning, preserving, and drying fruits and vegetables, and on the recommendations made by the food administration: Tomorrow, 11 a. m., "Canning Fruits and Vegetables," Miss Winifred Philleo; 2 p. m., "Sugarless Marmalades," Miss Philleo. The opening dance of the fall season is scheduled for Saturday, and it is announced that all of the parties of the year will be informal, including those given on Thursdays, one of which is also on the card for this week.

A charity card party will be given under the auspices of the Chrysolite club on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Bryson, 4932 Lake Park avenue. The proceeds will go to the club's fund for home charity work. Mrs. Frank Bennett is chairman of the affair.

The opening of the Casino club is always an event which is looked forward to, since it is one of the most popular clubs in the city. This year the club, which has been redecorated, will open on the first of October, and it is expected that there will be many parties there during the coming winter.

"The Great Lakes Revue," a new sailor show, will be given at the Auditorium theater on Monday evening, Sept. 30, for the benefit of the Navy Relief society. The book was written by Dave Wolff and the music and lyrics by James O'Keefe of the United States naval reserve force, who wrote the music for "Leave It to the Sailors." The show will continue for one week.

Miss Mary Adelaide Pitkin of 4569 Lake Park avenue will give the fourth and last of a series of bridge parties for the benefit of the Salvation Army doughnut and coffee fund at her residence on Friday afternoon at 2:15 o'clock.

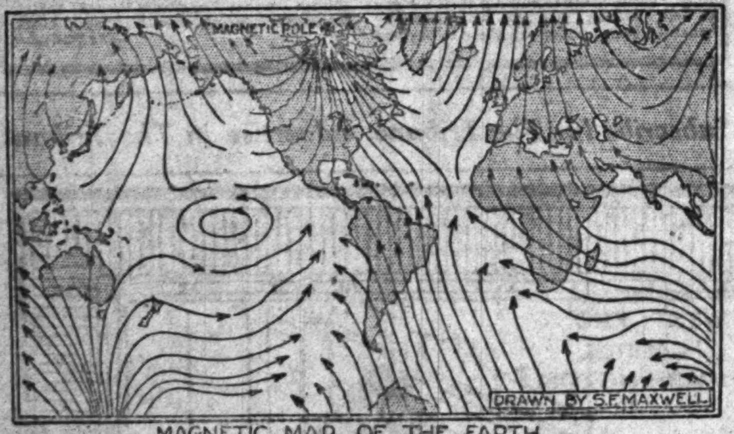
ASTRONOMY



MAGNETIC MAP OF THE EARTH
THE COMPASS POINTS NORTH ALONG THE ARROWS

Questions on astronomy and navigation will be answered in this column, or by mail if a stamped, addressed envelope is inclosed. Address Astronomy Editor, Chicago Sunday Tribune.

DIRECTION BY THE COMPASS.

THE sailors who accompanied Columbus on his first voyage across the unknown sea watched the usual sailing guides of that time with terrified interest. When the compass needle, whose constancy had never before been questioned, began to deviate from the north, there was almost a mutiny, and they talked of throwing the admiral overboard and returning while they yet knew their way home.

This characteristic of the compass, which was discovered in 1492, is well understood today. Various expeditions have been made to map the exact direction of the parallels of magnetic declination at every important place on earth. The compass needle in Europe points nearer northeast than north. In America this error is less, and in the middle western part of the United States it is almost negligible.

The north magnetic pole does not correspond with the north pole of the earth. It lies on one of the islands near Baffin Land, off the northern coast of America. It is not a location which one would recognize, but merely a mathematical point where the needle points straight down. Lines of force radiate from the magnetic pole and run to the opposite pole in the south, but because the earth's crust is not absolutely homogenous throughout these lines do not run straight, but curve about to conform to the irregularities beneath.

A ship sailing along what was due north by the compass and not regarding the direction by the stars, would follow a crooked path, and in the center of the Pacific ocean would actually go around in a circle.

Golden Texts for Used Car Buyers

BY HIGH SPEED.

NOW, if ever, come the perplexed days when the prospective owner will need words of advice on the purchase of a used car so as to be able to avoid buying a wreck with perfectly godd money. A bit of canny common sense frequently goes a long way in these sometimes precarious transactions.

In general, it may be said that a used car is no better than the dealer or man who sells it. The best place to select for looking over used cars is the salesroom of some reputable dealer.

If you are interested in a used Hudson, go to the Hudson dealer; in a Hupmobile, go to the dealer in that car. In this way you are sure at least of getting a car that has been put in shape properly and not "jobbed up" for a sale.

It is a most difficult matter to tell by a mere drive around the block whether the car is in perfect condition, especially if the street is smooth. Take, for example, such small cars as the Ford and Chevrolet. These cars have steering systems which are likely to show signs of throwing a fit if worn excessively.

This throwing is in the nature of rapid oscillating of the front wheels as though they were being turned rapidly from one direction to another. This is dangerous and annoying. It happens only on rough roads and at a certain speed, usually about six miles an hour. When going fast it is not noticed and on smooth roads it is not apparent.

Rattles and squeaks caused by loose parts are noticed only on rough roads. Hence it is wise when trying out the car to take it first slowly and then at a fair rate over a bad piece of road.

In order to determine the fitness of the used car you will have to drive it yourself to see whether there is undue play in the power transmission system. A bad clutch or a worn transmission can be "overcome" by good driving, and the demonstrators usually are very good at covering up such spots. Brakes should be tested so that a relining job is not necessary the first week you have the car.

If possible open the drain plugs of the transmission and rear axle and see if any oil or thinned grease runs out. Often a bad set of gears or even gears with broken teeth can be made noiseless for a short run by packing the case with heavy grease.

A new battery usually costs anywhere from $25 to $75, depending on the size, and it is the easiest of things to take an old battery ready for the junk pile and get it in shape so it will give service for a few minutes.

In driving around on the demonstration one can only listen for loud knocks in the engine and other parts. Bearings, of course, can be tightened and certain loose parts made to remain quiet for a time.

Here is an important point. An "oil pumper" is an engine whose pistons and rings are worn, and such an engine, when it gets hot after running some time, will pump so much oil into the combustion chambers as to cause misfiring and bad running generally. For a short period the "oil pumper" will be all right. Look around the valves for oil leakage from an oil pumper.

Some of these things the novice can do. For others he must take an experienced friend with him to the demonstration. But the best and safest advice for novice and old timer alike is: buy from a reputable dealer and take his word for the condition of the car.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

My car steers hard. Is it possible to improve this by inserting wedges, so as to pitch the axle forward? I have been told that this is so.

H. A. N., Millersburg, O.

This method is used as a last resort. Go over the steering system, and see whether the ordinary adjustments will not cure the trouble. Make sure the lubrication is O. K.

In using my hydrometer I found today that each of the cells registered a different specific gravity. The differences were only a small amount, but they were there. Does this mean that my battery is going on the bum?

G. M. E., Chicago.

No; a slight variation among the cells is usual, especially in hot weather. Unless the variation goes over two points you need not worry.

I have a 1914 touring car which is giving me considerable trouble. When I run about twenty-five miles an hour the car works well and also when it has to pull, but when it is running ten or fifteen miles per hour it operates as if the timers were missing one point of contact—in other words, in a jerky manner. I have batteries on the car and I have tested the plugs and they all work fine. Also when I turn the engine I get a fine buzz on all points of contact with the timer. The coils buzz in good shape also. I have taken all the wires off and I cannot find any broken, nor any short circuit anywhere. The valves have not been ground for about a year and when the engine runs as above there is a sort of spit from the exhause. Could the valves be causing this jerky action? It does not spit when it runs fast or pulls hard.

T. P. O., Celina, O.

The jerking is caused by misfiring, due either to poor valve action or improper carburetion. First check up the carburetor adjustment and then attend to the valves. Possibly wear in the tappet is such that there is too great a clearance for slow speed work.

My motor misfires when the car goes downhill, but otherwise it runs fine. The mechanics here have fussed with it, and they can make it stop missing for a while, but not always. C. C. L.

No doubt the float sticks, or the float valve is worn, so that the float bowl fills up too much on the down grade. If you are sure of the float valve being all right, lower the float level slightly.

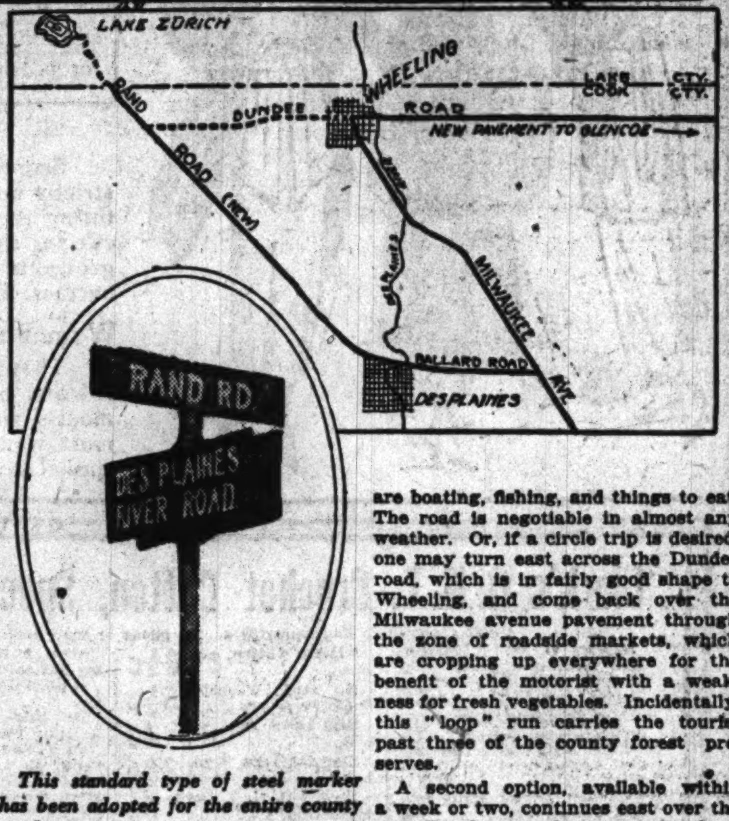
Please advise me the best route from Decorah, Ia., to Chicago.

L. F. WILTGEN, Peotone, Ill.

Go through Postville, Luana, Froelich, Garnavillo, Osterdock, Colesburg, Petersburg, Dyersville, Farley, Epworth, Dubuque, La Motte, Maquoketa, Charlotte, and Clinton, at which place pick up the Lincoln highway for the remainder of the distance, passing through Sterling, Dixon, Rochelle, DeKalb, and Geneva.

NEW RAND ROAD PAVEMENT OPENS FINE 32-MILE DRIVE FROM THE LOOP

Junction of Ballard and Rand roads on the outskirts of Desplaines. Guard rails like these, painted white, are being installed at all dangerous turns on the Cook county highways.



This standard type of steel marker has been adopted for the entire county road system.

A NEW experience in the way of short drives out of the city awaits the Chicago motorist in the completion of the Rand road pavement, now open to travel to the northern boundary of Cook county. From the loop to the end of the concrete, by this route, one may devote an hour and a half to traversing thirty-two miles of uninterrupted pavement, more than half of it through territory as completely rural as if it were 200 miles from the city.

The drive is six miles longer than over the much used Milwaukee avenue pavement and infinitely more attractive. Milwaukee avenue, to be sure, is followed to the Ballard road, eighteen miles out, but here one turns two and a half miles west to the outskirts of Desplaines, picking up the Rand road at a junction just north of the town.

From this point the new pavement lies through gently rolling country, dotted with prosperous farms—there are no more towns—and several densely wooded tracts, now just beginning to show the glorious tints of autumn. It's a genuine taste of the big outdoors, no farther from downtown than Blue Island or Hammond, and a capital Saturday afternoon run in these days of short drives, fuel conservation, and motorless Sundays.

If you must have a destination as well as a drive, keep ahead past the end of the new pavement to Lake Zurich, four miles beyond, where there are boating, fishing, and things to eat. The road is negotiable in almost any weather. Or, if a circle trip is desired, one may turn east across the Dundee road, which is in fairly good shape to Wheeling, and come back over the Milwaukee avenue pavement through the zone of roadside markets, which are cropping up everywhere for the benefit of the motorist with a weakness for fresh vegetables. Incidentally, this "loop" run carries the tourist past three of the county forest preserves.

A second option, available within a week or two, continues east over the new Dundee road pavement from Wheeling into Glencoe. For the present the work of replacing a faulty slab of concrete makes necessary a detour around part of this stretch.

Motor Matters Here and There

THE building of passenger cars is being suspended more abruptly than most of us anticipated, even after the governmental suggestion that all plants be placed on a "100 per cent war basis" by Jan. 1. "Suspended," of course, is the word, for every one agrees that the biggest boom of all is to come after the war. What that will be like one can only imagine. "It'll be the mining camp days over again," said one experienced dealer last week. "With all their war profits to spend, think what a scramble the manufacturers will make for business! I only hope I'll be here to see it."

No more Hudsons are being built, according to an official announcement from that factory. Franklin and Dodge Bros. likewise are understood to have stopped production, though the latter concern is drawing on cars it has had in storage. "After the present limited supply of Pierce-Arrows has gone to the public," say the Buffalo builders, "this company will produce no more passenger cars until steel and other materials are again available." Other plants are rapidly letting their output taper off to nothingness without saying anything about it.

This does not mean that there are no cars to be had. On the contrary, most dealers are reasonably well stocked, considering the circumstances. A Chicago automobile man, back from a trip through the east, reports few empty, or approximately empty, showrooms and warehouses. A few makes, of course, are hard to obtain, but these are the cars of builders who, in normal times, have found themselves unable to keep the supply up to the demand.

Curiously enough, despite the general tendency of things, plans are under way for putting one entirely new car definitely on the market this fall. This is the Essex, the speedy little four cylinder model which the Hudson factory has been developing during the last year. A thousand of these are to be built, it is said, within the next three months, and distributed as widely as possible—presumably to get the trade name established.

The tire economy conference at the Congress hotel last week gave birth to a new national organization, known as the Automobile Tire Filler Industry. Franc D. Mayer of Chicago was chosen president and Frank A. Hager of Portland, Ore., Lee W. Lockwood of Minneapolis, and W. W. Major of Midlothian, Tex., are the vice presidents.

The Misses Helen and Edith Peterson of 259 West Seventy-first street have returned from a 3,000 mile trip to the east and back in their Reo with their mother and two sisters. It cost the five $47.50 for gasoline—about what it would have cost one of the party to go one way by rail—and they report no tire or repair expenses except that involved in tightening a brake band.

Charles Rayfield, whose name is borne by the Rayfield carbureter, has perfected two new fuel economy devices, a motor thermostat and a special heavy duty carbureter for trucks and tractors. Both devices were shown at the automobile show on the Municipal pier last week.

WHY GOOD ROADS?

[From addresses made in Chicago last week.]

An investigation made during my administration as governor showed that a very large proportion of the women in our twenty-two Illinois institutions for the insane and feeble minded are placed there by the isolation and dreariness of farm life. They have had few good roads—few chances for intercommunication with their neighbors.

—Edward F. Dunne.

There is no question that the old Roman highways and the roads Napoleon built have saved France in this war. Guns, supplies, ammunition, men, everything is dependent on the automobile. —Stanley Field.

The New Series 19
Studebaker LIGHT-FOUR Sedan

Eight solid upright posts, extending from floor to roof, lend a solidity to the New Series 19 LIGHT-FOUR Sedan that makes this car particularly free from annoying rattles.

The slides in which the plate glass windows operate are provided with small rubber rollers which press against the edges of the glass and absorb all shocks and thrusts. Windows are lowered and raised by a simple mechanical device.

Doors are fitted with massive coach handles of special design; conveniently placed handles on inside enable driver or passengers to close door without the long reach to the usual latch handles. Two rear doors and left front door lock from inside—right front door from outside. Special construction makes doors watertight and wind-proof; windshield is leak-proof.

High-grade cloth upholstery, a cut-glass dome light in tonneau ceiling and silk roller-curtains at side and rear windows are features of the interior. All accessories are made expressly for this car.

Exterior is finished in a velvety-soft shade of dark green, with chassis and upper half of body in black. You must see this Sedan to appreciate it, and, as our supply will be limited, we urge you to come in at once.

News of the Religious World

Presbyterians Launch a "New Era" Movement

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

THE Presbyterian church of the United States of America is launching what it has named the New Era movement, to extend over a period of five years and includes the raising of several million dollars, the amount not yet decided on, and the enlargement of every form of church work and the quickening of the religious life as expressed in the home, school, nation, and foreign mission fields.

Action looking to the campaign was taken at the last meeting of the general assembly in May. The financial objective will soon be determined on and a drive will be made next March. Tentative figures given out indicate the goal will probably be $75,000,000 to be raised in five years.

The chairman of the executive committee is John T. Manson of New Haven, Conn. The other officers are: The Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, vice chairman; the Rev. W. H. Foulkes, executive secretary; Alexander R. Nicol, Summit, N. J., treasurer; the Rev. A. Woodruff Halsey, the Rev. John A. Marquis, and A. H. Whitford, Buffalo, N. Y.

The United States has been divided into five districts. Chicago will be the headquarters for the central district and will be in charge of E. J. Couper of Minneapolis. The other districts are the eastern, southern, western, and Pacific, each with an executive secretary. James B. Wootan of Chicago, a former editorial writer on the Omaha Bee, will be director of the bureau of publicity. Plans are being made to push the campaign into every church of the denomination.

One of the objects of the campaign is stated to be: "Adequate care of the nation's soldiers as they come home wounded and unfitted for normal service, coupled with a fulfillment of a new mission to the families in every community out of which men have gone to the front."

Rehabilitation of the Christian home, reëstablishment of the family altar, return to the Lord's day, and the proclamation of Christian stewardship, are other objects sought, as announced in the preliminary statement.

The Rev. Alexander Kukulevsky

The Rev. Alexander J. Kukulevsky is pastor of the Holy Trinity Russian orthodox church at North Leavitt street and Haddon avenue and ministers to a parish of 5,500 souls. The church is said to be the largest of its kind in the west.

A few weeks ago Father Kukulevsky returned from Russia, where he went as a delegates from America to attend the sobor or convention of various churches which met in Moscow under the régime of Kerensky until they were driven out by the coming into power of the Bolsheviki. He was gone thirteen months, nine of which were spent in Russia.

Yesterday he returned from New York, where he went to assist in arranging for a convention of priests and laymen of the Russian orthodox church to be held in Cleveland, O., beginning Oct. 15. Today he officiates at his church and tomorrow will go to Canada in the interest of the convention.

Father Kukulevsky is a strong believer in the intervention of America in Russia. While denouncing the rule of the Bolsheviki, he said the church was glad of the fall of the czar, as it enabled the church to be more democratic and gave it a voice in the selection of its ecclesiastical rulers. Father Kukulevsky has been pastor of the church six years, coming here from Pittsburgh. Formerly he was a teacher in the ecclesiastical seminary in Minneapolis.

All pastors of churches in Cook county have been called on by the Chicago Liberty loan committee to furnish from twelve to twenty-five men, able and influential, to serve as volunteer salesmen for the fourth Liberty loan, which begins Sept. 28. Albert J. Hunter, who is chairman of the committee on churches, in making the appeal, said: "The churches coöperated in a wonderful way in making the third loan a grand success." Mr. Hunter asks that names be sent to the office of the Chicago Liberty loan committee, 110 South Dearborn street.

The Fifth United Presbyterian church, Leland avenue and North Lincoln street, the Rev. R. C. Sherrard, pastor, will celebrate the silver anniversary of its founding with exercises beginning at 8 o'clock on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday evenings. The programs are in order: Pageant, "Illinois Crusaders,"; prayer meeting, historical, homecoming, with dinner at 6:30. The church was organized in a tent twenty-five years ago at the present site.

The Rev. Albert E. Selcer is in charge at the cathedral of SS. Peter and Paul, North Peoria street and West Washington boulevard. The Rt. Rev. S. M. Griswold, suffrage bishop, will preach today at 11 o'clock.

The Rev. Albert Joseph McCartney, pastor of the Kenwood Evangelical church, Forty-sixth street and Greenwood avenue, has been called away by the serious illness of his mother and the Rev. Theodore G. Soares of the University of Chicago will fill the pulpit today.

The Rev. Charles C. Morrison, editor of the Christian Century, will sail early next month for England and France as the guest of the British government. He expects to spend two months there. The Rev. Dan B. Brummitt, editor of the Epworth Herald, will also go. These and other editors will go as representatives of the religious press of America.

Today is Young Woman's Christian association day for Illinois when literature will be distributed in the churches of all denominations which explains the work the Y. W. C. A. is doing for our fighting men. There will be no solicitation for funds today, but only the spread of information.

The chapter meeting of the Northeastern deanery of the diocese of Chicago of the Protestant Episcopal church will be held in St. Mark's church, Evanston, beginning at 11 o'clock with the holy communion. The Rev. J. H. Haslam will speak on "The Moving Picture Theater" and the Rev. S. J. Steffens on "Parochial Conditions in War Times."

The Rev. James Frothingham preached last Sunday in the Lake View Presbyterian church, Broadway and Addition street. In his official capacity as a representative of the Chicago presbytery he formally declared the pulpit vacant. The former pastor, the Rev. Henry Seymour Brown, has already entered upon his duties as superintendent of the Chicago board of church extension. The committee on the selection of a new pastor is P. M. Scott, C. M. Williams, R. T. Parker, C. D. Gray, S. E. Hackett, T. J. Wright, Miss Mary Stillwell, and Miss Gertrude Forstall.

The Hyde Park Presbyterian church has 120 names on the honor roll, all of them, the church bulletin says, on the battlefield or in the cantonments. In addition there are many men and women giving all of their time to Red Cross and governmental work, but their names are not included in the honor roll. The Rev. Jesse R. Zeigler is pastor.

The First Christian church, Springfield, Ill., has installed a set of chimes, the first of any church of the denomination in the state to do so.

This is the way one Chicago pastor describes his Rooseveltian way of taking a vacation: "Your pastor had a great vacation. Preached thirty-four times, with the result of thirty-five for baptism. We had a splendid rest and great things to eat. We are here on the field again, ready for a vigorous campaign."

The Rev. J. E. Heeter became pastor of the Montrose United Presbyterian church, Montrose and Whipple avenues, Sept. 1. He comes from Akron, O., and succeeds in the pastorate the Rev. W. R. Cox, who delivered the installation address. Mr. Cox will reside in Oak Park and preach as occasion demands, but will not assume the duties of another pastorate.

The Fingers That Reach for Your Heart!

NOTHING in the wide world like the happiness that lies in those pink dimpled fingers that reach for your heart

You would give him the whole universe, if you could.

But he doesn't want that, little Mother. He only wants health, now. He only wants to grow like a flower in the sunshine—to lie on his back and laugh all day, to pick gravely at the bows on his pink coverlet, and drowse, and wake up smiling.

Is he happy, that baby of yours? Is he blooming with health, contented all day, quietly sleeping all night?

It almost all depends on what you feed him, you know. Of course, you nurse him if you can, but not even love can always make Mother's milk agree with that delicate little stomach. But don't worry.

THERE is a food you can give him that is almost sure to keep him strong and well. It is as near as can be to Mother's milk, you see. It is milk—remember that—but purer and cleaner than you can ever get it in bottles, and changed a little to make it easier for your baby to digest.

To this milk is added just the right amount of cereal, just the right amount of sugar. And it comes to you a clean, fluffy powder in air-tight tins—and you just add fresh water and boil. This is Nestlé's Food. Don't forget the name.

So easy—so simple—so sure to make your baby well and happy.

If he isn't quite well—if you're not quite satisfied with the way he is getting on—put that baby on Nestlé's Food—today. Of all the things you would give him—he only wants health now. Nestlé's Food will give him that. Send the coupon or a postcard—now!

The Government Has Recognized the Need of Corsets and Has Classified Them as Essential

Third Floor—Center

The thousands of women who in the past have bought their corsets in our fitting rooms in place of "over the counter" have recognized this fact quickly, indeed, for a corset that is scientifically fitted brings a woman so much needed support, so much comfort, and at the same time helps her to present a trig, trim appearance, that it is no wonder that after investigation

The War Industries Board of the United States Government has said that corsets are to be classified as among the first civilian essentials.

A demonstration of the construction of a Nemo corset shows that each particular model was designed to aid a certain type of figure, that each particular patented feature was added to aid or prevent some ailment—it is these special features that helped so much in having corsets classified as essential. Are you wearing a Nemo corset and taking advantage of the great aid it can be to you?

Please remember that only a thoroughly experienced corsetiere with a complete variety of models and sizes to select from can fit you in the proper manner—and that our stock of Nemo corsets is as complete today as ever before—the largest stock in America.

If you have your corset fitted here, you have the services and advice of the most carefully trained corps of corsetieres in the country, all graduates of the N. H. F. I. of New York. Their service is free. The government asks every woman to make her corset last as long as possible. Do you realize that a properly fitted corset wears much longer than a corset that does not fit correctly? If you study the corset question, you will let us fit you to a Nemo corset.

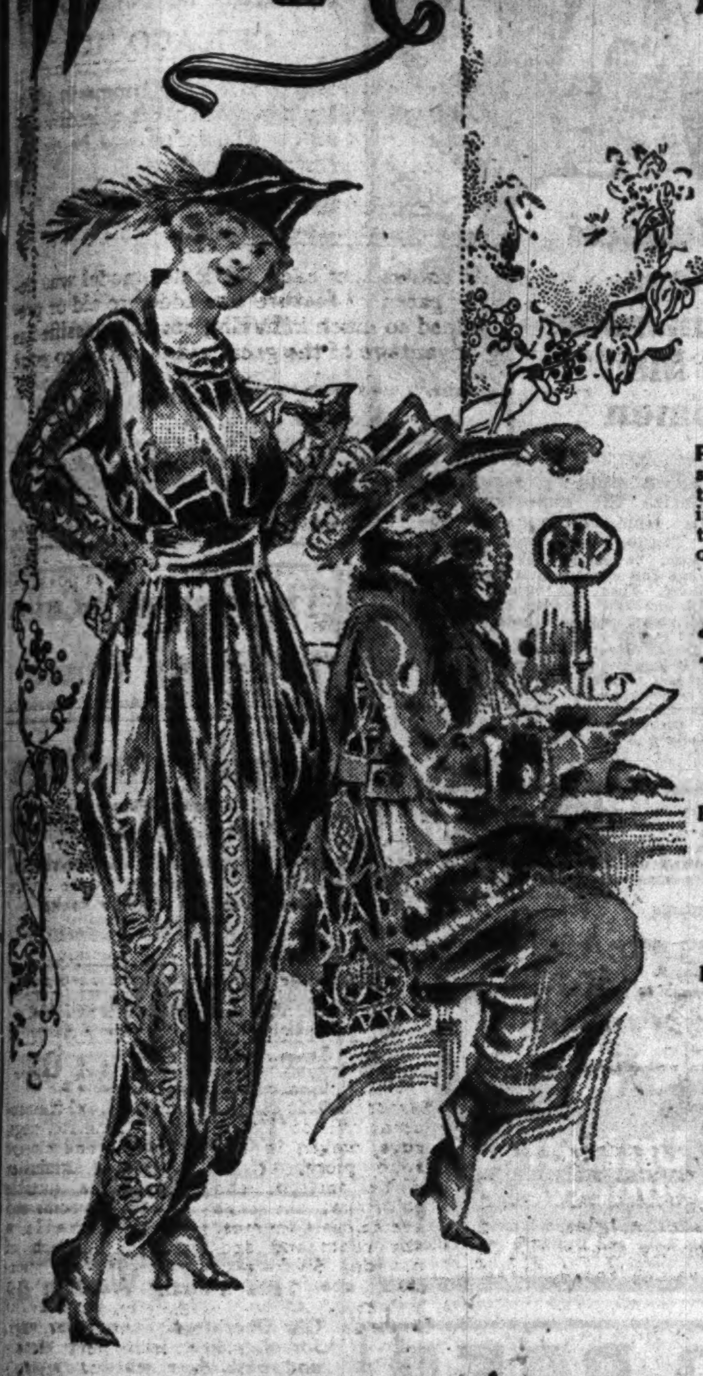
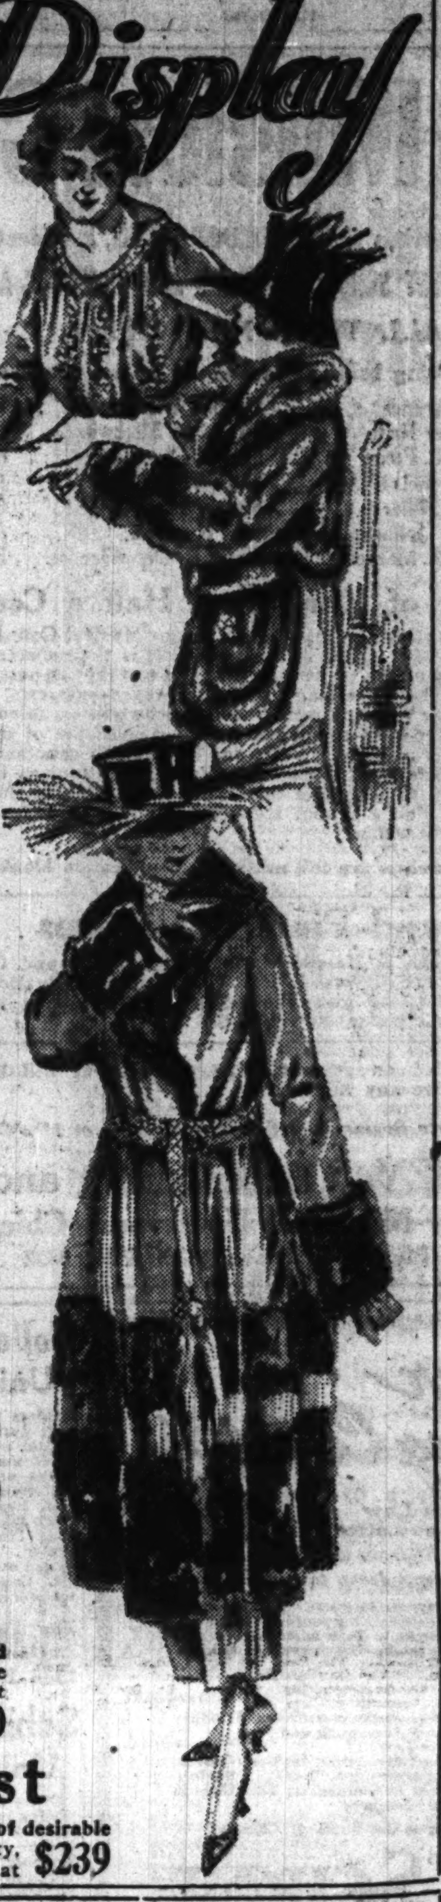
What Madam Will Wear this Fall: Opening Display





Paris, war disturbed Paris, still strikes the keynote in women's fashions, and while in the main the modes are simple and plain, they are so with an elegance of line and designing that will win you to them on the instant. Practical is the description of most of the styles, so that the choosing of the new clothes will be readily attended to. Our great Second Floor asks your attendance and approval. The charming suits, the attractive hats, the chic gowns, the coats of elegance, the blouses, the furs—each in a collection so broad and comprehensive that here you'll find the new styles have been chosen more than ever to please. You should surely spend a few moments here tomorrow or throughout the week. The first display we tell off is—

Autumn's Exquisite New Millinery

To sum up the delightful ideas represented in the pattern hats featured during the Fall Opening—soft lines. Never were styles of equal elegance shown, still simplicity reigns supreme. What with the soft crowns, the drooping brims, the peaked crowns and rolling brims, and never one hard, straight line—it's small wonder indeed they're so becoming, for the shapes lend themselves admirably to every type of face. The beautiful soft hues of mahogany, sapphire blue, midnight blue, browns in all tones, tan, black and taupe make them a delight to the eye. The gorgeous trimmings of imported flowers, ostrich feathers, handwork embroidery, gold and silver laces and moleskin add materially to their exclusiveness; all perfect copies of French and American originaations, and no two alike. An inspection of them, one and all, will prove an alluring pastime. Priced for the Fall Opening at.............................. $15 up to $39

Beautiful Lyons velvet hats with that particular charm which a velvet hat always inspires. They're truly millinery gems, entirely different from anything previously shown. Many in all black. Choice at.............................. $10 and $12

Fascinating turbans, high crowned hats, broad rolling brim effects and many others will be found in this group, trimmed effectively with chenille, flowers, ostrich, etc., all black and black combined with colors, at.................. 7.45 and 8.45

This group attracts attention because it demonstrates how effectively many of the prettiest of the season's styles may be had at trifling cost—made mainly of velvets, many attracting attention by their simplicity, now so popular—practically all shapes and styles—specially marked for Opening Week. 3.45 and 5.50

These beautiful ready to wear hats beckon with a charm many will find irresistible. Present Business Conditions and the Demand for Trained Men and Women

If you are not entering direct military service, a number of circumstances emphasize the importance of training and education at this time. Responsible positions are being vacated daily. Trained man and women will be sought to fill these positions. Again, the emergencies of the war are forcing many industries to expand, and this expansion is increasing the demand for men and women of training. Then, too, numerous persons in the ranks of business are left with increased burdens, because, in some instances, it is not practicable to fill vacancies. Such persons must increase their efficiency to carry the added responsibilities.

If you have thought of taking some special advanced course of training in business at times in the past, or if this thought is just occuring to you, investigate the courses in which you may be interested at once so that you can commence work this fall semester, which begins Wednesday, September 25th. Members of the faculty will be in their offices in the Northwestern University Building, corner of Lake and Dearborn Streets, daily and in the evenings, to advise you and inform you regarding the courses. The courses offered are:

—Charles M. Schwab.

"There never will be too many trained executives."
—James J. Hill.

Put Yourself in the Job You Want

The only thing that keeps you from the job you want is lack of training. The position you want is ready now—ready for you the very day you can show your fitness to hold it. Business is sending out its S. O. S. for trained men and women. You see big jobs left vacant by men called into government service—and still unfilled because enough trained people are not to be had. You read the call for help in every issue of the newspapers. You see offers of salaries larger than ever before to those who have the ambition and initiative to get the knowledge which commands big pay.

This condition makes YOUR opportunity. You can sell your services on a rising market if you can but show your value. The demand for Business Managers, Expert Accountants, Auditors, Comptrollers, Financial Managers, Cost Accountants, Credit Managers, Banking Experts, Legal Experts, Traffic Directors, Sales and Advertising Managers, Business Correspondents and Office Managers gives you your choice of the best positions—only you must have the "specialized brains" which Mr. Schwab says the "captains of industry" are seeking. Read below how you can get this training, easily, quickly and without taking an hour from your present work. Then act!

La Salle Extension and Resident Courses in Business

Downtown Evening Classes Begin Sept. 24

The opportunity to get the most thorough knowledge of any of the best paying branches of business is now yours, no matter where you live or what your present work or income may be.

Train in Spare Time Under La Salle Experts

Enrollment in any of the courses offered by La Salle Extension University places you immediately under experts who direct you at every step, either by mail or at the downtown evening school in Chicago. There is no interference with your present position. You are trained in exactly the work required in great modern business organizations. Every detail is made clear. You get the combined experience of authorities who give you in months what you could not get alone in years of routine office experience. The aim is to make you a finished product—equipped with the specialized training and knowledge to hold a position with executive responsibilities.

Eight hundred people are in the La Salle organization. Three hundred of them are business specialists—ready to get back of you—to instruct you, to help you and equip you for promotion.

In addition to this specialized instruction and training enrollment as a La Salle member gives you free the privileges of our Consulting Service, which brings advice on any special business problem whenever you want it.

Courses in Business for Every One

No matter what your present position, the La Salle experts can add to your efficiency. Every man and every woman who gets training such as we offer has knowledge which can be cashed in at any time. It is the kind of knowledge for which big pay is always ready. Advancement is certain for people who have this specialized ability. Those without it must stay in the ranks.

Already over 140,000 people, including thousands of corporation officials, business executives and employes, have benefited by the La Salle courses. More than 20,000 ambitious men and women enroll annually. The mails every day bring reports of advancement and salary increases due directly to La Salle training.

La Salle Members with Great Organizations

The greatest and most efficient business organizations are employers of La Salle members. The Pennsylvania Railroad has employed 990; the American Telegraph & Telephone Co., 267; the Standard Oil Co., 154; the U. S. Steel Corporation, 273; Armour & Co., 177; the Baltimore & Ohio R. R., 591. Other large concerns like the Western Electric Co., the International Harvester Co., the Goodrich Tire & Rubber Co., Wells Fargo Express Co., etc., employ from 50 to 100 or more. You find La Salle members everywhere.

Moderate Fees—Easy Terms

A La Salle training costs you but little compared with the earning power it brings. (Many members have received large salary advances shortly after enrollment.) And you can pay on our easy terms—a little each month if you wish. These courses are for ambitious people no matter what their present incomes. Our catalogs and literature, sent free, fully explain.

There are 7¾ sections, 4,761.30 acres, besides 183.99 acres of lakes, meadows, etc., to be used with the property. The land is practically in one block. It lies N. WHEAT!

This is the most favorable time to buy wheat land in the Northwest, and the Dunson District is the most favorable place. The high price for wheat, oats, and barley is having its effect on land values, and when we market our 1918 crop, which promises to be a bumper, land prices are going to jump. Our proposition is ideal for actual settlers, but nonresidents can own a farm under our plan and we will look after your farming interests. People of moderate means can make a start toward independence. You know that the farmer is getting high prices for everything, and you can increase your income materially by farming yourself. Don't kick about high prices for food. Get busy and produce some yourself. [illegible] will bring, by mail, full information [illegible] book of fine views of farming in Western Canada. REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS.

Indiana.

FOR SALE—
Farm, situated 12 miles west of South Bend, in Terre Coupee Prairie, on two interurban lines and N. Y. Central Railroad, which furnish a shipping station, weigh scales, and interurban station stop at farm, cars running every hour to South Bend, Michigan City, and Chicago.

This farm is well equipped, one house having been built last year; cellar under entire house and splendid furnace; all buildings, excepting one house and barn, having been built within the last four years. The house, built four years ago, is modern, hot and cold water, bath, furnace, and electric lights.

Fine equipment for dairying, stock raising, or general farming; the cow barn being one of the best in the state, holding about 100 cows; equipped with James Mfg. Company barn equipment, also Fairbanks-Morse electric light and water system; barnyard is concreted throughout, splendid milkhouse, toolhouse, garage, icehouse, and all necessary outbuildings, also two cement silos holding 250 tons of ensilage attached to main barn; good wagon road on three sides of farm, with concrete road into South Bend. These buildings and equipment today would cost $25,000; the land is all level, black top and clay subsoil, and tillable, not an acre of waste land.

If you are looking for a real farm in regard to land, location, and equipment, it will pay you to come to South Bend and see this farm. Terms very reasonable. E. H. STUDEBAKER, 515 S. NEW PLAN

From fine cut-over lands contiguous to our railroad in rich states of Miss. and La. I am authorized to offer a number of tracts from 160 to thousands of acres, ideally located for hog, sheep, goat and cattle ranches and mixed farming.

These ranches have been carefully selected under expert advice with reference to contour, water, farm lands, feeding, breeding and herding grounds, ranch headquarters, cheap building materials, shipping facilities and markets.

Prices low and distributed over a long period of years and at a cost per acre per year exceeding little the interest on the purchase price and ordinary leasing charges for grazing lands, and yet you own the land at end of payments.

Write for report Committee National Wool Growers Association as to the adaptability of these lands for livestock. Also detailed government data as to thousands of livestock transferred to this green grass country to increase the food supply.
